Acknowledgments

Craig Perkins, statistician, wrote this report under the supervision of Allen J. Beck. Thomas Hester and Priscilla Middleton edited the report. Yvonne Boston, Darrell Gilliard, and Jayne R. Pugh under the supervision of Marilyn Marbrook, produced the publication.

Rhonda G. Carney and Marita Perez of the Demographic Surveys Division of the Bureau of the Census collected and processed the data. Rhonda G. Carney prepared the data tables. Gertrude B. Odom and N. Gail Hoff supervised the data collection, processing, and tabulation. Programming support was furnished by Carolyn Jenkins and David Pysh under the supervision of David Watt and Stephen Phillips.

The Bureau of Justice Statistics is part of the Office of Justice Programs, which also includes the Bureau of Justice Assistance, the National Institute of Justice, the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, and the Office for Victims of Crime.

Foreword

This is the seventh volume in an annual series describing in detail the characteristics of persons admitted to and released from the prison and parole systems in the United States. The report presents data gathered from the 1991 National Corrections Reporting Program (NCRP). The NCRP, begun in 1983, evolved from the need to improve and consolidate corrections reporting at the national level as well as to reduce the States' reporting burden. Before the NCRP, the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) sponsored the National Prisoner Statistics Admissions and Releases Program and the Uniform Parole Reports to collect data.

Thirty-five States and the Federal Bureau of Prisons contributed the offender-specific data that made this report possible. As we look forward to the inclusion of all States in this national series, we at BJS gratefully acknowledge the generous contribution of the State and Federal respondents who have enabled us to produce this volume.

Acting Director

Reporting criteria

The NCRP collects data on all prison admissions and releases and on all parole entries and discharges for calendar year 1991 in participating jurisdictions. Multiple admissions or releases per person during the year are recorded as separate events. The NCRP data cover prisoners admitted to or released from custody regardless of the jurisdiction where the prisoner was sentenced. Persons sentenced to a State prison but admitted to or released from the custody of a local jail are included in the NCRP.

Beginning in 1983 all sentenced inmates, including those with a total sentence of a year or less, were counted. To assure greater comparability across jurisdictions, the 1991 report includes only inmates with a sentence of more than a year except where noted. Information on all inmates, including those with a sentence of a year or less, is contained in the public-use data tape that may be obtained from the National Archive of Criminal Justice Data at the University of Michigan.

Offenses

Each State's offenses are recoded to a common set of offense codes. In this report, attempts and conspiracies are included with completed offenses, except for attempted murders and conspiracies to commit murder, which are classified as assaults.

Offense types appearing in this report include the following offenses:

Homicide— murder, felony murder, nonnegligent manslaughter, voluntary manslaughter, negligent manslaughter, vehicular homicide, involuntary manslaughter, and unspecified homicide.

Murder/nonnegligent manslaughter— murder, felony murder, nonnegligent manslaughter, and voluntary manslaughter.

Murder— murder and felony murder.

Nonnegligent manslaughter— voluntary manslaughter, nonnegligent manslaughter, and aggravated manslaughter.

Manslaughter— negligent manslaughter, vehicular manslaughter, involuntary manslaughter, and negligent homicide.

Unspecified homicide— homicide and homicide type not specified.

Kidnaping— abduction, kidnaping, and felonious restraint.

Rape— forcible rape, aggravated rape, sexual intercourse, and forcible sodomy without consent.

Other sexual assault— statutory rape, carnal abuse, gross sexual imposition by force, fondling, child molestation, and lewd acts with children.

Robbery— unarmed robbery, armed robbery, aggravated robbery, and forcible purse snatching.

Assault— attempted murder, simple assault, aggravated assault, aggravated battery, vehicular assault, and criminal injury to persons.

Other violent— extortion, intimidation, hit-and-run driving with bodily injury, child abuse, and criminal endangerment against a person.

Burglary— breaking and entering, burglary, and safecracking.

Larceny— theft, petty larceny, and grand larceny.

Motor vehicle theft— auto theft, conversion of an automobile, receiving and transferring a stolen vehicle, and unauthorized use of a vehicle.

Arson— arson and burning a thing of value.

Fraud— worthless checks, uttering, obtaining money by false pretenses, credit card fraud, fraud, forgery, counterfeiting, and embezzlement.

Stolen property— possession, transportation, receiving, or selling of stolen property.

Other property— destruction of property, vandalism, criminal tampering, trespassing, entering without breaking, and possession of burglary tools.

Drug possession— possession or use of controlled substances.

Drug trafficking— importation, manufacture, cultivation, sale, or delivery of controlled substances; possession with intent to deliver.

Other drug— forging or uttering a false prescription for a controlled substance; possession of drug paraphernalia, unknown drug offenses, and violations of controlled substance acts where the type of violation was unspecified.

