The Honorable George Latimer
Mayor, City of St. Paul
347 City Hall
St. Paul, Minnesota

Mayor Latimer:

Once again, despite static resources, personnel of the Saint Paul Police Department in 1987 continued to deliver a high level of service to the citizens of Saint Paul.

In 1987:

- Calls for service increased 2,969 over last year.
- The burglary rate declined for the fifth straight year.
- Adult arrests were up.
- Speed enforcement activities increased 58% over 1986.
- Patrol sick leave was down, as was the number of officers in the Mandatory Physical Training Program.
- The overall crime rate for the City was constant.

ORGANIZATIONAL HIGHLIGHTS

In February, 1987, the Support Services Division was reorganized which resulted in the formation of the Communications and Information Management Sections. The composition of the Services Section was also altered at that time.

The consolidation of the units within the new sections brought about a more effective use of personnel resources as well as a more efficient operation within the Support Services Division.

In the Patrol Division, the “Mobile Unit”, a unit within the Traffic and Accident Section, integrated with the “Selective Enforcement” Unit. The Motorcycle Unit was incorporated into the Surface Parking Unit.
LLOYD D. BUHL
Deputy Chief - St. Paul Police Department

On November 9, 1987, Lloyd Buhl was promoted to the position of Deputy Chief of the Support Services Division. He assumed these management responsibilities from Deputy Chief John Sturner who is currently on leave as interim Director of St. Paul City Council Research.

Deputy Chief Buhl began his career with the Saint Paul Police Department in 1949. He was promoted to Detective in 1954 and to Captain in 1970. During his lengthy career he has served as commander of the Juvenile Unit, commander of the Records and Identification Unit, Watch Commander, and most recently, the Support Services Division’s Executive Officer. Lloyd Buhl has received many commendations. Among them he was recognized for an outstanding performance in March, 1974, when off-duty, he disarmed a young man who was threatening citizens with a handgun.

Under Deputy Chief Lloyd Buhl’s command, the Support Services Division continues to provide the variety of specialized administrative and technical support for successful patrol and investigative line functioning.
A WINNING YEAR FOR SPPD

Our Newly Remodeled Public Safety Building

By May of 1987, both administrative and investigative personnel returned to a remodeled Public Safety Building. To celebrate the reopening for business at our “new” address, 100 E. 11th Street, and to acquaint the public with the many building changes, an open house was held on May 8 and 9. Police personnel gave tours to explain the efficiency of the new design. Our citizens responded enthusiastically with a turnout of about 1400 people in two days.

Before...the 1929 design at 100 East 10th Street.

Constructed in 1929, the building was in great need of major repair after more than 50 years of service as combined headquarters of the City’s Police, Fire and Health Departments. (The Health Department moved to its own building in 1958.)

All the interior walls and mechanical systems were replaced. Central air conditioning and a District Heating system were installed, and all windows renovated with energy efficient tinted glass.
After...1987 at 100 East 11th Street.

Several units were relocated to provide better access and service to the public. The Juvenile Unit was moved to the first floor, just off the lobby, to serve the many people who visit the unit daily. The Records Unit was moved to a central location for convenience to the public and for easier access by police personnel.

The Records Unit is more centrally located.
Glock - Improved Protective Equipment

By the end of 1987, over 250 SPPD officers qualified on a sixteen hour firearms course for transition from the police service revolver to the newly issued Glock 9mm pistol. Taught by the Training Section, this two-day course included class instruction on safe handling practices, marksmanship, defense methods, and weapon care. These firearm principles were then reinforced in live fire exercises.

An important reason for the Glock's adoption as the Department's new service weapon was increased firepower (that is, number of available rounds). A Department study of recent St. Paul Police deadly force situations found that, in each case, lone officers were threatened either by armed multiple assailants or a criminal possessing superior weaponry. Because the Glock provides three times the number of rounds as the police revolver, SPPD officers now have improved protection in armed confrontations.

Additional advantages of the Glock compared to other automatics are:

• Interchangeable parts
• Easy cleaning and maintenance
• More suitable to a variety of hand sizes
• Less recoil compared to many police service handguns.

Because of the weapon's simplicity of design and revolver-like operation, officers can be retrained to use it in just 16 hours. This was an important consideration with more than 500 officers to be retrained.
Citizen Oversight Study

In 1987, a Citizen Oversight Study was concluded by citizen-police teams who were to examine “civilian review boards.”

The teams were made up of three police and two community representatives.

They visited Miami, Chicago, Hartford, Cincinnati, San Francisco and Berkeley.

In each of these cities, they determined how the public participated in this complaint process, how well “civilian review boards” worked, and how the system was viewed by the public and police.

