

Department of Justice

Kids Page

A Web Page for Kids – Designed by

You!!

Who's in charge of the Department of Justice?
Who works for the Department of Justice?
How can I become an FBI agent when I grow up?

What kinds of things does the Department do?
Where is the Department of Justice?
Where can I see pictures of bad guys?

The U.S. Department of Justice is adding a Kids Page where you can learn the answers to these and other questions about the Department of Justice. Since this website is just for kids, we want your help designing it. You and other kids from kindergarten to high school can enter your ideas for the welcome page in a contest. You can draw, write, or use your computer. You can send us the entries by mail or e-mail.

What do I do?

Rules: Anything you submit must be your own original work, created by you. Team projects are welcome (2 or more students — or even a whole class). Team entries are considered one entry and prizes remain the same. All entries must be postmarked by October 31, 1997.

What do I win?

Prizes: Each winning entry and the names of the winning participants will appear as the welcome page for the DoJ Kids Page. Students in kindergarten through high school seniors are eligible and encouraged to participate. Six winners will be chosen and their entries will alternate on the Kids Page homepage.

To Enter:

Just mail or e-mail your entries

address: Computer Services Staff
950 Pennsylvania Ave., NW
Washington, DC 20530

e-mail address: kids.page@usdoj.gov

Contestant Name(s) _____ Age(s) _____

Parent/Guardian Signature _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____

Zip _____

E-mail address (if applicable) _____

By submitting your entry, you agree to allow the Department of Justice unlimited use of your submission. All submissions will become the property of the Department of Justice and will not be returned.