Weapons— unlawful sale, distribution, manufacture, transportation, or possession of a deadly or dangerous weapon, or explosives.

Driving while intoxicated— drunk driving and driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

Other public-order— escape from custody, court offenses, obstruction of justice, other traffic offenses, drunkenness, disorderly conduct, morals and decency violations, commercialized vice, and liquor law violations.

Methodology

Other offenses — juvenile offenses and unspecified felonies.

Federal offenses were recoded to many of the same categories defined above. Specific Federal categories include the following:

Embezzlement — postal, bank, and benefit plans.

Fraud — postal, passport, Veterans' and other benefits, government employment, banks, computer, and impersonation.

Counterfeiting — postal, money orders, securities, and altering or forging currency.

Regulatory — violation of banking and insurance laws, smuggling, violation of customs, election laws, food and drug laws, maritime and railroad laws, retirement act and unemployment insurance, communication law, and other regulatory provisions.

Immigration — illegal entry, harboring or smuggling illegal aliens, and other immigration violations.

Tax law — internal revenue violations, including tax fraud, tax evasion, and failure to pay excise, alcohol, inheritance, withholding, Social Security, or other taxes.

Racketeering and extortion — threats through the mail, over the phone, or in interstate commerce, labor racketeering, RICO, money laundering, and interference with commerce by threat or violence.

Sentences

Data on sentence length refer to the offense with the longest sentence. Whenever a sentence had both a minimum and a maximum term, the maximum was used to define the sentence length. A life sentence was defined as any prison sentence with a fixed or maximum term of life in prison, regardless of the possibility of parole.

Time served

Time served refers to the amount of time spent in prison between the date of admission and the date of release or to the amount of time spent on parole between the date of prison release and the date of parole discharge. Time served in prison underestimates the actual time served because data on time spent in jail that was credited to the prison sentence for the current offense are not available for most inmates. All tables in the report present data for time served in prison only.

Total time under supervision was calculated by adding time spent in prison and time spent on parole. Once again, jail-time credits are not included in the estimate of the total time under supervision.

Median and mean

The medians in this report were calculated from ungrouped data, since sentencing data do not conform to the standard assumptions permitting calculations from grouped data. Because nearly all sentences are multiples of 12-month units, the assumption of an even distribution of values within groups is not met. Therefore, a shift of only a few cases may increase or decrease the median by 12 months.

In contrast to the calculation of medians, mean sentence lengths exclude prisoners with a sentence of life in prison or death. Medians are sensitive to the uneven distribution of cases; means are influenced by extreme values.

Because of the limitations of each measure, both medians and means were reported for sentence length.

Time served data do not group at 12-month intervals. Both medians and means have been reported in most tables to provide an accurate summary of the data.

Year-to-year comparisons

Care should be exercised when comparing 1991 data on sentence length and time served to data published for 1990 and previous years. Year-to-year comparisons should be restricted to those jurisdictions reporting data in all years of interest. The group of jurisdictions participating in 1991, however, may differ from the group in previous years. States reporting in the 1991 program were Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin. The Federal Bureau of Prisons and the Federal Parole Commission also reported data.

Subgroup comparisons

Care should be exercised when comparing groups of inmates on sentence length and time served. Differences may be the result of factors not described in the tables, including variations in the criminal histories of each group, variations in the offense composition of each group, and variations among participating jurisdictions in their sentencing and correctional practices.

Explanatory notes

Race

California codes Asians/Pacific Islanders as "unknown."

Colorado, Illinois, Minnesota, New York, Oklahoma, and Texas code inmates of Hispanic origin as "unknown."

Ohio codes American Indians/Alaska Natives, and Asians/Pacific Islanders as "unknown."

South Carolina's parole release records code any persons other than white or black as "unknown."

Hispanic origin

In California, Michigan, and Oklahoma, Hispanics include only those of Mexican origin.

In New York, Hispanics include only persons of Puerto Rican birth or parentage.

Federal parole release data on Hispanic origin were not available for persons released from prison before July 1983.

Education

Maryland data include credits for education received after entering prison for parole discharge records only.

Ohio data include people who have a college degree in the category of "some college."

Admission date

For New York parole release records the date of admission is the original admission date, rather than the most recent date, if the inmate had been released and then returned.

For Federal parole release records the date of sentencing is provided instead of the date of admission. This date is accurate for only new court commitments.

Admission type

In Colorado and New York, "new court commitments" includes some parole violators returned with new sentences.

In Minnesota, "new court commitments" includes probation violators.

In Massachusetts, "transfers" includes returns to prison after court appearance, temporary interstate transfers, transfers from other States, Federal transfers, transfers from county to State custody, and transfers from other secure facilities.

