PREFACE

This is the fifteenth report from the Office of Crime Statistics on proceedings in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction in South Australia. These reports complement the Office's regular summaries of juvenile and Higher Criminal Court appearances and offences reported or becoming known to South Australian Police, and its statistics on the operations of the Correctional Services system (see even-numbered reports in the Crime and Justice series).

The Courts of Summary Jurisdiction collection was implemented on 1 January 1979. For the first six months coverage was limited to the Adelaide Magistrate's Court, but from 1 July 1979 scope was extended to cases heard throughout the State. A list of contributor courts is in Appendix C.

In 1982, the system was comprehensively revised. These changes related to cases heard from 1 July 1982 onward. Among the most important were adoption of an Act and Section system of offence-codes, inclusion of restraint orders under Section 99 of the Justices Act (and breaches of these orders), refinement of case-outcome codes and collection of data on previous similar offences by persons charged with drink-driving or drug offences.

To complement the information in these six-monthly reports, the Office of Crime Statistics also provides a specialised information service for members of the legal profession and researchers. Users generally are charged a fee covering computing costs and labour. Details are available from the Office (10th floor, S.G.I.C. Building, 211 Victoria Square, Adelaide - telephone 237 0110).

It would not be possible to provide statistics from Courts of Summary Jurisdiction without the assistance of numerous individuals. Clerks of Court throughout the State have contributed time and effort to collecting data on cases heard in their courts. Within the Office of Crime Statistics, David Burton was responsible for day-to-day management of the system and Valija Kalnins assisted in monitoring the quality of input forms received. The Office's Statistician Adrian Barnett, and Project Officer Julie Gardner undertook the computer analysis of data. Lesley Giles typed the report and the Word Processing Section of the Attorney-General's Department provided assistance with the tables. Clerical officers from the South Australian Police Department coded all information on the backgrounds of defendants.

SUMMARY

- . Between 1 January and 30 June 1986 Courts of Summary Jurisdiction throughout South Australia dealt with 13,903 cases that satisfied criteria for inclusion into the Office of Crime Statistics collection.
- . Drink-driving, driving in a manner dangerous or driving while disqualified represented a quarter of all selected cases.
- . There were nearly three times as many cases involving crimes against property as there were crimes against people in this reporting period.
- . Analysis of data from the past four years show increases in cases related to larceny, drug offences and the issue or breach of restraint orders.
- . An outcome of guilty to either the major or lesser charge was decided in eight out of ten court cases.
- . The most commonly imposed penalty in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction was a fine, applied to half of all cases; more so in cases involving drug offences (95.8%) or minor street offences (90.0%).
- . Examination of demographic information reveals a profile of the 'average' defendant as aged between eighteen and twenty-four years (51.7%), male (82.6%) and single (64.5%). An exception to this pattern are those charged with shop theft, as several defendants in this category were females in the older age category.
- . Just over half of the defendants appearing on robbery and extortion charges had been previously imprisoned.

PART 1 - OVERVIEW

Introduction

This report provides a statistical overview of criminal matters dealt with in South Australian Criminal Courts of Summary Jurisdiction during the first six months of 1986. Each year, these Summary Courts hear more than 100,000 cases. Because of resource constraints, the Office of Crime Statistics' collection is limited only to a selected range. Relatively minor cases involving such charges as breaches of local authority by-laws and lesser traffic offences have been excluded. Appendix B lists the more significant Acts not included in statistics.

The report also does not extend to matters involving persons under eighteen years of age, whose charges generally are heard and disposed of before Children's Courts or Children's Aid Panels. Statistics on these cases are contained in other Crime and Justice reports (the 'blue' series).

The following pages contain a brief overview of the main trends to emerge in the six months 1 January - 30 June 1986. Detailed tables on these cases are in Part 2. Before analysing these figures it is important to be aware of some background points about court statistics.

Understanding Court Statistics

A key to understanding court statistics is the distinction between court and police figures, and of the phenomenon of unreported crime. Court figures - such as those in this report - count numbers of appearances by alleged offenders who have been arrested or summonsed to answer some charge. Police figures, on the other hand, count the actual number of offences reported or which police themselves have detected. Police figures do not always accurately reflect the incidence of crime. For a variety of reasons - for example the fact that offender and victim were close relatives or friends, or the crime itself was considered trivial, or there was no obvious victim - many crimes do not come to the attention of police. Court figures are even less likely to reflect crime rates because not all offences result in an arrest, or if a person is charged he or she may be dealt with simultaneously for several offences. In addition, times elapsed between the commission of an offence and the final court appearance by a defendant are not always consistent, so it is not possible to argue that court appearances relate to crimes committed during a specific period. Rather than being used as evidence of crime rates, court statistics should be seen as indicators of the way the criminal justice system functions, the characteristics of persons being arrested and the penalties being imposed for various types of offences.

