A survey of jails and lockups in Indiana conducted by the Indiana Department of Correction, Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency and Indiana State University.

This survey was funded in part by the Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency through a Paid Research and Statistics Internship Grant (Project: S-21-72-F-3) to the Indiana Department of Correction.

The first printing was made by the Department of Criminology, Indiana State University, Terre Haute, Indiana, in October, 1972, during the Administration of Governor Edgar D. Whitcomb. The Executive Director of the Criminal Justice Planning Agency at this time was Mr. William Greeman, and the Corrections Coordinator was Mr. George Stultz.

This printing was made by the Indiana Youth Center vocational printing class under the direction of Mr. Larry Edwards. The Superintendent of the Youth Center is Mr. William Elsbury. Printing and distribution costs of this publication were paid for by the Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency through Project: S-34-71-F-3. The present Executive Director of the Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency is Mr. Frank Jessup and the Corrections Coordinator is Mr. George Stultz.

FOREWORD

Crime and delinquency have become the most serious problem facing America today, and Americans are demanding that something be done to curb its increase. Professionals in the criminal justice system are well aware of this and are beginning to realize that if they are to meet this challenge they must critically review their various operations to determine what is working, what will work with modification, and what should be discarded. Indiana is no exception in this matter.

Over the last few years, the Indiana Department of Correction has made some notable efforts at critical self-evaluation in a number of areas. Unfortunately, none of these efforts has involved county jails or city lockups in the state. In January, 1972, Commissioner Robert Heyne, well aware of this situation, directed that an intensive statewide study be made of the jails and lockups of the state.

Fortunately for the Department, a study of a more limited but similar nature had just been completed under the direction of Mr. Charles J. Holmes, Commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Correction, who was at that time Director of Region VII, Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency. The report entitled "Jails in Southern Indiana" limited itself to Region VII and was largely the work of Mr. Holmes' assistant, Mr. Richard L. Martin.

In the interest of expediency, the Department of Correction utilized the questionnaire that was designed for the Region VII study. Copies of the questionnaire were sent to the District Parole offices requesting that parole officers make personal contact with a responsible person in each county jail or city lockup in their districts to obtain the necessary information. The information from the questionnaires was then compiled by central office personnel and forwarded to the Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency for their review and comment.

Due to other Departmental demands and the lack of computer facilities it was necessary to put the study aside for awhile. Then, during the summer of 1972, arrangements were made through the Criminology Department of Indiana State University, Terre Haute, Indiana, to have a faculty member and a student analyze the data, draft the report, and have it printed for distribution. It is questionable whether this study could have been completed during this calendar year without their assistance.

The Indiana Department of Correction feels the reader will agree that this study on the existing services and conditions of all the county jails and city lockups in the state is significant for a number of reasons. To begin with, it represents entry into an area that has been neglected for far too long; an area which should be a fruitful research area. Also the study is timely insomuch as the data gained in it constitutes a crucial input for the Department's comprehensive ten-year plan which is presently being developed. And, finally, the study represents a cooperative effort by individuals from the Department of Correction, Indiana State University, and the Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency.

While it would be impossible to acknowledge every person who participated in this study, the Department would like to mention a few of the persons, not previously named, who were instrumental in the various phases of its completion: (1) Parole Officers: Millard Huffman, John Cody, Paul Hoge, Robert Lane, John Hefner, John Good, James Mawhorr, Kerry McLaughlin, Vaughn Overstreet, Douglas Johnson, Robert Duncan, Richard Martin, John Halter, John Stevens, Bert Miller, Chester Lykins, Clifford McDaniel, John Harlow, James Brodie, Joseph Sus, Lawrence Gordon, Davis Genn, Thomas Raycroft, Jerry Westerhouse, Frank Hall, Patrick Mulligan, Don McGuire, and William Howard; (2) Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency: George Stultz, Corrections Coordinator; and (3) Indiana State University: Robert G. Culbertson, Assistant Professor, and James A. Decker, student.

Special appreciation is also extended to the many jail administrators and other jail personnel who took time from their busy days to provide input for this study. Without their assistance this study could never have been a success. It is never easy for one to take a critical look at himself, but their response demonstrates that this group did not shirk from its duty. Unfortunately, space does not allow individual identification of the members of this group.

The Department is grateful to all those people for helping make this study a reality.

I. INTRODUCTION

Any discussion of jails functions to personify the gross neglect of penal institutions in general. The neglect reflects society's lack of concern for those men and women who have been convicted of crimes, and tragically, an even larger number of individuals who have allegedly committed crimes and are awaiting trial. The neglect in the case of the jail exceeds that which is flagrantly obvious in studies of prisons and reformatories. The decentralized structure of the jail system has functioned to hide the jail from public view which has enhanced the lack of public concern. While prisons and reformatories have often been used for political exploitation, that exploitation is not comparable to the jail situation.

The political system does not provide positive rewards to officials who administer jails and lockups in a humane manner. In fact, the opposite is the case. Officials can find themselves financially rewarded if they minimize services to jail inmates. The jail system is the only penal system in the United States which legally provides profits to those who operate the jails. The fact that the system provides profits for the "keepers" at the expense of the "kept" has resulted in legalized exploitation of thousands of men and women on a daily basis with society demonstrating little, if any, concern.

On any one day in the State of Indiana, there are more men and women incarcerated in jails than in the largest penal institution in the State. The deteriorated state of the jails is made inconspicuous by the fact that the jail population is spread over 142 jails and lockups in the State. While the jail system is in a formidable position to provide individualized programs to small groups of inmates, the small populations have apparently been used to avoid responsibility in this area.

