Foreword

The Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) provides technical assistance and training to thousands of juvenile justice practitioners, policymakers, and interested citizens each year. The Office funds more than 50 projects annually to assist judges, law enforcement officials, facility administrators, State agency staff, and community-based agencies/organizations as they seek solutions to the serious issues that surround juvenile crime.

OJJDP is responsible for providing direction, coordination, resources, and leadership to State and local jurisdictions in developing and implementing juvenile justice and delinquency prevention programs. This is accomplished by supporting research on all aspects of juvenile justice, delinquency prevention, and missing and exploited children; developing and demonstrating effective juvenile justice and missing and exploited children programs; providing information, training, and technical assistance about promising programs to State and local agencies and juvenile justice practitioners; replicating successful program models; supporting programs to help States achieve compliance with the requirements of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act (JJDPA); and coordinating Federal juvenile delinquency and missing and exploited children programs.

OJJDP's training and technical assistance programs include local, State, regional, and national training on specific issues, onsite problem solving through supporting local jurisdictional teams, planning, evaluation, and program development. Assistance is available on all the issues addressed in the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act, including prevention, detention, corrections, treatment, disproportionate minority confinement, challenge programs, gender-specific services, and State plan development.

This catalog, the first in a continuing series, provides readers with a short profile of each training and technical assistance provider organization and a brief synopsis of each training and technical assistance project funded by OJJDP. It is our hope that the catalog will make it even easier for juvenile justice professionals across the country to access assistance provided by OJJDP.

Preface

The Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974, as amended, recognizes the central role of training and technical assistance in the national effort to reduce youth crime and improve the juvenile justice system. Section 244 of the Act authorizes the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) to undertake training and technical assistance related to:

- Planning and development of juvenile delinquency programs.
- Professionals and volunteers working with high risk and delinquent youth and their families.
- Techniques and methods proven effective in preventing and treating juvenile delinquency.
- Jurisdictional teams which assist State and local agencies working directly with high risk and delinquent youth.

In furtherance of this mission, OJJDP has established and operates the OJJDP National Training and Technical Assistance Center in Champaign, Illinois. The Center seeks to upgrade and expand the professional skills of juvenile justice and delinquency prevention practitioners and increase their capacity to reduce youth crime and improve the juvenile justice system.

This mission is pursued through the operation of a resource database, clearinghouse, and the coordination of OJJDP's training and technical assistance delivery to State and local agencies.

To support these efforts, the Center:

- Collects and organizes OJJDP training and technical assistance resources and products.
- Coordinates a training and technical assistance network of leading planners, practitioners, and scholars to assist State and local agencies in their efforts to reduce youth crime and improve the juvenile justice system.
- Disseminates useful information through the resource clearinghouse and the training and technical assistance network, and sponsors workshops, seminars, and conferences, on a limited basis, for elected officials, practitioners, and citizen advocates.

The 1996 catalog includes more than 35 organizations representing the full spectrum of expertise in juvenile justice and delinquency prevention that provide training and technical assistance under OJJDP grants and contracts. The catalog will be updated on an annual basis and serve as a tool to further the collaboration and coordination efforts of these organizations that work to implement the goals and priorities of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974, as amended.

Acknowledgments

The Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) is grateful to Christina Kassuelke, Karen Francis-Shepard, and Jim Brown of the National Training and Technical Assistance Center for their superb work in collecting and inventorying the many resources which provide training and technical assistance under the OJJDP banner. Completion of this initial catalog has established an excellent foundation upon which to serve elected officials, practitioners, and citizen advocates nationwide in their efforts to reduce youth crime and improve the juvenile justice system.

OJJDP thanks the many professionals in the field and the over 35 organizations included in this document who helped the Center develop this initial edition of the Resource Catalog and responded to requests for information regarding OJJDP funded training and technical assistance services. Without their cooperation, this project could not have been brought to such a successful conclusion.

Special thanks and appreciation is extended to Emily Martin, Director of the OJJDP Training and Technical Assistance Division, for her vision and enduring perseverance which made this Resource Catalog a reality. Her dedication and commitment to the coordination and collaboration of all OJJDP sponsored resources continues to enhance the level of training and technical assistance provided nationwide. OJJDP also recognizes the tireless efforts of Peter Freivalds, Senior Program Manager, for his dedicated assistance and guidance in bringing this catalog to fruition.