Accuracy and Completeness of the Collection

Every effort is made to ensure that the Courts of Summary Jurisdiction collection is accurate and complete, but caution should be exercised in interpreting some data items - in particular those relating to the backgrounds of individuals appearing. These are based on items in the Police Department's apprehension reports and criminal history files. It is possible that on occasions, persons arrested may give misleading information. Moreover, where the South Australian Police Department did not lay the initial complaint, or where there was no finding of guilty, data on the characteristics of the defendant could not always be recorded. As mentioned earlier, not all criminal offences result in court appearances. Some segments of society, because of their lifestyle and lack of resources, are more vulnerable to prosecution for their offences.

Trends in Appearances

Number of Cases

During the six month period 1 January to 30 June 1986, Courts of Summary Jurisdiction dealt with nearly 14,000 cases that satisfied criteria for inclusion in the Office of Crime Statistics collection. The figure of 13,903 selected cases represents a 6% increase from the previous six months, but is almost identical to the same period in 1985 (13,895 cases).

Types of Cases

The pattern of cases appearing before magistrates is varied; offences are as diverse as serious assault and loitering, rape and driving offences. Table 2.1 in Part 2 of this report groups cases into seventeen broad categories according to the most serious offence charged. The three most common offences between January to June 1986 in descending order were:

- . driving charges, which alone account for nearly one quarter of all the selected cases (25.5%);
- . drug offences (12.4%), and
- . minor street offences (9.4%).

Very few of the total selected cases involve the most serious crimes of violence such as sexual assault (0.6%) or robbery (0.4%).

The Office of Crime Statistics' seventeen offence groups (used in Part 2 of this report) ensure that South Australian data are comparable with interstate collections. For interpretive purposes, however, it is useful to further collapse these categories into four main headings:

1. Crimes against people - includes offences against the person, robbery and sexual offences;
2. Crimes against property - includes break and enter, fraud, theft of vehicles, shop theft, unlawful possession of property and larceny;
3. Drug offences, and
4. Other offences - includes driving, possession of guns, damage property, minor street offences, offences against order, breaches of restraint orders and other categories.

TABLE 1.1 TYPES OF CASES HEARD IN COURTS OF SUMMARY JURISDICTION
1 JANUARY - 30 JUNE 1986

Offence Type	Number	Percentage
Crimes against people	1232	8.9
Crimes against property	3533	25.4
Drug offences	1730	12.4
Other offences	7408	53.3
TOTAL	13903	100.0

As can be seen from Table 1.1 (above), crimes against people comprise less than ten percent of the total cases dealt with in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction. Most of these are common assaults, with just 2.1% relating to major crimes of violence such as serious assault, homicide, robbery and sexual offences.

Trends in Offences

Table 1.2 (over page) shows the number and percentage in each of the Office's seventeen offence groups during the past four years. Trends in appearances for the following offences are worth commenting on:

1. Drug offences;
2. Drunkenness;
3. Restraint orders, and
4. Larceny.

Drug Offences

There has been a significant increase in drug offences heard in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction over the past four years, with numbers rising steadily until 1985/86 where there was a slight decline. Readers should note, however, that court and police statistics do not provide an accurate indicator of the actual occurrence of drug taking in the community. This is because the number of drug offences becoming known to police depends largely on the resources that police devote to detecting this crime. (For further discussion see Courts of Summary Jurisdiction report number 5.) In this respect drug offences differ from other offences (eg. break and enter, assault or robbery), which by their nature are more likely to be reported by citizens to police.

* Drunkenness was decriminalised in September 1984.

In analysing court drug statistics, therefore, it is advisable to concentrate on the types of offences detected and the outcomes and penalties given to defendants so charged. Table 1.3 shows that the majority (95%) of drug cases relate to either cannabis or its derivatives. Very few cases (3.1%) concern heroin. Problems associated with administrative procedures following the introduction of the Controlled Substances Act led to an increase in the number of cases where the type of drug was unknown to court coding staff; this has resulted in a corresponding increase in the 'other drug' category. From the proportion of marijuana cases in previous years however, it can safely be assumed that a high proportion of the 'other drug' category relates to cannabis offences. Table 2.22 in Part 2 of this report provides details on penalties for use, possession or selling offences.