In many ways, this publication speaks for itself. Even a cursory examination of the tables describing the 142 jails and lockups will convey a lack of concern for the emotional and physical well being of the individuals incarcerated in those jails and lockups. In an effort to present a meaningful discussion of jails in Indiana, the authors have focused on the social situation of the jail inmates, and the physical condition of the jails. Each section will therefore include a brief discussion of the data describing the social situation for the jail inmates prepared by Robert G. Culbertson, and a brief discussion of the data describing the physical condition of the jails prepared by James A. Decker. It will become most obvious to the reader that there is a total lack of consideration for the inmate while incarcerated in Indiana's jails and that the jails and lockups, as physical plants, are generally deteriorated and grossly inadequate.

It is impossible to discuss each individual jail and lockup in the State. To obtain this detailed information, the reader is referred to the table describing the county jail or city lockup in which he is interested. The following presentation will begin with a general discussion of the jails on a state-wide basis, followed by a brief discussion analyzing the data for each of the eight Districts established by the Department of Correction. The map on page 34 provides an outline of the counties included in those Districts.

The survey suffers from a number of limitations. The authors of this publication feel that the reader should be cognizant of these limitations when reading the summaries of the data for the State and the Districts, and when interpreting the tables for the individual counties and cities.

First, we were not involved in the development of the instrument used to collect the data. In some respects it is unfortunate that the instrument used by Mr. Holmes in Region VII of the Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency was not revised prior to its use on a state-wide basis. This does not reflect an error in judgment as much as it reflects the criminal justice system's lack of data, and the resultant crisis which seemingly surrounds data collection projects in the criminal justice system. Concepts were not specifically defined, items were included which have little meaning, and as a consequence the findings can be easily criticized by the research methodologist.

Second, we did not collect the data, and for this reason, we cannot assume responsibility for this area. It appears that the data was collected with care and the coding was generally quite accurate. We made a number of random checks in this area and did not find any serious errors.

Third, while considerable time and energy has been expended by James A. Decker in preparing the 142 tables for the jails and lockups, there was little time to prepare the summaries of the findings. The analyses are therefore necessarily brief, and the reader should use our analyses as a starting point in developing a complete profile of the jail situation in the respective counties and districts.

In our discussion we have deleted the term lockup, and the term jail is intended to include both jails and lockups. Also, we have rounded the data to provide for a more concise discussion. The study was conducted in January, 1972. Item 10 which reports the "number of deaths over past two years" includes the period beginning two years prior to the actual date the data was collected. The same is the case for escapes.

II. SOCIAL SITUATION OF JAIL INMATES IN INDIANA

Penologists have long advocated the importance of separate facilities for juvenile and female offenders, as well as the segregation of hardened criminals from first offenders. This is sound penal philosophy for a number of reasons including the fact that we enhance criminality in the young by integrating them with the older criminals who function as role models. This policy has been ignored in Indiana's jails as indicated by the finding that 47 percent of the jails in the State do not provide facilities for juvenile and females that are completely removed from the adult male facilities, and 70 percent of the jails do not separate hardened criminals from first offenders.

The same problem exists in the case of mental patients. The survey indicates that 66 percent of the jails are used to house mental patients and 89 percent of the jails do not have padded cells for mental patients. It is doubtful if any other special provisions are made for mental patients.

Other jail studies indicate that a sizeable majority of the offenders are incarcerated for public intoxication, or offenses related to the abuse of alcohol. A study currently under way in Region VI of the Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency supports this contention. It is therefore tragic to note that 96 percent of the jails and lockups do not have the desperately needed special programs for alcoholics. In fact, only 56 percent of the jails indicate that a member of Alcoholics Anonymous is available on request. The situation is much the same for drug offenders. Officials and the public are seemingly alarmed about increasing drug problems, and at the same time 97 percent of the jails do not have special programs for drug addicts.

Further evidence supporting the authors' contention that the physical and emotional health of the inmate is ignored is reflected in the finding that 98 percent of jail inmates are not given a physical examination by a physician when admitted. When one considers the socioeconomic status of the jail population, and the disease correlates for this population, it appears that county health departments and medical associations have been practicing gross neglect. The fact that 95 percent of the jails do not have physical exercise programs only adds to the extent of the neglect. It should be noted that there were 45 deaths in Indiana jails for the two year period covered by the survey.

Counseling with jail inmates is a myth as 75 percent of the jails indicate that counseling services are not available. Even if such services were available, 75 percent of the jails do not have special visiting rooms where counseling could take place. This would seem to support our contention that jails, as presently constructed, were never intended for rehabilitation, but have rather functioned for the exclusive purpose of punishment. This finding also appears to indicate that the professional social work community has had a share in the neglect.

Neglect of the inmates' religious life is also obvious as 58 percent of the jails do not have religious services that are held on a regular basis, though 93 percent of the jails do provide for unlimited visitation for ministers. While visitation policies for ministers are most liberal, it is interesting to note that this has not resulted in regular religious services. Religious services are certainly not prohibited by the 58 percent of the jails and lockups that do not have such services. Rather, this finding reflects our contention that the religious community has also practiced neglect.

Finally, the poor work records of jail inmates would seemingly point to the need for vocational training and work-release programs. The survey indicates that 98 percent of the jails do not have any form of vocational training programs, and 92 percent of the jails do not have work release programs. As a consequence, men and women are turned back into society with less opportunity for employment than existed for them prior to incarceration. Any employment they may have had has in all probability been terminated by the jail sentence, and they have the additional stigma of having been incarcerated to cope with on release. There would seemingly be some support for a contention that labor and management have also practiced neglect.

In summary, the survey constitutes solid evidence for a case of neglect in the area of jails and apparently every segment of the community has had a share in this neglect.

III. PHYSICAL CONDITION OF JAILS IN INDIANA

A sizeable number of jails in Indiana were built before the turn of the century, the oldest being built in 1823, seven years after Indiana became a state. Heating, ventilation, lighting, and plumbing are adequate in most of the State's jails. However, in approximately 10 percent of the jails, heating systems are defective. Ventilation is inadequate in 15 percent of the jails, and 20 percent have poor lighting. The plumbing does not function properly in 21 percent of the State's jails, and the locks do not work in 13 percent of the jails. Critics of the penal system speak of inmates living in luxury as they pay their debt to society. However, when jails do not meet the minimum standards for living conditions, these critics seem out of place. Inmates deserve to be treated as human beings even while in jail, and inadequate plumbing, lighting, ventilation, and heating are not measures of humane treatment.

