INTRODUCTION

It is easy to forget that behind domestic violence and sexual assault statistics are real people who have faced nightmarish situations and done whatever they could to survive and heal. The following quotes from those who have experienced domestic violence and sexual assault illustrate the pain that these victims have suffered and the importance of providing services to protect victims and assist them in overcoming the trauma they have experienced.

There were times when he was very sorry and said it would never happen again, and it always did. I had black eyes, disconnected shoulders, bruises all over my body ... I also had bald spots on my head from all the hair yanking. -- a domestic violence victim

It is my strong belief that if a shelter for battered women had been around when my husband first started abusing me, my children and I would not have had to suffer all the damage and years of hell we have been through. -- a domestic violence victim

To blame victims for crime is like analyzing the cause of World War II and asking, "What was Pearl Harbor doing in the Pacific, anyway?" -- a victim

This experience brought me closer to death than one could ever imagine, not only because of the gun, but because of the rape itself. I felt ashamed, and I thought I wanted to die. My heart felt like it was going to burst. Crying and talking with people I could trust helped to relieve the pressures. I needed to share feelings with people who would keep my secret for however long I needed them to. -- a sexual assault victim

He's a very good liar. He looks very sincere. He promises anything you want to hear. He promises that he will do anything, lots of tears and, 'I'm so sorry, and I love these children, I would never do it again ...' You want to believe that it's just a mistake, but it's not a mistake. -- a domestic violence victim

He would have stopped the violence long before if the police had arrested him in the beginning. In the beginning, he was afraid of police. He was afraid of going to jail and losing his job. But when he saw that the police were not going to touch him, he came right back and the violence got worse, and he got bolder. -- a domestic violence victim

It was such an extreme experience having actually been arrested and dealt with rather harshly ... that I sought help. -- a former abuser

My daughter dreaded the confrontation with the man at trial. How would she react when she had to sit near him, walk by him, look at him? -- a victim's mother

When one has been brutally attacked and injured, even a friendly and understanding voice on the phone can help overcome some of the sense of physical and psychological helplessness brought on by being a victim. -- a sexual assault victim

I feel a person who is the abuser should be taken out of the home, not the one who's being abused. -- a domestic violence victim

My daughter had been abused not only by her father but by a criminal justice system entangled in its own ambiguities. -- a victim's mother

All the above quotes were taken from the Final Report, U. S. Attorney General's Task Force on Family Violence, published September 1984, and the President's Task Force on Victims of Crime, published December 1982. These task forces heard testimony from victims from all parts of the United States.

While the above quotes were taken from hearings held all over the country, they are also representative of the voices of victims in Alaska. Domestic violence and sexual assault are staggering problems in Alaska. Results of a University of Alaska study and data from the FBI and Alaskan State Agencies show that:

26% of the adult women living in Alaska have been abused by a spouse or live-in partner at some time during their adult lives; 10.2% had been abused during the past year¹.

63.3% of the women abused during the past year and 34.5% of those abused during their lifetime reported that their children had also been abused¹.

Most of the abused women were abused at least once a month¹.

At least 13,200 Alaskan women have required medical treatment by a doctor or hospital for injuries sustained by abuse¹.

According to information collected by the Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault, there have been at least 17 deaths which were directly related to domestic violence in 1987. This data includes non-justifiable homicides by people who are related to the victim or are maintaining a boyfriend/girlfriend relationship, offenders who commit suicide after murdering their relatives, friends who are killed during these incidents, and justifiable homicides where a victim has killed her abuser.

20% of all murders in Alaska in 1986 were the result of domestic violence².

In Alaska, 31% of the female murder victims were killed by their husbands, ex-husbands, or boyfriends².

Alaska has led the nation in reported rape per capita in nine of the last ten years (1977-1986). In 1986, Alaska's forcible rape rate was 72.7/100,000 inhabitants, almost twice the national average of 37.5/100,000³. Also, it must be understood that the FBI reports only those rapes where the victim is female and the rape is committed forcibly, which, by their definition, excludes many child sexual assaults.