The introduction on 30 April 1987 of cannabis expiation notices - ie. 'on-the-spot' fines for possession or use of small amounts of marijuana - should reduce the total number of cases before Courts of Summary Jurisdiction. However for reasons canvassed in the following section, it cannot be assumed that this effect will persist in the long term.

Drunkenness

Drunkenness ceased to be an offence in September 1984. As Table 1.2 shows, drunkenness charges used to account for 13% of total selected cases in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction. The removal of this offence from the Statutes should have resulted in a consequent reduction, by about the same proportion, in the total number of cases heard in the courts. As the recent yearly totals indicate however, the expected decrease has not been sustained. Instead of falling to a yearly total of approximately 23,500, the number of selected cases remains at a similar, if not higher, level as before decriminalisation.

One possible explanation for the maintenance of total caseloads is that behaviour which previously had resulted in a charge of drunkenness now is leading to arrests for other minor 'street' offences such as disorderly behaviour. If this has occurred, however, the number of minor street offences would be expected to have increased. In fact this category also has fallen (for further discussion of this point see the Office's Research Bulletin number 4, Decriminalising Drunkenness in South Australia).

This means that the takeup in additional Summary Court matters to offset the decriminalising of drunkenness has been in apparently unrelated offence-categories such as larceny and damage property (see Table 1.2). While a small part of the increase in larceny matters could be due to a rise in offences reported and changes in jurisdiction (see discussion of larceny below) it nonetheless seems remarkable that despite a major law reform, the South Australian Courts of Summary Jurisdiction have retained such a high degree of workload stability. United States research (eg. Malcolm M. Feeley, The Process is the Punishment, New York, Sage, 1979) has proposed that as a general principle, lower courts systems will tend to conserve an equilibrium of workloads and procedures even in the face of major reforms. Perhaps this theory needs to be explored further in the Australian context, examining factors that may influence summary justice workloads such as changes in patterns of enforcement, laying of charges, prosecution practices and sentencing.

Restraint Orders

Restraint orders were first made part of the Justices Act in South Australia in 1982 in an effort to improve legal remedies for domestic violence. A restraint order can be imposed by the court if a potential victim or a police officer can show good cause that it is necessary to prevent any individual from performing certain acts such as damaging property or causing personal injury. There has been a steady increase in restraint orders issued during the past four years, suggesting that both the general public and the police are becoming increasingly aware of their usefulness and of procedures required to initiate them.

Larceny

During the last four years, total cases in the larceny category, which includes all thefts other than shoplifting and theft of or from a motor vehicle, have risen by 87.4%. Simple larceny cases reported or becoming known to police went up by 30% during the same period (see Table 1.4, opposite page) and therefore it is unlikely that the extra Summary Court workload can be attributed solely to a rise in crimes reported or cleared. Another possible explanation is that the jurisdiction of the Summary Courts has been extended: provisions in the Jurisdiction of Courts Act (1981) which took effect in 1982, allowed a wider range of larcenies involving alleged amounts up to $2,000 to be dealt with summarily rather than in a Higher Criminal Court. Review of data from the Supreme and District Criminal Courts, however, indicates that while the lower courts have been dealing with an extra seven to eight hundred cases, the Higher Courts' workload of larceny matters since 1982/83 has fallen at most by thirty to forty per year. It seems, then, that the increase in larceny matters can be explained neither by an increase in crime or clear-up rates nor by an extension of the Summary Courts' powers to deal with these matters. Perhaps the change should be attributed simply to a greater tendency for relevant authorities to prosecute these types of matters instead of dealing with them outside the court system. If this is the explanation, then trends in the larceny category provide a good example of the tendency of the justice system to preserve workload equilibrium.

Case Outcomes and Penalties

Outcomes

Tables 2.1 through to 2.35 contain statistics on outcomes of cases, showing both major offence charged and the most severe penalty imposed for the major charge convicted. Explanatory notes on these tables are included in the appendices to this report, and readers are advised to consult these notes before attempting to draw conclusions from the tables.