Important conclusions of the team’s study were:
- That continuing police and community dialogue is essential for public trust and effective law enforcement.
- The St. Paul Police Department did not need a “civilian review board.” Active community participation with the police has done far more to enhance police-neighborhood relations than any judicial oversight process.

Consistent with the study’s findings, the St. Paul Police Department invites active community involvement in police service activities. Opportunities for such service include the Police Chaplain corps, Neighborhood Assistance Officer (NAO), Police Reserve, Community Service Officer and other programs. Also, team policing has been successful in linking with neighborhood groups to reduce local crime problems. The police-community activities in the McDonough Homes, Phalen Park and the Selby-Milton area are examples of a police-community coalition that works. Finally, SPPD actively recruits members of “protected classes” for its work force.

SPPD Vice Enforcement

As a part of the Department’s vice enforcement activities, a uniformed patrol beat was instituted in the University Avenue and Victoria Street area to confront the recurrent problem of prostitution. This action represented the combined effort of the Patrol Division and Vice Unit. Principal targets were the local bars, escort services, saunas and the affected area along University Avenue.

Investigators of the Vice Unit worked to infiltrate prostitution activity to learn the extent of vice organization and profitability. Also, the focus on “pimps” resulted in obtaining sixteen felony complaints of Promotion of Prostitution.

SPPD’s vice enforcement priority is evident in the 1987 crime statistics. 415 prostitution-related arrests were made compared to 312 arrests last year, a 33% increase. Also, combined customer and pimp arrests increased 144.7% from 1986 (186 in 1987 vs. 76 in 1986).

SPPD vice enforcement has had a positive impact on the University and Victoria area.

415 prostitution-related arrests were made in 1987.
Better Neighborhoods Program

In 1987, Mayor Latimer launched his "Better Neighborhoods" initiative, calling for a closer working relationship between City departments and neighborhoods. City staff would act as community facilitators, coordinators, and communicators.

For the St. Paul Police Department's part, officers have established a rapport with their communities to identify and resolve local problems. SPPD's spirit of Better Neighborhoods is exemplified in the following efforts with the McDonough Homes, Phalen Park and Selby-Milton area.

...Phalen Park

Out of concern for a neighborhood crime problem, East Team officers met with several apartment owners, managers and caretakers in the Phalen Park area. Their intent was to become acquainted, discuss their mutual crime problem, and find solutions.

The outcome was the formation of two crime watch groups working actively with the neighborhood police team. This coalition of police and community effectively reduced the neighborhood's problem. The result was a 31% decrease in burglary and a 23% decrease in vandalism by the year's end.

Mayor George Latimer recognized the outstanding organizational leadership of Officer Robert Weston and Ms. Constance L. Oppelt in this East Team and Phalen Park community effort.

...McDonough Homes

The combined crime fighting effort of Patrol, the Crime Prevention Unit, and McDonough Homes residents is one of which St. Paul can be proud.

In June, a significant neighborhood burglary problem was identified by the Central Patrol Team. As a result, McDonough Homes organizer Gholly Yang and SPPD began a series of community meetings to decide a course of action.

The results were regular crime watch meetings by some eighteen separate neighborhood groups, over 300 hours devoted to literature drops by police volunteers, intensified patrol activity, community liaison by Community Service Officer (CSO) David Yang, and more than 130 family enrollments in the Operation Identification Program.

The McDonough Homes neighbors and Central Team triumphed over this burglary problem. The positive rapport established between this community and their Team inspired eight Southeast Asian volunteers to join the Police Reserve or Neighborhood Assistance Officer (NAO) programs.

Officer Robert Weston and Ms. Constance L. Oppelt are recognized by Major George Latimer for their outstanding community service in the Phalen Park neighborhood.
Selby-Milton Area

Responding to a growing drug problem in the Selby-Milton area, the Northwest Patrol Team instituted measures to curtail street trafficking.

An area foot patrol was started with the support of the local business people. The high visibility of uniformed beat officers and watchfulness of the local community effectively discouraged illegal street sales.

The Northwest Team also stepped up its efforts with the Narcotics Unit to identify and apprehend active drug dealers. Subsequent investigation and surveillance resulted in numerous search warrants and arrests.

Elsewhere, Team officers participated with the community and Vice Unit to deter prostitution crime in the University and Victoria area. Foot patrol officers effectively dissuaded customer interest and coordinated their crime intelligence information and enforcement with investigators. The targeting of “pimps” for arrest further reduced illicit drug dealing since both activities tended to be linked.

Safety First at “Trick or Treat” Time

What began eleven years ago with a costumed officer treating neighborhood children, is today an East Team effort to promote a safe and fun trick or treat season. Most people know this as the SPPD “Dungeon of Horrors.”