Reported cases of child sexual assault have skyrocketed. In FY80, the Division of Family and Youth Services had 185 suspected and adjudicated cases of child sexual assault. Seven years later, in FY87, that number (1,251) was almost seven times higher⁴. Since the Division of Family and Youth Services is mandated to provide protective services to children who have been abused by a person who is responsible for the child's welfare, these figures do not generally include cases of child sexual assault committed by non-family members and others not responsible for the child's welfare.

In and of themselves, these statistics demonstrate the need for services provided by domestic violence and sexual assault programs. However, in light of the present downturn in the state's economy, we can anticipate the need for these services will grow significantly. Increased unemployment, less disposable family income, and a reduction in available community resources are all likely to contribute to the need for additional domestic violence and sexual assault services.

In FY87, Council funded programs provided 36,761 nights of safety to victims and their children. Utilization of shelter in FY87 was 140% of FY83 levels, but those receiving services represent only the tip of the iceberg. It is estimated in the University of Alaska's study "Domestic Violence in Alaska: Women's Attitudes and Experiences" that only 11.1% of the abused women in Alaska have ever utilized a shelter or safe home. Clearly, more needs to be done to help those who are unable to avail themselves of services.

Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault programs provide safety and emotional support for victims during times of extreme trauma after a rape or beating, and help them assess their options when it seems they have nowhere to turn. These programs also teach batterers non-violent ways to resolve conflict, and go into the schools to teach children that they have the right to say no to an adult who is abusing them, and that they can report the abuse and get help. They also train police officers in the sensitive and effective handling of these cases, advocate for victims, and coordinate with District Attorneys, mental health centers, alcohol programs and social workers to better serve victims and their families.

The Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault serves as a funding and coordinating agency for domestic violence and sexual assault services. This report outlines the accomplishments of the Council from January 1987 to December 1987, describes Council funded programs, presents statistical data gathered from programs in FY87, and identifies issues of concern and possible solutions.

MAJOR COUNCIL INITIATIVES IN 1987

1. Coordination

Coordination with local, state and national agencies is a priority. The Council has four state members representing the Departments of Law, Education, Public Safety and Health and Social Services. The makeup of the Council encourages coordination by combining fiscal and programmatic resources.

A major coordination activity that occurred in 1987 was the completion of the inter-departmental child sexual abuse agreement signed by the Departments of Law, Public Safety, Health and Social Services, Corrections and the Governor.

The Council worked with the Departments of Health and Social Services, Education and Community and Regional Affairs and the Legislature to develop information and a presentation to the House Health, Education and Social Services Committee for the "Week of the Child". This and other efforts led to Governor Cowper establishing the Governor's Interim Commission on Children and Youth. The Executive Director of the Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault represents the Department of Public Safety on the Children's Commission, which has chosen family violence as one of the issues on which to focus.

Through a Reimbursable Services' Agreement with the Department of Corrections, the Council funded and monitored prison batterers' programs in Juneau, Fairbanks and Nome. The focus of these programs is to offer inmates, especially those convicted of violent crimes or who were victimized themselves, with anger control counseling, both individual and group, and to provide alternatives to violence. Following are the amounts of funding provided to each program in FY88:

Facility	Program Name	Amount Funded
*Fairbanks Correctional Center	WICCA	$29,372
*Lemon Creek Correction Center and Glacier Manor Halfway House	MEN, Inc.	$42,813
*Nome Correctional Center	BSWG	$20,815

In addition to routine coordination activities, the Council and its staff also:

* Co-sponsored and provided fiscal and planning support for the Annual Institute on Family Violence conducted by the University of Alaska, Center for Alcohol and Addiction Studies.

* Worked with the Alaska Network on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault on program planning, coordination and legislation.

* Assisted in planning for and participated in a Conference on Interpersonal Violence for Region X, sponsored by the U.S. Public Health Service, which was held in Seattle in September, 1987.

* Coordinated funding processes with the Department of Health and Social Services and Municipality of Anchorage, particularly for programs receiving funds from the Social Services Block Grant.

* Worked with the Department of Education on child abuse reporting requirements for teachers.

2. Planning of services for victims of domestic violence or sexual assault, their families and perpetrators of domestic violence and sexual assault

The Council finalized a five-year work plan in 1986, and has conducted annual reviews of the plan to assess accomplishment of goals and objectives.