When most of the State's jails were built, the penal philosophy in vogue at the time was one of punishment and retribution. It is not surprising then that rehabilitation and resocialization programs are the exceptions rather than the rule. One reason for this may be the outdated physical plants themselves. Since the design of the jails' physical facilities was a reflection of a punitive philosophy, the jail environment is one of oppression and degradation. This type of environment has a psychological effect on both staff and inmates. The resultant psychological effects are not conducive to rehabilitative efforts.

The rated capacity for all the jails and lockups, including female and juvenile facilities, is 6,436 inmates. At the time the survey was conducted, the total inmate population, including females and juveniles, was 2,689. This is only 42 percent of the rated capacity for jails in Indiana. The total estimated average population is 2,881 inmates, or 45 percent of the rated capacity. These figures indicate that money has been wasted, and is being wasted on building and operating jail facilities which are not utilized. A clear case of neglect on the part of county government and the citizenry seems evident. Perhaps if facilities were maintained for slightly more than the average estimated population, those responsible for jail maintenance could then focus on the inadequate heating, ventilation, lighting, and plumbing which characterizes a number of jails. The money saved could also be directed into rehabilitative programs, counseling programs, recreational facilities, or other treatment-oriented projects.

A further indication of neglect is demonstrated by the number of employed jailers. In 62 percent of Indiana jails, a jailer is not employed. This indicates that in many instances there is no one responsible for the day-to-day welfare of the inmates. Although the sheriff is legally responsible for the inmates, a sheriff and his deputies have other responsibilities which necessitate absences from the jail facility. In the remaining 38 percent of the jails, which employ jailers, it is not known if these jailers provide twenty-four hour supervision. If the philosophy is that the inmates are dangerous and must be kept separated from society, it is logical to assume that there should be a guard to protect society from the escape of such dangerous persons. If the philosophy is that these men are human beings, whatever their accused crimes, it stands to reason that there should be someone always available in case of sickness or other emergency. In Indiana, in case of sickness, fire, or other emergency, there may or may not be someone in the jail to handle the problem. It is interesting to note that there were 126 escapes from Indiana jails during the two year period covered by the survey.

People are often placed in jails for alleged violations of the law. Some are sentenced to serve a period of time as punishment for violating the law. In this new, ambiguous setting, prisoners are expected to obey the rules of the jails. However, 81 percent of the jails in Indiana do not provide their prisoners with copies of the jail's rules. Evidently the prisoners are expected to know the rules automatically, or are expected to follow the principle of "experience - the best teacher" and to learn the rules by trial and error. This built-in lack of definitive regulations can lead to exploitation of prisoners by staff members, by stronger inmates, or by older more experienced inmates. If it is desirable for the inmates to follow the jail's rules, then they should be informed what those rules are. If there is a system of punishment for infractions of those rules, it seems only fair and logical that the prisoners be forewarned. If there is no system of punishment for breaking the rules, the rules are probably meaningless. A partial solution lies in providing the rules to all inmates at the time they are admitted. Those interested in good jail management should accept this as a reasonable directive.

Those who are incarcerated in jails are human beings and should be treated as human beings. However, in 69 percent of the jails in Indiana, no laundry facilities are provided for the inmates. Thus, inmates are forced to make their own arrangements to be provided with clean clothing from families or friends, or they must live in soiled and unsanitary clothing. Given a jail with no laundry facilities and inadequate plumbing and ventilation, the claim by prisoners in some jails that they are treated like animals does not seem unbelievable.

IV. SOCIAL SITUATION FOR JAIL INMATES IN DISTRICT 1

District 1 includes Benton, Boone, Carroll, Cass, Clinton, Fountain, Grant, Hendricks, Howard, Miami, Montgomery, Putnam, Tippecanoe, Tipton, Warren, and White County.

In many respects, the jails in District 1 do not differ significantly from the jails in the State. For example, 56 percent of the jails do not have separate facilities for female and juvenile offenders, and the same is true for 47 percent of the jails in Indiana. Also, 75 percent of the jails in the District do not segregate hardened criminals from first offenders, and the same is the case for 70 percent of the jails in Indiana.

The situation of the mental patient is considerably worse in District 1 than in the State as 100 percent of the jails in the District house mental patients, while 66 percent of the jails in the State house mental patients. The availability of padded cells for mental patients does not indicate as much variation as 81 percent of the jails in District 1 do not have such facilities while 89 percent of the jails in the State do not have padded cells for mental patients.

The situation for the alcoholic and the drug offender is much the same in District 1 as it is in the State. Not a single jail in the District has a program for alcoholics while 96 percent of the jails in the State also report the absence of such a program. A member of Alcoholics Anonymous is not available in 38 percent of the jails in District 1 and the same is true for 44 percent of the jails in the State. The situation for the drug addict is similar in that 100 percent of the jails in the District do not have programs for drug addicts, and the same is true for 97 percent of the jails in Indiana.

Neglect of the inmates physical health in the District is similar to that which exists throughout the State as 100 percent of the jails indicate that prisoners are not examined by a physician at the time of admission, and the same is true for 98 percent of the jails in the State. Physical exercise programs are not provided in any jails in District 1, and this is also true for 95 percent of the jails in Indiana. The mean number of deaths over the two year period covered by the survey is .25 for District 1, as compared to a mean of .32 for the State, the District reporting a total of 4 deaths.