Section I - Provider Profiles

This section provides a brief description of the organizations that OJJDP has funded through grants or contracts to provide training and technical assistance in one or more of the five OJJDP program categories. The profiles include information in the following categories: Organization, Phone, Fax, Internet, Contact, Expertise, Overview, Services, Audience, Projects, Sample Materials, Products, and 1996 Training Events. Some categories do not apply to all providers and appear only where relevant. Detailed information on the projects that were funded is described in the sections that follow: Overarching Projects; Public Safety and Law Enforcement Projects; Strengthening the Juvenile Justice System Projects; Delinquency Prevention and Intervention Projects; and Missing, Exploited, and Abused Children Projects.

Provider Profiles are included for the following organizations:

How To Use This Catalog

This catalog is divided into eight primary sections:

- Section I, Provider Profiles, offers a brief description of OJJDP’s training and technical assistance grantees and contractors.
- Section II, Overarching Projects, describes programs that provide training and technical assistance in all four of the OJJDP program categories including Public Safety and Law Enforcement, Strengthening the Juvenile Justice System, Delinquency Prevention and Intervention, and Missing, Exploited, and Abused Children.
- Section III, Public Safety and Law Enforcement, describes programs that support the linkage between community and law enforcement responses to youth and gun violence. This includes assisting law enforcement in their efforts to prevent and control delinquency and the victimization of children through community policing programs and coordination with other system components and child caring systems. Programs that are consistent with the preservation of public safety are also included in this category.
- Section IV, Strengthening the Juvenile Justice System, describes programs that improve the juvenile justice system and facilitate effective allocation of system resources. Under this category, a number of topics are addressed: juvenile accountability for crimes committed, court system due process, and effective development, utilization, and programming of detention and correctional facilities. Programs in this category also support research and the gathering of statistical information to understand how the juvenile justice system works in serving children and families. Information dissemination and training that support the improvement of the juvenile justice system as it relates to the mentioned topics are integral components of this category.
- Section V, Delinquency Prevention and Intervention, describes programs that prevent or reduce the occurrence of juvenile offenses, both criminal and noncriminal, and that intervene immediately and effectively when delinquent or status offenses first occur. This category represents programs that support sound policy for juvenile delinquency prevention and enhance the factors that contribute to socially acceptable behavior. It also includes delinquency prevention programs that can operate on a broad scale, providing for positive youth development, or can target juveniles identified as being at high risk for delinquency with programs designed to reduce future juvenile offending. In the area of intervention, this category addresses the provision of services to juveniles whose noncriminal misbehavior indicates that they are on a delinquency pathway and to first-time nonviolent delinquent offenders or nonserious repeat offenders who do not respond to initial system intervention. These interventions include nonpunitive options, juvenile accountability, and the provision of services tailored to the individual needs of the juvenile and the juvenile’s family. Programs that address the amelioration of risk and the enhancement of protective factors are part of this category.

- Section VI, Missing, Exploited, and Abused Children, describes programs that recognize that children are often the victims of violence and neglect. As the most vulnerable members of society, children have the right to be protected from victimization. This program category addresses these concerns through a variety of programs. It involves early intervention strategies to break the cycle of violence, community-based programs to combat child victimization, and strengthened child protective services. Also included in this category are systemwide approaches to combating violence and neglect through the strengthening of family and court services, administrative reform, written protocols, and programs that have targeted initiatives to work with children and families confronting the issues of abuse and neglect.
- Section VII, Calendar of Events, lists training workshops and conferences conducted or to be conducted by OJJDP contractors and grantees in 1996.
- Section VIII, Quick Phone Reference, includes a listing of the phone numbers of contractors, grantees, and OJJDP contacts.

Here are some useful points to keep in mind about the training and technical assistance listed in this catalog:

- Some of the training and technical assistance is available at little or no cost to the requesting agency. In certain cases the costs may be shared between the requester and the provider. If assistance is requested in connection with a State Comprehensive Juvenile Justice Plan, it may be provided through the technical assistance contract which supports formula grant state plan implementation.
- To inquire about the availability of training and technical assistance, contact the person listed in the project information sections (Sections II through VI).
- The training and technical assistance available from OJJDP grantees and contractors is, for the most part, short-term. The resources and expertise of recipients may also be requested to provide assistance with other projects. In this way a collaborative effort between agencies and organizations can be established.