In 1987 the Council initiated a Planning Guide for Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Services. This document, when completed, will identify minimum recommended levels of service by community size, elements of a comprehensive domestic violence and sexual assault service system and will provide service descriptions.

3. Public Meetings and Hearings

The Council held 5 meetings in 1987. Council meetings are advertised and open to the public.

4. Staffing and budget

The Council maintained a full time Executive Director, Program Coordinator and Statistical Technician through 1987. Due to lack of funding, the Secretary position was filled with a temporary Clerk Typist for only five months.

In FY87, the Council expended the following:

PERSONNEL:

for the Council Office $174,100

TRAVEL:

to fund program evaluations, and Council Meetings (7 Council members and staff) $18,500

CONTRACTUAL SERVICES:

to fund basic telephone, printing,
word processing, copying, etc. $28,500

SUPPLIES AND MATERIALS:

To purchase Council office supplies and films and domestic violence and sexual assault pamphlets for distribution $3,600

GRANTS:

grants to community based programs $4,154,800

The FY87 revised budget, which reduced the Council's administrative budget by 12.5%, necessitated reducing the Secretary's position to $\frac{1}{2}$ time, employees taking voluntary leave without pay, decreasing the number of programs evaluated from 23 to 15, reducing printing of domestic violence and sexual assault materials and decreasing money spent on program and administrative supplies.

Besides the state general funds in the Council's FY87 budget, there were $225,000 in federal funds ($175,000 from the Victims of Crime Act and $50,000 from the Family Violence Prevention Services Act) and $100,000 from a Reimbursable Services Agreement from the Department of Corrections to fund and administer batterers' programs in prisons.

5. Capital and Special Grants

In July, 1987 the Council received and administered three capital grants. Tundra Women's Coalition in Bethel received $35,000 for leveling and painting the shelter building; Women in Crisis - Counseling and Assistance in Fairbanks received $14,000 for roof repairs and fire escape security and Women in Safe Homes in Ketchikan received $25,000 to renovate the shelter to make it accessible to persons with physical disabilities and to meet fire, safety, and sanitation codes. The WICCA building repairs have been completed; the other two grants are in progress. Only one capital grant awarded before 1987 has not been completed. In 1985, AWARE, Inc. received $75,000 to install a sprinkler system in the shelter and pave the driveway and parking lot. The paving has been completed and bids have been received for the sprinkler system.

6. Development of educational materials on the cause, prevention and treatment of domestic violence and sexual assault

The Council makes its film library available and distributes pamphlets, upon request, to any agency in Alaska. Materials that are routinely distributed are the Council's Sexual Assault Curriculum and attendant video tapes for grades K-6 and 7-12 and the booklet "Village to Village" as well as its accompanying video tape.

In 1987 the Council published the Child Sexual Abuse Agreement Manual, which establishes general guidelines for coordination among the four state departments with the most significant responsibilities relating to child abuse. In addition, the Council published a manual for the development of safe homes which was written by South Peninsula Women's Services. under contract to the Council. Both manuals have been distributed statewide and additional copies are available from the Council.

7. Data System

The Council developed and implemented a standardized data collection system for its funded programs in July, 1982. For various reasons, including inadequate staffing and computer equipment, the system was not fully functional until FY87. In FY87, current data was entered for all programs. Computer reports were distributed to programs and anyone else requesting the information. In addition, data about clients who began receiving services prior to FY87 and continue to receive services were entered onto the computer to provide more statistical information regarding continuing clients. A new client intake form for prison batterers' clients was developed in an effort to provide more relevant information regarding these clients. The data system was improved and modified to take advantage of software upgrades, as well as changes in reporting requirements from other agencies. The Council office provided statistical information to state, federal and local agencies as requested.

8. Regulations

The Council has adopted regulations for grants' administration and program standards. Regulations for grants' administration were simplified and clarified by the Council in FY87.

9. Evaluations and Audits

The Council staff monitored all funded programs through written fiscal and narrative reports. Due to a reduction in travel and personnel funds, the Council made a decision not to conduct yearly evaluations for those programs which had been in existence for three years, received good evaluations for three years, have no known problems and have maintained the same director for at least a year. On-site program evaluations were conducted for 15 programs in 1987.