Counseling services are slightly more available in District 1 than in the State as 31 percent of the jails indicate the availability of such services while 25 percent of the jails in the State provide counseling services. The potential for the development of counseling services in the District is less than that for the jails in the State as 88 percent of the jails in the District do not have special visiting rooms, while 75 percent of the jails in the State do not have special visiting rooms. It is interesting to note that 63 percent of the jails in this District have regular religious services while only 43 percent of the jails in Indiana have such services. On the other hand 81 percent of the jails have provided for unlimited visitation for ministers while 92 percent of the jails in the State have provided for unlimited visitation for ministers

The availability of vocational training programs and work release programs in this District are similar to the State. Vocational training programs are not provided in any of the jails in District 1, and such programs are not provided in 98 percent of the jails in the State. Work release programs are not provided in 94 percent of the jails in the District and the same is the case for 92 percent of the jails in the State.

V. PHYSICAL CONDITION OF JAILS IN DISTRICT 1

The mean age of the jails in District 1 is 56 years, slightly higher than the mean age of the jails in the State which is 49 years. The jails range in age from 1 to 104 years old. The ages of the jails in District 1 are similar to those found throughout the State.

The rated capacity, including facilities for females and juveniles is 555 persons for District 1. The population at the time this survey was conducted was 161, including females and juveniles. This figure represents 29 percent use of facilities. The total estimated average population was 214 inmates or 39 percent of rated capacity. It is difficult to imagine the need for such a surplus of space. It would appear that the money used to support these unused facilities could be better spent on improving the treatment programs in these institutions.

In regard to the condition of the physical plants, District 1 jails seem to be doing well. Almost 94 percent of the jails and lockups in the District have proper heating, adequate lighting, and plumbing which is in good working order. All the jails in the District have adequate fresh air ventilation, and all the locks are in good condition. It would appear that while there is some over-spending in terms of actual facilities utilized, District 1 is allocating funds for the proper upkeep of their facilities. There were 21 escapes in District 1 during the two year period covered by the survey. A meager 19 percent of the jails in this District provide their inmates with a copy of the jail's rules on admission.

Few jails in the District provide laundry facilities for their inmates. Eighty-eight percent of these jails have no laundry facilities available for their prisoners' clothing. Although District 1 has been conscientious in providing its inmates with adequate heating, lighting, and plumbing, the simple physical comfort of clean clothing is apparently ignored.

VI. SOCIAL SITUATION OF INMATES IN DISTRICT 2

District 2 includes Adams, Allen, DeKalb, Huntington, Kosciusko, LaGrange, Noble, Steuben, Wabash, Wells, and Whitley County. The District also includes the following cities: Auburn, Fort Wayne, Garrett, LaFountain, North Manchester, and Warren.

The profile for District 2 also appears to be quite similar to the profile for jails in Indiana, and in several respects it is more similar than District 1. Female and juvenile facilities are not separated in 59 percent of the jails and the same is true for 47 percent of the jails in the State. Hardened criminals are not separated from first offenders in 65 percent of the jails in the District, and the same is true for 70 percent of the jails in the State.

The situation for the mental patient is somewhat better in this District than in the State as 53 percent of the jails in the District house mental patients, while 66 percent of the jails in the State have similar policies.

Ninety-four percent of the jails in the District do not have padded cells for mental patients and the same is true for 89 percent of the jails in the State.

The lack of programs for alcoholics in District 2 and the State is about the same as 94 percent of the jails in the District do not have such programs and the same is true for 96 percent of the jails in the State. A member of Alcoholics Anonymous is not available in 53 percent of the jails in the District, and the same is true for 44 percent of the jails in Indiana. Ninety-four percent of the jails in District 2 do not have programs for drug addicts and the same is true for 97 percent of the jails in the State.

District 2 is also similar to the State in the areas of physical examinations and physical exercise programs for inmates. Ninety-four percent of the jails in the District indicate that prisoners are not given a physical examination by a physician when admitted, and the same is true for 98 percent of the jails in the State. Physical exercise programs are not provided in any of the jails in the District as compared to an absence of exercise programs in 95 percent of the jails in the State. The mean number of deaths over the two year period covered by the survey is .35 for the District and .32 for the State, the District reporting a total of 6 deaths.

Counseling services are not available in 71 percent of the jails in District 2 and the same is true for 75 percent of the jails in the State. Forty-one percent of the jails in the District have special visiting rooms while only 25 percent of the jails in the State have such facilities.

There is a lack of religious services in the jails in District 2 as indicated by the finding that 71 percent of the jails do not have regular services as compared to 58 percent of the jails in the State which do not have regular religious services. However all the jails in the District indicate that ministers have unlimited visitation while 92 percent of the jails in the State provide for unlimited visitation for ministers.

Vocational training and work release programs are virtually absent in District 2 as 94 percent of the jails indicate that they do not have vocational training programs, and none of the jails in the District have work release programs. Ninety-eight percent of the jails in the State do not have vocational training programs, and 92 percent of the jails do not have work release programs.

VII. PHYSICAL CONDITION OF THE JAILS IN DISTRICT 2

The mean age of the jails in District 2 is 65 years, sixteen years higher than the State mean of 49 years. The jails range in age from 1 to 98 years old. Viewing the range, it can be assumed that many of the jails in this District are of an older vintage to produce such a high mean.

The rated capacity, including facilities for females and juveniles, is 523 for District 2. The population at the time this survey was conducted was 154 inmates, including females and juveniles. This figure represents 29 percent use of facilities. The total estimated average population was 224 inmates, or 44 percent of rated capacity. Here again the unused space which serves as a drain on tax dollars is noted.

The condition of the physical facilities in District 2 needs improvement. Although 94 percent of the district's jails are properly heated, 24 percent do not have adequate fresh air ventilation or adequate lighting. An even greater number, 29 percent, lack plumbing which is in good working order. Twenty-nine percent of the jails in the District do not have locks which are in good condition. It should be noted that there were 4 escapes from jails in District 2 for the two year period covered by the survey. Thirty-five percent of the jails in the District supply their inmates with a copy of the jail's rules on admission.

Forty-one percent of the jails in the District provide laundry facilities for the inmates' clothing. A concerted effort should be put on providing similar services for the District's remaining 59 percent which do not have this type of facility.