The majority (83%) of cases heard in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction involve defendants found guilty of either the major charge (81.4%) or a lesser charge (1.6%). Of the remaining seventeen percent of cases

3.1% are committed for trial or sentence to a Higher Criminal Court, 13.6% are withdrawn or dismissed, and only 0.1% are actually acquitted, that is, found not guilty. It is worth noting that some of the indictable cases withdrawn or dismissed may involve matters subsequently brought back to court when more evidence has been gathered.

Table 1.5 (below) provides a breakdown of the number of cases proven or committed (ie. found guilty of some offence or committed to a Higher Criminal Court) for each of the four main offence groups. There were a total of 11,984 cases (86.2%) proven or committed between January and June 1986. Crimes against people have the lowest percentage of matters in this category (66.0%), while drug offences have the highest (90.6%).

Percentage	66.0	82.6	90.6	90.3	86.2
TOTAL CASES	1232	3533	1730	7408	13903

Penalties

The penalty most frequently imposed on defendants convicted in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction is a monetary fine. A fine is the most serious penalty in just over half of all relevant cases (50.8%), with values ranging from $5.00 to $24,040 (a customs offence). The average fine amount for all cases is $162, $21 more than in the previous six months and $46 more than the same period in 1985.

A fine is overwhelmingly the most popular penalty for drug crimes (95.8%) and minor street offences (90.0%). Table 1.6 (opposite page) shows the average fine amount for these two categories during the past three and a half years. While the average fine for drug offences has risen only slightly there has been a significant increase since July 1985 in fine amounts for minor street offences. In fact fines for street offences increased by 136.6% between 1983 and 1986 (see Figure 1.1, opposite page).

1 JANUARY 1983 - 30 JUNE 1986

TABLE 1.6 AVERAGE FINE AMOUNT FOR 'MINOR STREET' AND 'DRUG' OFFENCES,
1 JANUARY 1983 - 30 JUNE 1986

Offence Type	1 Jan.- 30 June 1983	1 July- 31 Dec. 1983	1 Jan.- 30 June 1984	1 July- 31 Dec. 1984	1 Jan.- 30 June 1985	1 July- 31 Dec. 1985	1 Jan.- 30 June 1986
Drug Offences	$116	$121	$108	$113	$118	$111	$121
Minor Street Offences	$ 41	$ 40	$ 41	$ 42	$ 47	$ 76	$ 97

Even allowing for inflation, this means that penalties for street offences have undergone a real change: the Consumer Price Index rose by only 21% during the same period. However much of the increase can be explained by amendments to the Summary Offences Act which took effect in July 1985. These lifted the maximum fine for offences such as disorderly behaviour, offensive language and indecent behaviour - previously unaltered since 1953 - from $100 to $1,000. Clearly, the Summary Courts responded to these changes: average fines for minor street offences increased quite dramatically between 1984/85 and 1985/86. In effect then, the real changes in fine amounts for street offences which have occurred during the last three years mainly reflect a "catch up" in penalty structures which had previously been untouched for thirty years.

The next most commonly imposed penalty is suspension of driver's licence: an outcome which is consistent with the number of driving offences going through Courts of Summary Jurisdiction.

Although fines and suspended driver's licences were the most common penalties overall, percentages vary with the different types of offences (see Table 1.7, below). Of defendants convicted in the Summary Courts for crimes against people, over a third are sentenced to imprisonment. Most of the fines in this category relate to common assaults.

Background of Defendants

Tables 2.36 to 2.43 contain details on the background of defendants appearing in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction between 1 January and 30 June 1986. Unfortunately information on some defendants, especially those issued with restraint orders, is missing because details on persons who are the subject of restraint orders generally are not kept in police records.

Readers also should be aware that there may be some "double counting" in these statistics, which are based on appearances rather than distinct individuals. People who appeared on two or more occasions and for separate offences during the reporting period will have their background details included each time in tables 2.36 to 2.43.

Gender

Although most defendants (82.6%) were male, the proportion varies according to the type of offence. Over a third of all fraud offenders (35.3%), and more than half (55.5%) of the defendants charged with shop theft were female. By contrast, females account for only 5% of defendants charged with break and enter. For every 1,000 adult females only 3.9 appear in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction during any six-month period, compared to 19.3 out of every 1,000 adult males.

Table 1.8 shows the rates of apprehensions (ie. alleged offenders arrested or reported) per 100,000 population for males and females since 1973 for two types of offences, break and enter and fraud (figures taken from The Size of the Crime Problem in Australia, Australian Institute of Criminology, Canberra, 1987).