For three days in October, twenty-two costumed officers and community volunteers entertained about 40,000 visitors at the Harriet Island site.

Through their participation with the community, officers used their costumes and hijinks to deliver a powerful message about trick or treat safety to children.

Also, for two weeks before the Dungeon open house, officers visited St. Paul elementary schools to promote safe trick or treating. Children were warned to watch out for cars and wear costumes easily seen by drivers, encouraged to use make-up instead of sight blocking masks, and be sure to let dads or moms inspect their candy before eating.

This year’s school safety visits were taped by Continental Cable T.V. and aired by most area cable stations before Halloween.

“Be sure to let dad or mom see your Trick or Treat candy first before eating it!”
COORDINATING INFORMATION AND ACTION

The Detective Division's winning year is evident in the continuing effort to coordinate investigative information flow and enforcement with Patrol. A few 1987 highlights are:

- Investigators conducted regular Patrol roll call briefings to exchange investigative and crime intelligence information.
- The "Case Disposition" form was implemented to give arresting offices positive feedback and critique from investigators within one day after apprehension of suspects.
- An office was provided for an Assistant County Attorney assigned to assist SPPD case charging, search warrant applications, and other legal issues.

WINNING CASEWORK

...Burglary

The 1987 St. Paul burglary rate decreased 6.4% from last year and for the fifth consecutive year. Meanwhile, the Burglary Unit's effectiveness in clearing cases investigated was an excellent 28.9% (compared to 25.4% in 1986). These statistics indicate a winning year for burglary investigation and the Detective Division's coordinated effort with Patrol.

Using search warrants, crime intelligence and surveillance, Burglary Unit investigators aggressively targeted known and active burglars for apprehension. Afterward, information from defendants was used effectively to clear more crimes and identify other burglary suspects. This may reasonably explain St. Paul's considerable 7.4% decrease in residential burglary.

The positive identification of burglary suspects are vital to successful prosecutions. In 1987, SPPD productively used fingerprint technology and stolen property tracing against burglars.

More than forty burglary suspects were identified by fingerprint in 1987. The arrest and conviction of Bart Knopik received much public attention when some 150 St. Paul and area burglaries were cleared through the Burglary Unit's investigation.

The diligent tracking of suspected contraband (through precious metal dealers and others) led to the arrest of over thirty burglary suspects and the recovery and return of a lot of stolen property. The case of David Hobbs is one such example. Investigators traced a ring sold by that suspect to a burglary reported in the Southwest Team area. This casework led to the arrest and conviction of Hobbs.
...Homicide

• The City experienced a lower homicide rate in 1987 (13) which was below the 14.5% ten-year average.

• A three-person homicide team concept was introduced to increase thoroughness and efficiency of major casework.

• Case management success is reflected in the Homicide Unit’s 92% MCI (Managing Criminal Investigations) crime clearance rate.

• Homicide’s winning year was punctuated by outstanding individual performances exemplified by the actions of Sergeant Richard Weisman. Acting on a tip, this investigator located and pursued a homicide suspect in Wisconsin where he was apprehended. He then assisted in the recovery of evidence contributing to the assailant’s murder conviction. For his outstanding casework, the Department awarded Sgt. Weisman the Class B Commendation. Later, he was also recognized by the Minnesota Chiefs of Police Association.

SPPD DRUG ENFORCEMENT

The Narcotics Unit conducted a successful campaign against “crack houses” in 1987.

Having identified a “crack house” concentration in the Summit and University area, investigators began meeting with neighborhood residents to help organize crime watch groups and set up a citizen’s telephone “hot line” to report suspicious activity.

Narcotics Investigators also alerted area patrol officers of this crime problem and coordinated crime intelligence information with them.

These efforts, combined with the Unit’s investigations, resulted in the execution of fifty-three search warrants (68% on “crack houses”) and significantly more arrests (120) from last year.

Statistically, both search warrant activity increased 29% and total narcotic related arrests increased 145% over 1986.

A search warrant is executed at a “crack house.”
Models of Excellence
The First SPPD Chaplain Academy

In October 1987, the St. Paul Police Chaplain Academy graduated its first class. Seventeen members, from the qualified St. Paul religious community, participated in the two-month training program. This prepared them for a unique position of volunteer community service - the SPPD Police Chaplain.

The intense curriculum was designed to give recruits a broad orientation to the St. Paul Police Department and the communities it serves. Training was also offered in skills necessary to assist officers in their police service. Specific instruction included Department organization and rules, legal issues in law enforcement, personal safety practices, First Aid and CPR, crises intervention, radio procedures, and referral methods.

St. Paul is fortunate to have such an outstanding St. Paul Police Chaplain corps.