VIII. SOCIAL SITUATION OF JAIL INMATES IN DISTRICT 3

District 3 includes Hamilton, Hancock, Johnson, and Marion County. The District also includes the following cities: Edinburg, Indianapolis, and the Marion County Juvenile Center.

A profile of the jails in District 3 indicates that in a number of areas the social situation for the prisoner is considerably better than in the jails in the State.

Seventy-one percent of the jails in District 3 provide separate facilities for females and juveniles while this is the case for only 53 percent of the jails in the State. In addition, 43 percent of the jails in the District separate hardened offenders from first time offenders while only 30 percent of the jails in the State have separate facilities.

On the other hand, the situation for mental patients is not as favorable as all of the jails in District 3 house mental patients, and only 14 percent have padded cells for mental patients. Sixty-six percent of the jails in the State house mental patients and 11 percent have padded cells for mental patients. Programs for alcoholics are also absent as all the jails in District 3 indicate that they have no programming in this area. The same is true for 96 percent of the jails in the State. Also, a member of Alcoholics Anonymous is available in 43 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 56 percent of the jails in the State which have a member of Alcoholics Anonymous available. The situation for the drug addict is similar as 100 percent of the jails in the District do not have programs for drug addicts and the same is true for 97 percent of the jails in Indiana.

Fourteen percent of the jails in the District provide physical examinations by a physician for prisoners when admitted, while only 2 percent of the jails in the State provide physical examinations for the prisoners when admitted. Fourteen percent of the jails in District 3 provide physical exercise programs for prisoners, and this is the case for only 5 percent of the jails in the State. While it would appear that there is greater concern for the physical well-being of the prisoner in District 3 than in the State, the percentages for services provided in these two areas are relatively small when we consider the importance of limiting communicable diseases. The mean number of deaths over the two year period covered by the survey is 1.0 for District 3 as compared to .32 for the State, with the District reporting a total of 7 deaths.

Counseling services are available in 29 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 25 percent of the jails in the State, and special visiting rooms are available in 57 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 25 percent of the jails in the State. Religious services are held on a regular basis in 43 percent of the jails in the District and the same is true for the jails in the State. Ministers have unlimited visitation in 71 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 92 percent of the jails in the State which provide for unlimited visitation for ministers.

Vocational training programs and work release programs are available in 14 percent of the jails in the District. Only 2 percent of the jails in the State provide vocational training programs, and 8 percent provide work release programs.

IX. PHYSICAL CONDITION OF JAILS IN DISTRICT 3

The mean age of the jails in District 3 is 50 years, quite close to the mean age of all the jails in the State, 49 years. The jails range in age from 7 to 103 years old. The age of the jails in this District are similar to those found throughout the State.

The rated capacity, including female and juvenile facilities, is 1760 in District 3. The population at the time this survey was conducted was 1123, including females and juveniles. This figure represents 64 percent use of facilities, a noticeable improvement over Districts 1 and 2. The total estimated average population was 1073 inmates, or 61 percent of rated capacity. Although these figures indicate greater use of physical facilities than those previously noted, a surplus of space is still in evidence.

The condition of the physical facilities in District 3 falls short of expectations. In 43 percent of the jails in the District, fresh air ventilation is not adequate. Twenty-nine percent of the jails do not have adequate lighting or plumbing which is in good working order. Fourteen percent do not have proper heating or locks which are in good condition. There were 12 escapes in District 3 for the period covered by the survey.

Only 29 percent of the District's jails supply their inmates with a copy of the jail's rules on admission. While proper standards of living should be the first priority of a jail system, those aspects of jail life which are concerned with proper behavior and conduct should also have a place of importance.

Fifty-seven percent of the jails in the District provide laundry facilities for the inmates' clothing. This is commendable when compared to other Districts and shows an interest in the personal hygiene of the prisoners.

X. SOCIAL SITUATION OF JAIL INMATES IN DISTRICT 4

District 4 includes Clay, Daviess, Dubois, Gibson, Greene, Knox, Martin, Owen, Parke, Perry, Pike, Posey, Spencer, Sullivan, Vanderburgh, Vermillion, Vigo, and Warrick County.

Jails in District 4 vary considerably and are more favorable in some areas than the jails in the State and less favorable in other areas.

Female and juvenile facilities are completely removed from the adult male facilities in 67 percent of the jails in the District, while 53 percent of the jails in the State provide separate facilities for females and juveniles.

Sixty-seven percent of the jails in the District do not separate first offenders from hardened criminals, and the same is true for 70 percent of the jails in the State.

Seventy-eight percent of the jails in the District house mental patients and the same is true for 66 percent of the jails in the State. Only 6 percent of the jails in the District provide padded cells for mental patients while 11 percent of the jails in the State provide padded cells for mental patients.

It is interesting to note that not a single jail in District 4 provides either a physical examination by a physician for prisoners when admitted, or a physical exercise program for prisoners. However, this finding becomes less significant when compared to jails in the State. Ninety-seven percent of the jails in Indiana do not provide a physical examination for persons at the time they are admitted, and 95 percent of the jails in the State do not provide a physical exercise program. The mean number of deaths for the two year period for the District was .44, while the mean number of deaths for jails in the State was .34 for the same period. There was a total of 8 deaths in the District for the two year period covered by the survey.

Eighty-three percent of the jails in District 4 do not provide counseling services to prisoners and the same is true for 75 percent of the jails in the State. This situation is made even worse by the finding that 94 percent of the jails in the District do not provide special visiting rooms, while 75 percent of the jails in the State also fail to provide such facilities.

Thirty-nine percent of the jails in the District provide regular religious services and all the jails in the District provide unlimited visitation for ministers, while 42 percent of the jails in the State hold regular religious services, and 92 percent of the jails in the State provide for unlimited visitation for ministers.