Overview The Center for Youth Development and Policy Research was established in 1990 at the Academy for Educational Development in response to a growing concern about youth problems. Like many organizations, the Center is dedicated to contributing to better futures for all youth in the United States. The Center's goals are:

- To make "what works" available in order for all youth to be productive and involved citizens
- To double the number of people, places, and possibilities available to all young people by the year 2005
- To strengthen and support local systems in order to build a comprehensive youth development infrastructure
- To increase the public will to support positive development for all youth

Services The Center for Youth Development and Policy Research promotes youth development on a national and local level by conducting and synthesizing research and policy analysis; disseminating information; initiating dialogue and strengthening coalition building; providing technical assistance; and designing and implementing evaluations, community assessments, and demonstration projects.

Audience Professionals working directly with young people.

Expertise	Data collection, research, and analyses; management information systems; and facility design guidelines and evaluation.
Overview	Founded in 1973 as the research division of the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges (NCJFCJ), the National Center for Juvenile Justice (NCJJ) seeks to prevent juvenile delinquency and child abuse and neglect through research and technical assistance. Although affiliated with NCJFCJ, the Center conducts independent and original research on topics directly and indirectly related to the juvenile justice field. NCJJ is divided into three distinct departments: systems research, applied research, and legal research. It has its own budget, generates its own operating funds, and is guided by a 13-member Board of Fellows from the research, jurisprudence, and treatment fields. With substantial public and private support for more than 23 years, NCJJ has developed resources and capacities unique in juvenile justice research.
Services	Technical assistance to local, State, and Federal juvenile justice professionals; juvenile court data collection, research, and statistical analyses; tailored juvenile code statute analyses; development of juvenile court management information systems; and facility design guidelines and evaluations.
Audience	Juvenile and family court judges, probation officers, court administrators, State and Federal legislatures, social and legal researchers, child advocate agencies, juvenile correctional personnel, the media, attorneys, and children's program lobbyists.

Section II - Overarching Projects

OJJDP places its grantees and contractors into four primary program categories: Public Safety and Law Enforcement; Strengthening the Juvenile Justice System; Delinquency Prevention and Intervention; and Missing, Exploited, and Abused Children. Many programs have significant elements in more than one of these program categories or generally support all OJJDP's programs. Such programs are listed in this initial program category called Overarching Programs.

The project information sheets in Section II through VI include information in the following categories: Project, Emphasis, Organization, Mailing Address, Phone, Fax, Contact, Overview, Services, Audience, Training Events, and Products. Some categories do not apply to all providers and appear only where relevant. All the programs listed in this section represent grants, contracts, and cooperative agreements that cover several program areas and are sponsored by OJJDP. These include:

- Juvenile Justice Clearinghouse..... 55–56
- Evaluation Support of OJJDP Projects and Initiatives.....57
- Formula Grants Training and Technical Assistance Program..... 58–59
- OJJDP National Training and Technical Assistance Center..... 60–61
- Telecommunications Technology for Training and Information Dissemination..... 62–63
- Juvenile Justice Statistics and Systems Development Program..... 64–65
- National Juvenile Court Data Archive.....66
- National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.....67

The order in which projects are presented in Sections II through VI is alphabetical according to the name of the provider.

Section III - Public Safety and Law Enforcement

Under this category OJJDP supports the linkage between the community and law enforcement responses to youth crime and violence. This includes assisting law enforcement in their efforts to prevent and control delinquency and the victimization of children through community policing programs and coordination with other system components and child caring systems. Programs consistent with the preservation of public safety are also included in this section.