In Hawaii and Maryland, "new court commitments" includes all types of admissions.

Nebraska reported the following types of admissions: regular, multiple-offender, evaluator, Federal safekeeper, county safekeeper, and other. Since these could not be translated into the NCRP categories, they were coded as "missing/invalid data entries."

In Nevada, "parole revocation, new sentence" and "parole revocation, no new sentence" may have been underreported.

In Ohio, "new court commitments" include an undetermined number of parole violators returned with new sentences.

For parole release records in New York, admission type for parole revocations were reported for those with no new sentence only. There are no probation revocations because probation is considered a county function.

In North Carolina, "probation revocation" includes persons whose parole status was pending.

In Minnesota, "parole revocation with or without new sentence" includes mandatory parole violators returned and work release violators returned.

In North Carolina, "parole revocation, no sentence information" includes all parole violators with or without new sentences as well as pending parole revocations.

In South Carolina, "parole revocation, no sentence information" includes revocation of Supervised Furlough II releases and Emergency Powers Act releases.

In Texas, "parole revocation, no sentence information" and "mandatory parole revocation, no sentence information" include all parole revocations, with or without new sentences.

In Wisconsin, "parole revocation, new sentence" and "parole revocation, no new sentence" include returns of inmates released early because of overcrowding.

In South Carolina, "escapees returned" are not counted as admissions.

In Texas, "not known" includes inmates returning from vocational or educational programs.

Offenses

New Jersey, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, and South Carolina, reported only one offense — the most serious.

Minnesota reports only most recent offense instead of the most serious.

For Federal parole release records, only two offenses per inmate are reported, usually the two most serious, for parole release records. If an inmate receives an additional offense after admission that is more serious than the original offenses, the inmate's record is updated to show that offense.

Explanatory notes

Maximum sentence and total maximum sentence

In Illinois and Maryland persons receiving indeterminate sentences were reported as "not known" on sentence length.

In Virginia "life" includes prisoners with sentences of "life without parole" and "death".

Texas reports only total maximum sentence instead of maximum sentence for the offense with the longest sentence.

Minimum time to be served

Maryland did not report "minimum sentence" because there is no statute establishing minimum sentence.

Prison release date

In the Federal prison system and Maryland, the prison release date on parole exit records is the date parole supervision begins, not the actual release date.

Prison release method

In Massachusetts, "parole board decision" includes some inmates released by the Massachusetts parole board to another parole board.

In New York, "parole board decision" includes some inmates released by "commutation/pardon."

On prison release records in South Carolina, "parole board decision" includes inmates released from a Youthful Offenders Act sentence to a straight sentence and vice versa. Also "other unconditional release" includes those inmates who paid a fine after serving some prison time; those whose sentence was reduced; those who were retried; and those released for medical reasons. On parole release records, "parole board decision" includes inmates released to supervised furlough.

In Wisconsin, "parole board decision" includes early releases because of overcrowding.

In New York, "mandatory parole releases" includes early releases for good time served.

In Minnesota, "other conditional releases" includes work release.

Mississippi's "other conditional releases" includes split sentences, work release, and supervised earned releases.

New York codes "releases to custody, detainer, or warrant" as either "parole board decision" or "mandatory parole release."

In Ohio, "other conditional releases" consists of releases for educational or vocational purposes, inmates paroled or shock paroled, on detainer, and under interstate compact.

In Oklahoma, "transfers to probation and probation from house arrest" are coded as "probation release."

In South Carolina, "other conditional releases" consists of Emergency Powers Act releases, which include Supervised Furlough II, the Emergency Prison Overcrowding Powers Act, and EPA II.

For the California Youth Authority, "other conditional releases" includes some discharges to prison.

"Other unconditional releases" in Maryland, Ohio, and Texas consists of court-ordered releases.

"Other unconditional releases" in Minnesota consists of discharges of persons with indeterminate sentences by the releasing authority.

In Mississippi, "other unconditional releases" includes shock probation, court suspensions, and court-ordered releases.

In Nebraska, "other unconditional releases" consists of persons whose sentence was vacated.

In Tennessee, "other unconditional releases" consists of unconditional releases to probation.

In Ohio, "other releases" consists of inmates-at-large who did not belong to any other NCRP category.

In Texas, "other releases" includes inmates released to attend vocational or educational facilities.

Parole release method

In the Federal prison system, "discharged, completion of term" includes absconders, inmates whose convictions were reversed, and inmates who were pardoned.

Maryland includes inmates who failed to comply with special conditions of their parole as "discharged, absconder."

In New York, "other releases" includes parole board decision (discretionary after 3 years) court-ordered releases; new revocations, not pursued; and cases in the revocation process in which statutory requirements were not fulfilled.