A member of Alcoholics Anonymous is available on request in 50 percent of the jails and the same is true for 55 percent of the jails in the State. There are no special programs for alcoholics or drug addicts in the District. Ninety-six percent of the jails in the State do not have special programs for alcoholics and 97 percent of the jails in the State do not have special programs for drug addicts.

While there are no vocational training programs in the jails in District 4, 50 percent of the jails have work release programs. Two percent of the jails in the State provide vocational training programs and 8 percent provide work release programs.

XI. PHYSICAL CONDITIONS OF JAILS IN DISTRICT 4

The mean age of the jails in District 4 is 54 years, five years above the mean age of all the jails in the State. The jails range in age from 2 to 105 years old. The ages of the jails in this district are similar to those found throughout the entire state.

The rated capacity, including female and juvenile facilities, is 1034 persons in District 4. The population at the time this survey was conducted was 267 inmates, including females and juveniles. This figure represents 26 percent use of facilities. Such a surplus of room is difficult to understand. Again, considerably less than half the facilities are actually used.

The condition of the physical facilities in District 4 seems fairly satisfactory. Eighty-three percent of the locks are in good condition. There were 40 escapes in District 4 for the two year period covered by the survey. Eighty-nine percent of the jails have proper heating and adequate lighting. Ninety-four percent have fresh air ventilation which is considered satisfactory. Unfortunately, 28 percent of the District's jails have plumbing which is not in good working order.

Twenty-eight percent of the jails in District 4 provide their inmates a copy of the jail's rules on admission. Steps should be taken to further this practice in the remaining 72 percent of the jails.

Thirty-nine percent of the jails in District 4 provide laundry facilities for their inmates.

XII. SOCIAL SITUATION OF JAIL INMATES IN DISTRICT 5

District 5 includes Bartholomew, Brown, Clark, Crawford, Dearborn, Decatur, Floyd, Franklin, Harrison, Jackson, Jefferson, Jennings, Lawrence, Monroe, Morgan, Ohio, Orange, Ripley, Scott, Shelby, Switzerland, and Washington County, as well as the following cities: Aurora, Batesville, Charlestown, Crothersville, New Albany, and Seymour.

Jails in District 5 generally appear to provide less services to prisoners than the jails in the State.

Female and juvenile facilities are completely removed from the adult male facilities in 71 percent of the jails in the District, while 53 percent of the jails in the State provide separate facilities for females and juveniles. Thirty-six percent of the jails in the District separate hardened criminals from first offenders, as compared to 30 percent of the jails in the State.

Fifty-seven percent of the jails in the District house mental patients, while 66 percent of the jails in the State house mental patients. Padded cells are provided for mental patients in 14 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 11 percent of the jails in the State which provide padded cells for mental patients.

Jails in District 5, like District 4, do not provide physical examinations by a physician for prisoners at the time they are admitted, nor do the jails in District 5 provide any form of exercise program for prisoners. Physical examinations are not given in 98 percent of the jails in the State, and 95 percent of the jails in the State do not have physical exercise programs. The mean number of deaths for the two year period covered by the survey for the District was .29 while the mean number of deaths in jails in the State was .34 for the same period. During that period there were 8 deaths in District 5.

Ninety-six percent of the jails in the District do not provide counseling services to prisoners while 75 percent of the jails in the State also fail to provide services in this area. Furthermore, 86 percent of the jails do not provide special visiting rooms and the same is true for 75 percent of the jails in the State.

Ministers have unlimited visitation in 96 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 92 percent of the jails in the State, and 50 percent of the jails have regular religious services as compared to 42 percent of the jails in the State which provide regular religious services for prisoners.

A member of Alcoholics Anonymous is available on request in 46 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 56 percent of the jails in the State. Special programs or services for alcoholics are non-existent in the District, the same is true for 96 percent of the jails in the State. The situation for the drug addict is about the same. Special programs or services for addicts are non-existent in the jails in this District, and the same is true for 97 percent of the jails in the State.

Vocational training programs are also non-existent in the jails in District 5 and the same is true for 98 percent of the jails in the State. Ninety-six percent of the jails in the District do not provide work-release programs and the same is true for 92 percent of the jails in the State.

XIII. PHYSICAL CONDITION OF JAILS IN DISTRICT 5

The mean age of the jails in District 5 is 52 years, quite close to the mean age of all the jails in the State which is 49 years. The jails in this District range in age from 1 to 149 years old. The oldest jail in the State is in District 5. This particular jail was built seven years after Indiana attained statehood.

The rated capacity, including female and juvenile facilities, is 653 persons in District 5. The population at the time this survey was conducted was 248 inmates, including females and juveniles. This figure represents 38 percent use of facilities. The total estimated average population was 299, which represents 46 percent use of facilities. Again it can be noted that less than half the facilities are actually used.

The condition of the physical facilities in District 5 seems fairly adequate. Eighty-six percent of the locks are in good condition. Ninety-three percent of the jails are properly heated. Eighty-two percent have adequate fresh air ventilation. Eighty-nine percent have adequate lighting and plumbing which is in good working order. There were 14 escapes in District 5 for the two year period covered by the survey.

Of the Districts discussed at this point, District 5 has the worst record in terms of providing their inmates a copy of the jail's rules on admission. None of the jails in the District follow this practice. In a period of time in which being informed of individual rights is held to be important, it is incongruous that these jails do not deem it necessary to inform their inmates of the rules and regulations concerning their conduct while incarcerated.

Thirty-six percent of the jails in District 5 provide laundry facilities for their inmates. Sixty-four percent of these jails have no laundry facilities available for their prisoners' clothing. Although District 5 has been fairly conscientious in providing its inmates with proper heating, lighting, and plumbing, greater attention should be paid to individual inmate comfort and physical hygiene.