Rates both for males and females have increased during this period. The most significant rise has been for females involved in fraud offences.

Age

The average (mean) age of all defendants is 28.3 years, with females (average age 31.2 years) tending to be older than males (average age 27.7). This is mainly due to the preponderance of older females involved in shop theft cases, in which 14.5% were aged sixty and over, a figure at variance with the pattern for all other offences. The most common age group for Summary Court defendants is the five years between twenty and twenty-four, with nearly a third of all appearances being by people in this age group. The rate of appearances per 1,000 age specific population is 50.2 per 1,000 for 18-19 year olds, 32.0 for 20 to 24 year olds, then a steady decline to 1.3 per 1,000 for persons aged over sixty years.

Employment and Marital Status

Just under half of all defendants appearing in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction are employed (46.7%). Unemployed people however, appear at ten times the rate of those who are employed (114.0 for every 1,000 unemployed compared to 11.4 per 1,000 employed persons). Robbery, break and enter, theft of vehicle and larceny offences all have significantly more unemployed defendants than employed, although the reverse is true for offences against the person, sexual offences, drug offences and driving offences. Only one in five Summary Court defendants is married with most being single (64.5%). Shop theft is the one offence where the proportion of married and single defendants is nearly equal, (38.9% and 42.4% respectively).

Place of Birth and Residence

Over three quarters of defendants (77.8%) were born in Australia with a further ten percent being from the United Kingdom. Apart from Aborigines, New Zealanders have the highest rate of appearances in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction: 25.5 per 1,000 adult population. Although the rate of appearances by Aboriginal people is high at 191.5 per 1,000 adult population, persons from this racial group mainly appear for minor offences. One in four aboriginal defendants (25.4%) appear on charges relating to minor street offences, while only 3.1% appear for drug offences (compared to 16.1% of non-aborigines).

Among the local government areas in metropolitan South Australia, Elizabeth had the highest rate of appearances in Courts of Summary Jurisdiction at 33.6 per 1,000 adult residents. Hindmarsh, Munno Parra and Enfield also have comparatively high rates: 26.4, 23.7 and 23.2 per 1,000 respectively. In country areas Port Augusta (34.4) and Whyalla (26.6) have the higher rates of appearances per 1,000 population.

Previous Convictions

Table 2.44 shows the number, if any, of a defendant's prior convictions and whether they had ever served a prison sentence. The robbery and extortion group has the highest percentage of defendants with one or more prior imprisonments (51.9%), as well as the largest average number of previous convictions (16.5).

The Court Process

Tables 2.45 to 2.47 briefly review some aspects of the court process: final plea, bail status and legal representation. Only 5.4% of defendants were held in custody at their final Court of Summary Jurisdiction appearance. For defendants charged with robbery or break and enter however, the proportion remanded in custody rises to 28.8% and 25.9% respectively.

Legal Representation at Final Court Appearance

Among court cases disposed of in one hearing, two thirds of the defendants (67.2%) have not obtained legal representation. This contrasts with committed cases that will eventually be finalised in a Higher Court; only 3.3% of these defendants are not legally represented.

Plea at Final Court Appearance

Nearly three quarters (74.6%) of defendants plead guilty to their major charge and only 3.1% plead not guilty. The remaining 22.3% are involved in committal cases or cases which are withdrawn, and are not required to enter a plea. The majority (85.4%) of defendants involved in committals do not plead at the Summary Court stage. Once they appear at either a Supreme or District Criminal Court, approximately 62% plead guilty to the major charge, 22% plead not guilty and 16% enter no plea because the major charge is withdrawn by the Crown (based on July-December 1985 figures).

PART 3 – APPENDICES

APPENDIX A - EXPLANATORY NOTES ON TABLES

(1) The Courts of Summary Jurisdiction Data Collection

A form for each defendant involved in a case finalised in a Criminal Court of Summary Jurisdiction and which involved at least one charge falling within the Office's collections (see Appendix B) is coded by Court Services Department staff onto a data collection form, (see Appendix D). This form is then sent to the Office of Crime Statistics. The first 23 questions contain information derived from court files, which is punched and added to a data base.

The second half of the form relates to the defendant's social background and previous convictions, and is sent on to the Police Department for completion. After being returned from the Police Department and punched, this information also is merged with the data base.