On-site evaluations of programs funded by the Council were conducted by the Program Coordinator or the Executive Director and averaged 2½ days per program. Each evaluation included interviews with program staff and volunteers, relevant community agencies, clients and the governing board. The program's policy and procedure manuals, client files, and other materials pertinent to compliance with State regulations and grant award conditions were reviewed. As a result of each on-site visit, a report outlining findings and making recommendations for change was written.

10. Technical Assistance

The Council provides domestic violence and sexual assault information to any group or individual requesting it. The Council and its staff understand the importance of assisting community groups and programs, particularly in rural areas, in improving services to meet local needs. On-site technical assistance visits were made this year by Council staff to Kodiak Women's Resource and Crisis Center and the City of Hooper Bay.

COUNCIL FUNDED PROGRAMS

The Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault funded twenty community programs in FY88 for a total of $4,304,500. This is a loss of $313,400 in state general funds to community grants from FY86 levels. This cut was mitigated somewhat by the receipt of $203,000 in Federal funds ($153,000 from the Victims of Crime Act and $50,000 from the Family Violence Prevention Services Act). However, there have also been decreases in local funding sources, due to the declining Alaskan economy. Decreased funding has caused programs to reduce the services they offer, at a time when the need for services may be expected to increase due to the stress resulting from economic conditions.

Domestic violence and sexual assault programs funded by the Council provide many services to victims of domestic violence and sexual assault, their families, batterers, and the communities they serve. These programs and the comprehensive range of services they provide are crucial in helping victims and their families survive the trauma caused by domestic violence and sexual assault. Shelters and safe homes provide safety for victims in life threatening situations and their children. Crisis lines and crisis counseling assist them in dealing with the immediate trauma caused by violence. However, these safety and crisis services do not sufficiently address the problems of domestic violence and sexual assault. Victims of domestic violence and sexual assault also need support when they go to the hospital or when they interact with the criminal justice system. These experiences are often overwhelming, particularly for people who have recently suffered a major trauma. Many victims do not know about available resources to assist them in reshaping their lives. They need information about, referrals to and, often, advocacy in getting financial and other support. They also need emotional support to allow them to gain self-esteem and strength.

Providing safety and crisis services and assisting and supporting victims is crucial, but it is not enough to stop the cycle of violence. Children's programs are needed, so children can learn that aggression is not an appropriate pattern of behavior. Children from violent homes often experience emotional, psychological and physical problems. They need support, advocacy and counseling so they may grow up to be healthy, happy adults. Victims of child sexual assault and non-offending family members need intervention services to help them with the crisis when abuse has been disclosed. They also need ongoing support during an investigation or trial as well as long term treatment to reduce the trauma of abuse.

Programs for batterers are also needed. Experience shows that many battered women return to the violent relationship for several reasons, including the lack of sufficient financial resources to live independently. Without counseling for the batterer, violence in these relationships becomes more frequent and severe, often resulting in death. Even if the victim leaves a violent relationship, the offender will carry the pattern of violence to the next relationship unless new behaviors are learned.

Communities as a whole must be educated to realize that domestic violence and sexual assault are totally unacceptable. People in all situations should understand the underlying causes of domestic violence and sexual assault and work toward eradicating behaviors that contribute to these problems. Helping agencies and law enforcement entities need to be informed of the dynamics and causes of domestic violence and sexual assault and be aware of appropriate techniques for intervention and prevention.

Following is a list of programs funded by the Council in FY88, grant amounts, a comparison with FY87 funding, and a synopsis of the services provided by each program.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE/SEXUAL ASSAULT ISSUES OF CONCERN

1. Legislative Issue: Civil Compromise

The Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault supports HB 122, "An Act Relating to the Authority to Compromise Certain Misdemeanors," which prohibits civil compromises in cases of domestic violence. Under existing law, a misdemeanor, except under certain circumstances, can be ordered dismissed by the court if the defendant and victim reach a civil compromise (in other words, if the defendant pays the victim money in recompense, even a nominal amount). Battered women, young children and elderly parents are often in extremely vulnerable positions. The victim may be dependent upon the offender for food, shelter, and emotional support, and therefore could easily be threatened or coerced. The abuse of women, children, and the elderly is an offense against every member of a civilized society; it is not a "private dispute" for which a civil compromise is appropriate.

