About the National Institute of Justice

The National Institute of Justice, a component of the Office of Justice Programs, is the research and development agency of the U.S. Department of Justice. NIJ was established to prevent and reduce crime and to improve the criminal justice system. Specific mandates established by Congress in the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, as amended, and the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988 direct the National Institute of Justice to:

- Sponsor special projects and research and development programs that will improve and strengthen the criminal justice system and reduce or prevent crime.
- Conduct national demonstration projects that employ innovative or promising approaches for improving criminal justice.
- Develop new technologies to fight crime and improve criminal justice.
- Evaluate the effectiveness of criminal justice programs and identify programs that promise to be successful if continued or repeated.
- Recommend actions that can be taken by Federal, State, and local governments as well as private organizations to improve criminal justice.
- Carry out research on criminal behavior.
- Develop new methods of crime prevention and reduction of crime and delinquency.

The National Institute of Justice has a long history of accomplishments, including the following:

- Basic research on career criminals that led to the development of special police and prosecutor units to deal with repeat offenders.
- Research that confirmed the link between drugs and crime.
- The research and development program that resulted in the creation of police body armor that has meant the difference between life and death to hundreds of police officers.
- Pioneering scientific advances such as the research and development of DNA analysis to positively identify suspects and eliminate the innocent from suspicion.
- The evaluation of innovative justice programs to determine what works, including drug enforcement, community policing, community anti-drug initiatives, prosecution of complex drug cases, drug testing throughout the criminal justice system, and user accountability programs.
- Creation of a corrections information-sharing system that enables State and local officials to exchange more efficient and cost-effective concepts and techniques for planning, financing, and constructing new prisons and jails.
- Operation of the world's largest criminal justice information clearinghouse, a resource used by State and local officials across the Nation and by criminal justice agencies in foreign countries.

The Institute Director, who is appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, establishes the Institute's objectives, guided by the priorities of the Office of Justice Programs, the Department of Justice, and the needs of the criminal justice field. The Institute actively solicits the views of criminal justice professionals to identify their most critical problems. Dedicated to the priorities of Federal, State, and local criminal justice agencies, research and development at the National Institute of Justice continues to search for answers to what works and why in the Nation's war on drugs and crime.

Introduction

The National Institute of Justice/National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS) published the first edition of the Directory of Criminal Justice Information Sources in 1977. This ninth edition updates previous editions and is based on a 1992 survey of more than 400 criminal justice agencies. Questionnaires were mailed to all agencies listed in the eighth edition (1992) and to additional agencies identified by NCJRS staff.

Criteria for selection

The following guidelines were used to select entries for the Directory:

- The organization provides, as a major function, information services on a national, regional, or statewide basis.
- The organization provides criminal justice-related information as a major function.
- The organization's information services include one or more of the following: data base searches, document dissemination or delivery, practical information on setting up programs, reference services, and technical assistance.
- The organization answers telephone and mail requests.
- Costs for services or membership are not prohibitive or excessively restrictive.

The following types of organizations are not included in the Directory:

- Publishers and agencies that provide only consulting services, technical assistance, or training.
- All foreign-based organizations.

Although every effort was made to contact known criminal justice information sources, this Directory should not be considered exhaustive. Editorial selection requirements, unanswered inquiries, and lack of information may have excluded some sources.

Arrangement of the Directory

The Directory contains information on 158 organizations. Information includes the following:

PARENT ORGANIZATION/SPONSORING AGENCY
INFORMATION CENTER/LIBRARY
ADDRESS
TELEPHONE NUMBER(S)
MEMBER OF CRIMINAL JUSTICE INFORMATION EXCHANGE
USER RESTRICTIONS
YEAR ESTABLISHED
HEAD OF CENTER
NUMBER OF STAFF (Professional, Support, Volunteer)
CONTACT PERSON
OBJECTIVES
SERVICES OFFERED
COLLECTION SIZE (Periodical Subscriptions; Audiovisual Items; Books, Reports, Document; Microform Collection; Vertical File Drawers; Special Resources)
PUBLICATIONS

The headings for each entry appear only when information is available. If, for example, an organization did not list a telephone number on its response form, the heading TELEPHONE NUMBER(S) does not appear in the entry. Readers have several options for finding specific organizations in the Directory. Entries appear alphabetically by Parent Organization/Sponsoring Agency appearing on consecutive pages. Readers may also find particular organizations by using the Information Center/Library, Subject, and Geographic indexes at the end of the Directory. Appendixes also contain the following information:

- A listing of members of the Criminal Justice Information Exchange (CJIE) group and their addresses.
- A listing of State criminal justice system representatives.
- A listing of Federal Information Centers and their telephone numbers.

NIJ/NCJRS plans to continue providing biennial updates of the Directory of Criminal Justice Information Sources. Feedback from Directory users will assist us in making this publication more useful. If you would like your agency to be listed in the next edition and if your agency meets the criteria listed on the previous page, please complete the survey form on page E-1 and mail it to the address below (guidelines for completing the form appear opposite the blank response form):

There is no fee for investigations of missing children:
Children registered must be under the age of 18 and parent must show some form of custody.

OBJECTIVES:

Child Find's objective is to find missing children.
Using professionals in its location department, it employs investigative procedures to locate parentally abducted children. A Child Find affiliate, Friends of Child Find, teaches child safety and public awareness in schools and community groups. Child Find is a nonprofit organization and to date has found more than 2,000 children.

SERVICES OFFERED:

Child Find receives registrations daily via phone and mail from searching parents. The locations department opens a case file and investigates in an attempt to locate a missing child. The Child Find photo department distributes photos throughout the United States in an attempt to receive information through its 800-I-AM-LOST hotline. Child Find offers a new Mediation Program to fugitive parents and parents contemplating abduction via its 800-A-WAY-OUT hotline.
Volunteer professional family mediators/attorneys

OBJECTIVES: The Metro Transit Police Informational Program educates the public and other Transit Zone police officers in mass transit rail and bus safety and crime prevention. For schoolchildren, an Officer McGruff Safety and Crime Prevention Program was developed and is currently being shown throughout the Washington Metropolitan Area. Another successful program has been the MTP Juvenile Diversion Program conducted with the D.C. court's approval. The court refers juveniles who commit acts of vandalism to a 4-hour class as an adjudicated disposition. The Authority has also developed pamphlets and other handout materials to make Metro riders fully aware of their active role with the Metro Transit Police in maintaining a safe Metrorail/Metrobus transit environment.

Criminal Justice Information Exchange (CJIE) Group Members

The Criminal Justice Information Exchange (CJIE) Group is an informal, cooperative association of libraries serving the criminal justice community. The group fosters communication and cooperation among member libraries and enhances user services. Group members provide information to criminal justice patrons about their collections, policies, and services. The National Institute of Justice/National Criminal Justice Reference Service, a CJIE member, serves as the group coordinator.