All of the programs listed in this section represent grants, contracts, and cooperative agreements sponsored by OJJDP under this category. These include:

- Criminal Justice Response to Parental Abduction Cases.....69
- Targeted Outreach: Gang Prevention and Intervention..... 70–71
- Missing and Exploited Children’s Training and Technical Assistance Program.....72
- Training and Technical Assistance to Federal, State, and Local Law Enforcement Agencies.....73
- National School Safety Center..... 74–75
- Prevention of Delinquency Through Child Development-Community Policing..... 76–77

Emphasis	Parental abduction of children.
Organization	American Bar Association 740 15th Street, NW 9th Floor Washington, DC 20005
Phone	202-662-1730
Contact	Kathi Grasso
Overview	The goal of this project is to learn about and describe how the criminal justice system handles cases of parental abduction of children. The project will examine, within the criminal justice system, how decisions are made, cases are processed, and model programs are developed. The American Bar Association Center on Children and Law and Westat, Inc., will conduct a 2-year, two-phase project to achieve this goal. The first phase comprises a literature and research review to help frame and shape the subsequent research. The second phase consists of a multisite study of justice system case processing, which includes: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Short mail survey to a nationally representative sample of prosecutors and law enforcement agencies (to ascertain quantitative information and identify potential study sites)• Six-county study (to obtain qualitative, descriptive information)• Three-county study (to obtain case-level data on all parental abduction cases that enter the criminal justice system and track them from entry to disposition)
Services	Conduct research and provide information related to findings.

Contact	Frank Sanchez, Jr., Director of Delinquency Prevention
Overview	Targeted Outreach is an ongoing program initiated by the Boys & Girls Club of America (BGCA) to reach at-risk youth. This project allows BGCA to build upon the Targeted Outreach and will result in the development and implementation of gang prevention and intervention programs. The primary goal is to provide a positive, productive alternative to gangs for youth most vulnerable to their influences or already entrenched in gang activity. BGCA will: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Extend support to 20 current gang prevention sites• Expand gang prevention through targeted outreach programs to an additional 30 program sites, serving 1,500 youth• Provide up to four program training events for nonproject clubs interested in starting Gang Prevention Through Targeted Outreach• Extend the replication period for two gang intervention sites• Expand intervention support to four additional clubs with existing gang prevention or intervention programs In addition, BGCA is committed to provide OJJDP's SafeFutures sites with assistance to enhance programming in existing clubs within the target areas. If no clubs exist, the national organization will work with local officials to explore the possibility of establishing clubs and provide technical assistance. SafeFutures sites are encouraged to reach out to clubs in their areas to integrate the program activities into the continuum. Clubs are available to work with the sites but their resources are limited and clubs are stretched, so negotiations around involvement in SafeFutures and resources would be necessary. One potential area of interest for the sites is the Boys and Girls Club Expansion Grants for the development of clubs in public housing.

Overview	The project's goal is to establish ongoing collaboration between mental health and law enforcement professionals in order to better address juvenile delinquency and the circumstances (e.g., witness to violence) that contribute to delinquent behavior. A primary focus is the provision of appropriate support and services to children and families who have been victims of violence. This goal is accomplished through a joint effort by police and mental health professionals working together to address the psychological burdens on children and families imposed by exposure to violence. The program provides community-based officers with the clinical knowledge and support they need to help children and families in crisis and allows clinicians to address the needs of children who previously would not have come to the attention of mental health services.

Services

Training and technical assistance will become available in winter 1996. The program will be limited to four replication sites to be selected throughout the United States.

Technical assistance services that will be provided include planning and program development, curriculum development, supervisor and clinician training, management information systems (especially service and activity tracking), and outcome and process evaluation.

Audience

Social workers, law enforcement, probation officers, and mental health professionals (psychiatry, psychology, social work, etc.).

Section IV - Strengthening the Juvenile Justice System

OJJDP recognizes the need to improve the juvenile justice system and facilitate effective allocation of system resources. Under this category, a number of topics are addressed. These include juvenile accountability for crimes committed; court system due process; and effective development, utilization, and programming of detention and correctional facilities. This category also supports research and gathering of statistical information to understand how the juvenile justice system works in serving children and families. Information dissemination and training that supports the improvement of the juvenile justice system as it relates to the above-mentioned topics is an integral component of this category.