2. Legislative Issue: Confidentiality

The Council supports legislation which makes victim counseling legally privileged and not subject to defense discovery or subpoena. This type of legislation is important because it protects victims from further abuse by the system. If the confidential communications exchanged between victims and counselors during treatment can be used as evidence in criminal proceedings, counseling may not benefit victims, and, in fact, may add to their trauma. Victims often speak to their counselors about fears and feelings arising from the crime. Those who are under the impression that they are revealing such information solely for therapeutic purposes often feel betrayed when their counselors are compelled to disclose their communication before the public at an open trial. Victims who realize in advance that their communications may be subject to disclosure may avoid counseling altogether. The President's Task Force on Victims of Crime recommended that legislation be enacted making designated victim counseling legally privileged.

3. Disputed Custody in Domestic Violence Cases

Children witnessing domestic violence toward a parent are at serious risk of developing physical and emotional problems. Children who witness violence are likely to experience internal stress which they are not free to express. The stress may be manifested in physical symptoms and emotional problems such as anxiety disorders, depression, guilt and confusion. Sons who witness their father's violence have a 1,000% greater rate of wife abuse than sons who do not (Straus, Gelles and Steinmetz, 1980).

Although AS 25.20.090 considers "whether there is a history of violence between the parents..." in determining whether to award shared custody, it is not listed as a factor in AS 25.24.150 in determining custody of a child. Family violence should be considered in making all custody decisions.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AND SEXUAL ASSAULT

LEGISLATION IN ALASKA

The State of Alaska has taken a leadership role in reducing the trauma and pain associated with domestic violence and sexual assault. The Legislature and Executive Branch have enacted innovative legislation and policies to address these problems.

Following is a summary of many of the laws enacted in Alaska that are related to domestic violence and sexual assault.

AS 18.66.010-18.66.900. DOMESTIC VIOLENCE/SEXUAL ASSAULT PROGRAMS. Enabling legislation which established the Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault in the Department of Public Safety to provide for planning and coordination of services to victims of domestic violence or sexual assault, their families and the perpetrators and to provide for crisis intervention and prevention programs. The Council was established through the efforts of many dedicated parties, particularly the Alaska Network on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault, which is a professional organization of domestic violence/sexual assault program directors.

APPENDIX A

PROGRAM DATA

Programs that receive Council funds are required to submit individual client and service forms. Programs use three forms to record data: the Client Intake form to describe domestic violence, sexual assault, incest and crisis intervention clients; the Services Provided form to record all services provided to clients and the (optional) Resource Contact form to record services to persons who are not clients of the program.

The data presented in this section covers July 1, 1986 to June 30, 1987. This data reflects the varied and comprehensive services provided by Council funded programs. The number of clients served by Council funded programs is presented, by client type, on page 27. Information on the gender, age and race of new clients is presented on page 28 and 29. The Service Statistics beginning on page 30 indicate the number of services received by clients in FY87.

Some definitions may help you in interpreting the charts:

Advocacy - a program working on behalf of or with a client; directed support to another agency.

Client - a person who receives direct services from a program and is expected to receive services on more than a one-time, brief basis.

Client Adult - a person 18 years of age and over admitted into the program for treatment and/or intervention as a result of a domestic violence and/or sexual assault incident directed towards another person, usually a relative, neighbor, friend, etc.

Client Services Provided - the numbers signify the number of staff contacts with clients for a particular kind of service.

Counseling - providing information and personal support which may include assistance in clarifying options and determining future goals.

Minor Child - a person 17 or under who is admitted into the program for treatment and/or intervention as a result of a domestic violence and/or sexual assault incident directed towards another person, usually a relative, neighbor, friend, etc.

New Client - a client who first contacted a specific program in FY87.

Perpetrator - a person admitted into the program for treatment and/or intervention due to a domestic violence and/or sexual assault incident the individual directed towards another person.

Resource Contact Services - the numbers represent services provided to people who are not considered clients of the program, i.e. they are not expected to receive ongoing services.

Victim - person admitted into the program for treatment and/or intervention as a result of a domestic violence and/or sexual assault incident directed towards that individual.

The following charts describe clients of community based and prison programs, the services provided to clients, and services provided to individuals who are not formal clients of the programs.