XIV. SOCIAL SITUATION OF JAIL INMATES IN DISTRICT 6

District 6 includes Jasper, Lake, LaPorte, Newton, Porter, Pulaski, and Starke County, as well as the following cities: Dyer, East Chicago, East Gary, Gary, Griffith, Hamlet, Hammond, Highland, Hobart, Knox, LaPorte, Michigan City, Munster, North Judson, Portage, Schererville, Whiting, and Winamac.

Jails in District 6 generally appear to provide more services to prisoners than the jails in the State with some exceptions.

Juvenile and female facilities are completely removed from adult male facilities in 44 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 53 percent of the jails in the State. The situation is quite similar for first offenders as only 24 percent of the jails separate first offenders from hardened criminals, while the same is true for 30 percent of the jails in the State.

On the other hand, only 40 percent of the jails in the District house mental patients, while 66 percent of the jails in the State house mental patients. Also padded cells are available for mental patients in 16 percent of the jails in the District, while padded cells are available for mental patients in 11 percent of the jails in the State.

Physical examinations by a physician at the time of admission are non-existent in District 6 and the same is true for 98 percent of the jails in the State. However, 8 percent of the jails in the District provide physical exercise programs for prisoners, while the same is true for 5 percent of the jails in the State. The mean number of deaths for the two year period covered by the survey was .36, while the mean number of deaths in the State was .32 for the same period. During that period there were 9 deaths in District 6.

Counseling services are available to prisoners in 44 percent of the jails in the District, while counseling services are available in only 25 percent of the jails in the State. Furthermore, 36 percent of the jails in the District have special visiting rooms as compared to only 25 percent of the jails in the State which have such facilities.

Religious services are held in 32 percent of the jails in the District on a regular basis as compared to 42 percent of the jails in the State which hold regular religious services. Ministers have unlimited visitation in 96 percent of the jails in the District, and the same is the case for 92 percent of the jails in the State.

A member of Alcoholics Anonymous is available on request in 72 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 56 percent of the jails in the State. Also, special programs are provided for alcoholics in 12 percent of the jails in the District as compared to only 4 percent of the jails in the State. Eight percent of the jails in the District provide special programs for drug addicts while only 3 percent of the jails in the State provide programs for addicts.

There are no vocational training programs or work release programs in the District. Ninety-eight percent of the jails in the State do not have vocational training programs, and 92 percent of the jails in the State do not have work release programs.

XV. PHYSICAL CONDITION OF JAILS IN DISTRICT 6

The mean age of the jails in District 6 is 29 years, twenty full years below that of the mean age of the jails in the State. The jails in this district range from 1 to 100 years old. It can be assumed from the low mean age, that many of this district's jails are not very old.

The rated capacity, including female and juvenile facilities, is 768 persons in District 6. The population at the time this survey was conducted was 401 inmates, including juveniles and females. This figure represents 52 percent use of the facilities. The total estimated average population was 436 inmates, which represents 57 percent use for facilities. A surplus of space is again in evidence, suggesting a waste of funds.

The condition of the physical facilities in District 6 seems fairly satisfactory but needs improvement generally, and particularly in one area. Almost one-third of the jails in District 6 have inadequate lighting, an unfortunate circumstance which should be remedied as soon as possible. Eighty percent of these jails have plumbing which is in good working order, and 84 percent of the jails have fresh air ventilation which is considered acceptable. Eighty-eight percent have proper heating and locks which are in good condition. Twenty-four percent of the district's jails provide their inmates with copies of the jail's rules on admission. There were 11 escapes from jails in District 6 for the period covered by the survey.

Only 20 percent of the jails in the District provide laundry facilities for their inmates. Concern for adequate personal hygiene for all prisoners should motivate these jails to provide the necessary facilities.

XVI. SOCIAL SITUATION OF THE JAIL INMATES IN DISTRICT 7

District 7 includes Blackford, Delaware, Fayette, Henry, Jay, Madison, Randolph, Rush, Union, and Wayne County, as well as the following cities: Alexandria, Cambridge City, Dunkirk, Eaton, Elwood, Farmland, Hagerstown, Knightstown, Losantville, Madison, Montpelier, Muncie, Penville, Richmond, and Union City.

The profile for the jails in District 7 seems to indicate that in many respects the jails provide fewer services than any District in the State.

Female and juvenile facilities are completely removed from adult male facilities in 35 percent of the jails in the District, as compared to 53 percent of the jails in the State which have separate facilities. Also, 81 percent of the jails in the District do not separate hardened criminals from first offenders, while the same is true for 70 percent of the jails in the State.

Mental patients are housed in 69 percent of the jails in the District, and the same is true for 66 percent of the jails in the State. Padded cells for mental patients are available in 8 percent of the jails, while padded cells for mental patients are available in 11 percent of the jails in the State.

Prisoners are given a physical examination by a physician at the time they are admitted in 4 percent of the jails in the District, while the same is true for only 2 percent of the jails in the State. Physical exercise is provided in 12 percent of the jails in the District and this is the case for only 5 percent of the jails in the State. The mean number of deaths over the two year period covered by the survey for the District was .04 while the mean number of deaths for jails in the State during the same period was .32. During that period, there was 1 death in the District.

Counseling services are available to prisoners in only 15 percent of the jails in the District as compared to the availability of such services in 25 percent of the jails in the State. Special visiting rooms are available in 23 percent of the jails as compared to 25 percent of the jails in the State.

Religious services are held on a regular basis in 35 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 42 percent of the jails in the State which hold regular religious services. Ministers have unlimited visitation in 85 percent of the jails in the District and the same is true for 92 percent of the jails in the State.

While a member of Alcoholics Anonymous is available on request in 54 percent of the jails in the District, there are no special programs for alcoholics. Fifty-six percent of the jails in the State provide a member of Alcoholics Anonymous on request, and 4 percent of the jails in the State have special programs for alcoholics. Special programs for drug addicts are non-existent in the District and the same is true for 97 percent of the jails in the State.

Vocational training programs and work release programs are also non-existent in the District. Only 2 percent of the jails in the State provide vocational training programs while 8 percent of the jails provide work release.