(2) Definitions

- (i) Offence Categories: Offence categories are based on the Act and Section under which the defendant was charged (contact Office of Crime Statistics for a detailed list of offences under each code).
- (ii) Major charge: The 'major charge' in tables 2.1 to 2.18 is the major offence for which a defendant was charged or convicted. This is determined by the following procedures.
 - (a) Out of the charges, if any, for which the defendant was convicted, select the one which received the highest penalty. If two charges received the same (highest) penalty, select the one for which the highest maximum penalty is prescribed in the statutes. If all statutory penalties are the same, select the first charge listed on the coded form. The charge selected by this method is the 'major charge convicted'.

(b) Out of the charges, if any, for which the defendant was not convicted, select the one with the highest maximum statutory penalty. If two or more charges not convicted have the same maximum statutory penalty, select the first listed on the coded form. The charge selected by this method is the 'major charge not convicted'.

(c) From the 'major charge convicted' and the 'major charge not convicted', select the charge which has the highest maximum statutory penalty. If the 'major charge convicted' and the 'major charge not convicted' have the same maximum statutory penalty select the major charge convicted. The charge selected by these rules becomes the major charge.

(iii) Offence Type: To enable broad comparisons, offences have been grouped into seventeen major types (see Table 2.1). Tables 2.2 to 2.18 show which specific offence-codes are contained in each of these broad categories.

The category 'Restraint Orders and Breaches' refer to restraint orders laid under Section 99 of the Justices Act which came into effect on 3 June 1982, and to breaches of these orders. Note that details of breaches refer to the nature of the original order, rather than the circumstances of the breach (eg. 'Breach, Assault Female' refers to breach of an order originally imposed after an alleged assault on a female).

(iv) Outcomes: In Tables 2.1 to 2.18 the case outcome is defined as follows.

- . Committed for trial or sentence: The defendant was committed for trial or sentence in the Supreme or District Criminal Court (see Crime and Justice reports for details of penalties, etc. in these cases).
- . Convicted with penalty/without penalty: The defendant was found guilty and a criminal conviction recorded. In most of these cases a penalty is awarded, but in some no penalty is imposed but the defendant pays court costs.
- . Guilty without conviction: The defendant was found guilty but no conviction was recorded. In these circumstances the defendant can be given a penalty, such as a bond, but not a monetary fine (see Section 4 of the Offenders Probation Act).

- . Guilty of lesser offence: The defendant was found not guilty of the major charge but guilty of a lesser offence and a sentence was handed down.
- . Acquitted on major charge: The defendant pleaded not guilty to the major charge and was acquitted.
- . Major charge withdrawn: The major charge was withdrawn by the complainant.
- . Major charge dismissed: The magistrate decided, after hearing the evidence, that there was no case to answer and dismissed the charge.
- . Other (eg. 'defendant died'): The case was finalised when the defendant died or was found to be unfit to plead.

(v) Plea: A defendant can enter:

- . a guilty plea: in these cases a defendant may be found guilty (with or without a conviction recorded) in the Court of Summary Jurisdiction, or may be committed for sentence in the Supreme or District Criminal Court.
- . a guilty 4A plea: in these cases the defendant sends the court a 'Guilty 4A' form which admits guilt, and sentence is passed without the defendant being required to appear in court (see Section 57A of the Justices Act for details of this procedure).
- . a not guilty plea: in these cases a trial takes place before a magistrate who determines both outcome and sentence, or if the defendant wishes to be tried before a judge he or she can be committed for trial in the Supreme or District Criminal Court.
- . no plea: in these cases the complainant has withdrawn the charge, or a magistrate finds no case to answer, or the defendant has 'reserved' his or her defence and been committed to the Supreme or District Criminal Court.

(vi) Penalty: Once a defendant has been found guilty, the following penalties - listed in order of severity - may be imposed:

- . immediate imprisonment
- . suspended imprisonment
- . bond with supervision
- . bond without supervision
- . community service order (as part of a bond)
- . suspension of driver's licence
- . monetary fine
- . other order (eg. restitution, confiscation of drugs)
- . sentenced to the rising of the court
- . no penalty

(vii) Major Penalty: The major penalty is the most severe penalty handed down (see above for order of severity).

(3) Tables

Tables 2.1 - 2.18 Case Outcome and Major Charge

For each court appearance which was finalised during the six month period covered in this report, only the outcome for the major charge is recorded (see earlier definition of major charge).