All programs listed in this section represent grants, contracts, and cooperative agreements sponsored by OJJDP under this category. These include:

- Due Process Advocacy Program Development..... 79–80
- Training and Technical Assistance for Juvenile Detention and Corrections..... 81–82
- Disproportionate Minority Confinement: A Time for Change..... 83
- Training in Cultural Differences for Law Enforcement and Juvenile Justice Officials..... 84–85

Overview	The overall goal of this project is to increase the access of juvenile offenders to legal services and to improve the quality of preadjudicated and dispositional advocacy for juvenile offenders. The ABA and its partners, the Youth Law Center and the Juvenile Law Center will conduct an assessment of legal service programs for juveniles in States and localities. They will also examine Federal and State laws related to the issues of juvenile representation and the relevant literature. The first product will be a report on the status of defense services and recommendations for expanding and improving these services. From the information developed during this assessment, ABA will develop strategies for improving access to counsel and training materials to improve the quality of services. During the second year, project activities will be directed toward preparing the final report on survey implementation steps. Resource materials will be developed to enhance the efforts of public defenders, State and local bar associations, and children's law centers to improve the quality of defense services for youth. The third year ABA will provide training throughout the country.
Services	Assessment of legal service programs, examination of Federal and State legislation, information dissemination, and training.

Phone	415-896-6223
Fax	415-896-5109
Contact	Barry Krisberg, President
Overview	The purpose of the project is to conduct a process evaluation. The primary goal of the process evaluation is to assess program integrity, the extent to which the Intensive Aftercare Program (IAP) model is being implemented as planned by the particular jurisdiction. The four sites selected by OJJDP to implement the IAP model demonstration include Denver, CO; Las Vegas, NV; Norfolk, VA; and Trenton, NJ. The main goal of the impact evaluation is to assess to what extent the IAP model programs positively impacted the offenders participating in them. The design centers on four central research questions: <ol style="list-style-type: none">1. To what extent does the nature and extent of supervision and services provided to IAP youth differ from those provided to "regular" parolees?2. To what extent does the IAP have an impact on specific areas of youth functioning - such as substance abuse, family functioning, employment, life skills and social functioning - that are theoretically and empirically linked to continued involvement in delinquent/criminal behavior?3. To what extent does the IAP have an impact on the subsequent delinquent/criminal involvement of program participants?4. To what extent is the IAP cost effective?
Services	Assessment of the four demonstration sites and the potential for implementing an impact evaluation.
Audience	Four Intensive Community-Based Aftercare sites.

Overview	OJJDP's Initiative on Juvenile Corrections Education seeks to make learning the most important component of the rehabilitative process — to establish it as the centerpiece of every youth's institutional experience. The three State juvenile corrections facilities selected as model sites for testing effective educational practices are Adobe Mountain School, Arizona; Lookout Mountain Youth Center, Colorado; and Sauk Centre, Minnesota. The models seek to expand learning from the classroom into the entire fabric of the institution, to train and empower all institutional staff to teach, and to make learning enjoyable. The experience, data, and materials resulting from this Initiative will be packaged to assist other juvenile correctional agencies that wish to transform their facilities into effective learning centers for incarcerated youth.
Services	Educational program assessment, development and implementation of effective educational practices, and training and technical assistance.
Audience	Juvenile corrections administrators, judges, line staff workers, and other juvenile justice practitioners.

Section V - Delinquency Prevention and Intervention

A primary goal of OJJDP is to identify and promote programs that prevent or reduce the occurrence of juvenile offenses, both criminal and noncriminal, and to intervene immediately and effectively when delinquent or status offenses first occur. This category represents programs that support sound policy for juvenile delinquency prevention and enhance the factors that contribute to socially acceptable behavior. It also includes delinquency prevention programs that can operate on a broad scale, providing for positive youth development, or can target juveniles identified as being at high risk for delinquency with programs designed to reduce future juvenile offending. In the area of intervention, this category addresses the provision of services to juveniles whose noncriminal misbehavior indicates that they are on a delinquency pathway and first-time nonviolent delinquent offenders, not serious repeat offenders who do not respond to initial system intervention. These interventions include punitive options, juvenile accountability, and the provision of services tailored to the individual needs of the juvenile and the juvenile's family. Programs that address the amelioration of risk and the enhancement of protective factors are part of this category.