I.M.S. — Coordination, Consolidation and Looking To the Future

In a significant reorganization of a number of Support Services units, the Information Management Section (I.M.S.) was created. This action consolidates work efforts and coordinates the considerable flow of Department data.

Units now reporting to the I.M.S. commander are Systems, Records, Identification, Report Review and Audio Visual.

This reorganization leads the way toward better use of information and future high-tech applications.
SPPD Community Volunteers - Model Citizens

During 1987, 175 members of the Volunteer Services Unit donated an impressive 38,107 hours of community service. Typical of the many outstanding programs are the Police Reserve and Neighborhood Assistance Officers. Police Reservists devoted 23,169 volunteer hours to vehicular traffic control and other important assignments during such events as the Minnesota Twins' Victory Celebration, Riverfest, and Taste of Minnesota.

Neighborhood Assistance Officers (NAOs) volunteered 14,938 hours patrolling their communities and other special events.

The SPPD School Curriculum - A Model Crime Prevention Project

Since 1979, members of the St. Paul Police Department have taught an unusual class to eighth and ninth grade students - a course about crime.

The purpose of this work is to make our young people aware of how crime negatively affects the quality of our lives and neighborhood well-being. Instructors stress the importance of good citizenship and crime prevention.

Class dialogue and role playing deal with such topics as how vandalism and arson deteriorates the beauty of our neighborhoods or how theft and other property crimes disrupt people's personal lives. To emphasize these lessons, students take a bus tour of their neighborhood to see first-hand the impact of crime on their community. In 1987, Crime Prevention Unit officers spent about 260 hours teaching classes at five St. Paul senior high schools and three junior high schools. The SPPD School Curriculum is important to fostering better neighborhoods and building positive relationships between officers and our youth.

The Employee Assistance Program - From Idea to Reality

The St. Paul Police has reason to be proud of its model Employee Assistance Program. Begun in 1981, EAP has fostered many "firsts" in Minnesota. EAP's founder and director, Sgt. Morrie Anderson, explained that SPPD was the first to establish in-house support for all employees (sworn and non-sworn) as well as their spouses, children, relatives, and significant others. Already, over 700 persons have been assisted.

This success did not go unnoticed. St. Paul's EAP was asked to help launch the Minneapolis PD and Dakota County Sheriff's programs.

Another first was EAP's Post Shooting Trauma Team. The main idea, according to Sgt. Anderson, is "police helping police" in peer counseling.

Credibility exists because these peer counselors have, themselves, experienced similar trauma.

Today, EAP serves a full range of human problems including job-related stress, attempted suicide, domestic conflict, and financial crisis. Adds Morrie, "we've even helped some officers save their jobs" having identified depression, burn-out, or chemical dependency at the core of many employee work problems.

Sgt. Morrie Anderson concludes, "Our hope is that people will see new options in dealing with their problems." EAP has indeed done just that.

SPPD is especially proud of our Southeast Asian community. In 1987, our eight volunteers have provided valuable neighborhood services such as language interpreting.
COMMUNITY PRIDE

Certificates of Appreciation

The Saint Paul Police Department recognizes the unique partnership which exists between the Department and the citizens of St. Paul. In order to accomplish its goals, the Department counts on its citizens to be its eyes and ears and to keep it informed. Often, individual citizens go one step further to actually help apprehend a criminal or offer aid to a victim. Typical of the kind of heroic actions taken by St. Paul citizens are the following:

- Bill Keenan defended himself against a robbery suspect and identified the perpetrator the next day by police photo line-up.
- Robert Brown pursued an armed robbery suspect and directed officers to his location.
- Steven Wagner chased a burglar, climbed a fence and tackled the suspect.
- Constance Oppelt successfully organized her neighbors and apartment managers, owners and caretakers into an effective neighborhood crime block club.

We recognize these and other deeds with our profound gratitude and by awarding our official Certificate of Appreciation. In 1987, the following citizens received certificates:

The Part I Offense information presented here is a compilation of crime statistics collected as part of the St. Paul Police Department's participation in the (F.B.I. administered) National Uniform Crime Reporting Program. The Part I Offenses are so designated because of their seriousness and frequency of occurrence. Part I Offenses include the crime categories of homicide, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, theft, motor vehicle theft and arson.

The Part II Offenses include all other crimes for which a report is filed. The crime categories included as Part II Offenses are listed on the Arrest Data Table on the following page.

The number of Total Part I Offenses reported in 1987 increased marginally for the second year. And while Total Part I Arrests decreased slightly in 1987, this was still the second highest number of arrests in the past five years. The Clearance Rate for Total Part I Offenses in 1987 was the highest recorded in recent years, reflecting the increased focus to unify the Detective and Patrol Divisions to solve crime.
