Gentlemen:

For information and possible reference in your next issue, The Preface, (p. iii), offers a summary of this new publication and sketch of the unusual growth of state and local bar association activity in correctional reform.

Single copies may be obtained without cost by request directed to Robert C. Ford, American Bar Association Corrections Commission, 1705 DeSales Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., 20036.

Grant Award #224

Cooperating Agencies:

American Correctional Association

Federal Bureau of Prisons

Joint Commission on Correctional Manpower and Training

The names listed in this directory were gathered in response to our inquiry requesting the identity of those persons in the correctional agency who have the responsibility for training personnel. No attempt was made to delineate between full-time and part-time training responsibility.

The directory is offered for general information as well as identifying correctional trainers. If the state of the art of correctional training is to be improved it must not only have administrative support and appropriate funding, but there must also be an active interchange of ideas, strategies, techniques and resources between correctional agency trainers. Cooperative training ventures between state agencies and the exchange of personnel are also vital to improving personnel skills.

Readers, utilizing this listing for purposes of correspondence, are advised to include a notation such as "Staff Training Program" on the addressed envelope. This should facilitate delivery of the correspondence to the appropriate person in the agency in the event of personnel changes.

The Correctional Training Resource Center acknowledges that the enclosed listing is not complete. Succeeding issues will continue to update the personnel listing as well as all agencies in the correctional system, both juvenile and adult.

We are grateful to all those who responded to our inquiry, and to the Office of Law Enforcement Assistance, U.S. Department of Justice, whose grant award made this Directory of Training Personnel in Correctional Agencies, possible.