All the programs listed in this section represent grants, contracts, and cooperative agreements sponsored by OJJDP under this category. These include:

- Professional Development for Youth Workers.....109
- Education in Law and Juvenile Justice..... 110–111
- Youth for Justice: The National Coordinated Law-Related Education Program..... 112–113
- The Cities In Schools/Army Partnership.....114
- The Cities In Schools Federal Interagency Partnership..... 115–116
- Law-Related Education - National Delinquency Prevention Education.....117
- Title V Delinquency Prevention..... 118–119
- Intensive Aftercare Program.....120
- Teens, Crime, and the Community: Teens in Action in the 90's..... 121–122

Overview	Advancing Youth Development: A Curriculum for Youth Workers is the centerpiece of this project. The curriculum was written in collaboration with the National Network for Youth, Inc., and is designed for direct service youth workers and supervisors, especially those who serve youth from high-risk situations. The curriculum is designed to achieve the following goals: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Participants become highly familiar with a "youth development" approach to youth work and gain a solid understanding of how the approach provides "value added" to youth policies and programs• Participants learn practical strategies for integrating a youth development approach into their current practices in working with youth from high risk situations• Participants gain the ability to effectively model a youth development perspective to organizational colleagues and community constituencies
Services	The curriculum includes a section on facilitator preparation, handouts for participants, and background readings. For additional services of the Center, see the Provider Profile section of this catalog.
Audience	Direct service youth workers.

Overview	The American Bar Association is one of five grantees constituting OJJDP's program on Law-Related Education. LRE attempts to teach students from K-12 about the law, the Constitution, and their rights and responsibilities under the law. The primary focus of the LRE program is to institutionalize LRE in the Nation's schools, emphasizing curriculums and teaching methods that research suggests are effective in delinquency prevention. ABA conducts a comprehensive program of training seminars, meetings, publications, and clearinghouse services to promote effective training efforts in LRE. The LRE program is in a national dissemination and marketing stage. During this year, program efforts will strengthen the capacity of the LRE program to address youth violence.
Services	Emphasize effective curriculums and teaching methods, information dissemination, conferences, technical assistance (written), training, workshops, research, and evaluation.
Audience	Educators, administrators, and juvenile justice practitioners.

Overview	This 11-year partnership provides support for Cities in Schools (CIS) from the U.S. Departments of Justice (lead agency), Commerce, and Health and Human Services. Tasks to be accomplished include: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Expand and enhance CIS programs for youth involved with the juvenile justice system, train community resources to develop CIS programs, and enhance CIS initiatives to strengthen families• Facilitate access to Federal agency products by the CIS network• Enhance and expand CIS training capabilities by developing a consulting pool of local and State CIS staff experts• Produce the Seeds of Hope resource catalog annually listing private and public agencies, programs, and grant opportunities• Host a series of quarterly interagency roundtable discussions In addition, CIS assists SafeFutures sites in the exploration and development of a Cities In Schools initiative in the target area or the expansion of existing CIS programs. CIS also has an array of training and technical assistance services that might be available, such as Collaboration Skill-Building Training. Resources should be determined in consultation with CIS's, the site, and OJJDP program managers to determine feasibility and relevance — local ownership is a critical factor. SafeFutures sites should give consideration to CIS assistance and provide some indication of interest after some initial information gathering with CIS. The current grant period ends in August 1996; however, a new grant period is planned and may include SafeFutures.

Section VI - Missing, Exploited, and Abused Children

OJJDP recognizes that children are often the victims of violence and neglect. As the most vulnerable members of society, children have the right to be protected from victimization. This program category addresses these concerns through a variety of programs. It involves early intervention strategies to break the cycle of violence, community-based programs to combat child victimization, and strengthening of child protective services. Also included in this category are systemwide approaches to combating violence and neglect through the strengthening of family court services, administrative reform, written protocols, and programs that have targeted initiatives to work with children and families confronting the issues of abuse and neglect.

All the programs listed in this section represent grants, contracts, and cooperative agreements sponsored by OJJDP under this category. These include:

- Effective Community Based Approaches for Dealing with Missing and Exploited Children.....127
- APRI Parental Abduction Project..... 128–129
- Child Abuse Prosecution Training and Technical Assistance.....130
- Midwest Regional Children’s Advocacy Center..... 131–132
- Southern Regional Children’s Advocacy Center..... 133–134
- Improving the Juvenile and Family Courts’ Handling of Child Abuse and Neglect Cases: A Model Training and Technical Assistance.....135
- Permanent Families for Abused and Neglected Children: A National Training and Technical Assistance Project..... 136–137