Each table refers to appearances by individual defendants. For example, if four co-defendants were tried and convicted jointly for an offence which they committed together, each would be recorded separately in the case outcome and sentencing tables. An individual tried or sentenced on two separate occasions within the same reporting period would be recorded twice. It also is possible that in some instances (namely committals) the Crown may have formulated charges against an individual, withdrawn them, but then subsequently re-charged the same person for the same or additional offences. These cases also would appear more than once in the tables.

Table 2.1 is a summary and tables 2.2 to 2.18 give a breakdown for each offence type.

Where defendants have not been convicted on the major charge but were convicted on another less serious charge, the number of cases involving lesser charges is shown in brackets. Some of those 'lesser' charges may be for offences in groups other than the major charge - eg. a person charged with assault (an offence against the person) may eventually be found guilty only of offensive language.

In such instances cases are shown in the penalty tables for the offence group which they were convicted. Thus in the example given the case would appear in the outcome tables for offences against the person, but in the penalty tables for minor street offences. This is a change from reports prior to July - December 1985, in which cases always appeared in the same offence group for both outcome and penalty tables. This means that it is no longer possible to compare totals in corresponding outcome and penalty tables except for overall totals in the two summary tables (Tables 2.1 and 2.19).

Tables 2.19 - 2.35 Major Penalty for Major Charge Convicted

For each defendant convicted, the most serious penalty is recorded (order of severity given in Section 2, (vi)). The numbers receiving each type of penalty are recorded, as well as the minimum, average (mean), and maximum for direct imprisonment (weeks) and monetary fines ($'s).

Table 2.19 is a summary table for each offence type and tables 2.20 to 2.35 give a breakdown for offences within each offence type. There are no penalty tables for the Sexual Offences group since these cases were preliminary committal hearings.

Tables 2.36 - 2.37 Penalties for defendants convicted of Driving with more than the Prescribed Content of Alcohol (PCA)

These two tables summarise the penalties imposed, and blood alcohol content, of persons convicted of PCA offences. Blood alcohol content (BAC) is broken down into: 0.08 up to 0.10; 0.10 up to 0.15; 0.15 up to 0.20; 0.20 up to 0.25; 0.25 and over, and Unknown BAC.

Table 2.36 gives the penalties for all defendants and table 2.37 for those who have had no prior convictions for drink drive offences.

Tables 2.38 to 2.43 Sex, Age, Occupation, Marital Status, Country of Birth and Residence of the Defendant

One entry appears in each of these tables for each appearance by a defendant. These background items refer to the status of the defendant at the time of arrest (as recorded by the Police Department). The country of birth table distinguishes defendants with aboriginal backgrounds from all other persons born in Australia. The group 'Australia Unspecified' denotes that the defendant was born in Australia, but that the particular State was not recorded. Residences of defendants are grouped into Local Government Areas in Metropolitan Adelaide (Table 2.42) and non Metropolitan Adelaide (Table 2.43).

Table 2.44 Prior Convictions of defendant

For each appearance by a defendant, a summary is given of previous convictions and previous imprisonment. Only for defendants with less than 10 previous convictions is the actual number of convictions recorded. For those with 10 or more, the numbers are rounded upward to the nearest 10 (ie. 10 = 10, 11 = 20). Defendants with 90 or more previous convictions are recorded as 90.

Table 2.45 - 2.46 Bail Status and Legal Representation of Defendant.

'Bail Status' is at the final court appearance. For defendants with only one court hearing, therefore, this refers to police bail. For those with two or more hearings the bail status has been accorded by the court. 'Legal Representation' refers to whether the defendant was legally represented at the final court appearance. The term 'Duty Solicitor' refers to solicitors rostered to service courts under the Law Society's Duty Solicitor Scheme. 'Other' legal representation refers to solicitors from legal aid organisations and private solicitors. Tables 2.45 and 2.46 distinguish between cases which required only one court hearing, those needing two or more court appearances, and defendants committed for trial or sentence.

Table 2.47 Offence Type and Final Plea

The 'Final Plea' refers to the plea entered to the major charge at the final court appearance. This can be either 'Guilty', 'Guilty 4A', 'Not Guilty' or 'No Plea'. Table 2.47 distinguishes pleas given by defendants committed for trial or sentence.

Australian Bureau of Statistics Population Statistics

Tables 2.38 - 2.43 give a rate of appearances per 1,000 in the relevant South Australian population (eg. Aborigines, unemployed people, etc.). The population figures used in calculating these rates are derived from the 1981 Census.