XVII. PHYSICAL CONDITION OF JAILS IN DISTRICT 7

The mean age of the jails in District 7 is 48, slightly lower than 49, the mean age of the jails in the State. The jails in this district range in age from less than 1 year to 101 years. The jails in this District are similar to those found throughout the State.

The rated capacity, including facilities for females and juveniles, is 672 persons in District 7. The population at the time this survey was conducted was 220, including females and juveniles. This figure represents 33 percent use of facilities. The total estimated average population was 241 or 36 percent of rated capacity. Once again a surplus of space can be noted, as almost two-thirds of the jails' facilities are not in use in District 7.

In terms of the condition of the physical facilities, District 7 is doing an excellent job of keeping their locks in good working order. Ninety-two percent of the jails' locks are in good condition. However, lighting and plumbing are considered adequate in only 69 percent of these jails. Fresh air ventilation is adequate in only 81 percent of the jails, and there is proper heating in 88 percent of the jails. It should go without saying that the deficiencies noted should be raised to acceptable standards for the benefits of the inmates who must live under these conditions. It should also be noted that there were 24 escapes from the jails in District 7 for the period covered by the survey.

A sparse 12 percent of the jails in the District supply their inmates copies of the jail's rules on admission. Such a practice should not prove to be a burden financially. It then becomes important for the jails' managers to explore the reasoning employed to veto this practice. Twenty-seven percent of the jails in this District provide laundry facilities for their inmates. When the deficiencies in plumbing, lighting, and other areas are resolved, suitable laundry provisions should also be explored.

XVIII. SOCIAL SITUATION OF JAIL INMATES IN DISTRICT 8

District 8 includes Elkhart, Fulton, Marshall, and St. Joseph County, as well as the city of Elkhart.

The profile for the jails in District 8 seems to indicate that in almost every respect the District is superior to other Districts in the State.

Facilities for females and juveniles are completely removed from the adult male facilities in 80 percent of the jails in the District, while 53 percent of the jails in the State have separate facilities for females and juveniles. First offenders are separated from hardened criminals in 60 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 30 percent of the jails in the State which separate first offenders from hardened criminals.

Unfortunately, 80 percent of the jails in the District house mental patients while 66 percent of the jails in the State house mental patients. Also, there are no padded cells available for mental patients in District 8 jails, while 11 percent of the jails in the State have special padded cells available for mental patients.

Physical examinations by a physician are not provided for prisoners admitted to any of the jails in the District, and only 2 percent of the jails in the State provide for physical examinations for newly admitted prisoners. On the other hand, 20 percent of the jails in the District provide a physical exercise program for prisoners while only 5 percent of the jails in the State provide physical exercise programs. The mean number of deaths over the two year period covered by the survey was .40 for the District, and the mean number of deaths for jails in the State was .32 for the same period. There were 2 deaths over the two year period covered by the survey in District 8.

Counseling services are available in 80 percent of the jails in the District and such services are available in only 25 percent of the jails in the State. Special visiting rooms are available in 60 percent of the jails in the District while only 25 percent of the jails in the State have special visiting rooms available.

Religious services are held on a regular basis in 80 percent of the jails in the District as compared to 42 percent of the jails in the State which provide regular religious services. Ministers have unlimited visitation in 100 percent of the jails in the District and the same is the case for 92 percent of the jails in the State.

A member of Alcoholics Anonymous is available on request in 80 percent of the jails in the District, while this is the case for 56 percent of the jails in the State. Forty percent of the jails in the District provide special programs for alcoholics, while only 4 percent of the jails in the State provide special programs for alcoholics. Special programs are provided for drug addicts in 20 percent of the jails in the District while special programs for drug addicts are provided in only 3 percent of the jails in the State.

Vocational training programs are provided in 20 percent of the jails in the District, while only 3 percent of the jails in the State provide vocational training programs. Work release programs are non-existent in all the jails in District 8, while the same is true for 92 percent of the jails in the State.

XIX. PHYSICAL CONDITION OF THE JAILS IN DISTRICT 8

The mean age of the jails in District 8 is 50 years, quite similar to the mean age of all the jails in the State. The jails in this district range in age from less than 1 year to 85 years old.

The rated capacity, including female and juvenile facilities, is 471 persons in District 8. The population at the time this survey was conducted was 115, including female and juveniles. This figure represents 24 percent use of facilities. The total estimated average population was 131 inmates, or 28 percent of rated capacity. These figures represent the greatest waste in the State in terms of use of facilities. The jails indicate that almost 75 percent of the available facilities are not in use at any given time.

In terms of the condition of the physical facilities, District 8 is doing well. One hundred percent of these jails have proper heating and adequate fresh air ventilation. However, only 80 percent have adequate lighting and plumbing which is in good order, or locks which are in good condition. In these areas there is room for improvement. Forty percent of the jails in the District supply their inmates copies of the jail's rules on admission. The same percent of jails also provides laundry facilities for their inmates. There were no escapes from the jails in District 8 for the period covered by the survey.

XX. CONCLUSION

As we noted earlier, the data speaks for itself. While it is difficult to understand the lack of services to inmates, it is even more difficult to understand the waste of funds to maintain unused facilities in such a tax-conscious State.

Our analysis of the data leads us to make the following recommendations:

1. The present system of county jails should be abolished. It appears that they are remnants of the past and are no longer functional when one considers the lack of services to the inmates, and extent of unused facilities.
2. There is a need for the establishment of regional jail facilities. The location of these facilities should be determined by projected populations for the different regions of the state, and the resources which could be utilized in the communities where the jails might be located.

3. The administration of the regional jails should be under the jurisdiction of the Indiana Department of Correction with a centralized budget system.
4. The Legislature, in providing for a system of regional jails, should outline in detail the requirements for all aspects of the physical plants, and the services which must be provided. It is our opinion, after reviewing statutes pertaining to jails in a number of States, that the Michigan Statutes provide an excellent model for legislation.