In Pennsylvania, "other releases" includes persons who have reached their maximum expiration date and are in one of the following categories: criminal charges pending, absconder, and returned to home State.

Admissions to State prison

In 1991, 35 States and the California Youth Authority reported 390,699 admissions accounting for nearly 89% of all admissions to State prisons in that year. (See "Prisoners in State and Federal Institutions, 1991" in Correctional Populations in the United States, 1991, NCJ-142729.) The 1991 data on entering prisoners provide a profile which resembles that of past reports. Inmate subgroup differences for sentence length and minimum time to be served may have resulted from factors not described in the tables. (See Methodology, page 2.)

New court commitments — offenders entering prison directly from a sentence by a court and not from an unsuccessful period of community supervision — comprised over half of all prison admissions (table 1-1). Parole violators accounted for more than a third of all admissions.

- Males comprised 92% of all admissions to State prisons (table 1-2).

- Whites accounted for 46% of all State prison admissions; blacks, 53%; and other races, primarily American Indians and Asians, 1%. Hispanics of all races made up 20% of all reported prison admissions. The median age of all admissions was 28 years.

- More than a quarter of the persons entering prison had been convicted of a violent offense (table 1-5). Robbery was the most common violent crime, accounting for 10% of new court commitments.

- More than 1 of every 4 men and 2 of every 5 women had been convicted of a drug offense. Slightly more than 40% of Hispanic prisoners had been convicted of a drug offense.

- Of new court commitments under 18 years old, 54% of the black offenders were admitted for a violent offense, compared to 36% of the white offenders (table 1-6). Of those over age 44, whites (40%) were more likely than blacks (27%) to have been admitted to prison for a violent offense.

- The median maximum sentence length for persons admitted to prison in 1991 was 48 months (table 1-9).

- Violent offenses carried the longest median maximum sentence (72 months). The median sentence for property was 36 months; drug offenses, 42 months; and public-order offenses, 24 months.

- The median sentence for murder was about 90 years in prison, longer than for any other individual offense.

- Overall, black prisoners received median sentences 12 months longer than white prisoners (48 months compared to 36 months) (table 1-10). Black offenders also received longer median sentences for violent, drug, and public-order offenses. Black and white prisoners had the same median sentence for property offenses.

- State correctional officials were asked to estimate a minimum time that admitted prisoners would have to serve before becoming eligible for release (table 1-11). Factors used in this estimate include minimum sentence length, good-time credits, earned-time credits, parole eligibility requirements, and early release requirements and allowances. In those States reporting both maximum sentence length and minimum time to be served, the median sentence length overall was 54 months and entering prisoners were expected to serve slightly less than half of that time, 24 months.

- The median minimum time to be served by violent offenders was 36 months; by property offenders, 20 months; drug offenders, 24 months; and by public-order offenders, 18 months.

- In 1991, sentences of life in prison or death were received by 2% of all offenders who entered prison; slightly less than half of the murderers received a sentence of life in prison or death (table 1-14).

Half of State prisoners received a maximum sentence of 48 months or less

Note: Data are based on new court commitments with a sentence of more than a year for whom sentence length and minimum time to be served were reported. Data on minimum time to be served and maximum sentence length were reported for 57.2% of the 241,975 new court commitments with a total sentence length of more than a year for whom the most serious offense was reported.

^aMaximum sentence length is the sentence length that an offender may be required to serve for the most serious offense.

^bMinimum time to be served is the jurisdiction's estimate of the shortest time that each admitted prisoner must serve before becoming eligible for release.

^cIncludes sentences of life without parole, life plus additional years, life, and death.

Releases from State prison

Release data for 1991 are based on information provided by 34 States and the California Youth Authority. These States reported a total of 325,757 releases, which accounted for nearly 81% of the releases from State prisons. (See "Prisoners in State and Federal Institutions, 1991" in Correctional Populations in the United States, 1991, NCJ-142729.) Of the total, 235,389 were first releases, those released from prison for the first time on their current sentence. Excluded from first releases were persons who had previously been conditionally released from prison for the same offense and then were returned to prison for violating the conditions of that release. All data on offense distribution and time served are limited to first releases. Inmate subgroup differences for time served may have resulted from factors not described in the tables. (See Methodology, page 2.)

- Almost 90% of all those released from prison were released conditionally — completing their sentences under supervision in the community (table 2-1).

- Men made up the vast majority (92%) of all persons released from prison (table 2-2). Whites accounted for 48% of all releases; blacks, 51%; and persons of other races, 1%.

- Violent offenders accounted for 24% of the first-time releases; property offenders, 36%; drug offenders, 29%; and public-order offenders, 9% (table 2-3).

- The median time served for murder was 78 months; for nonnegligent manslaughter, 46 months; for rape, 44 months; for robbery, 27 months; and for assault, 15 months.

- Among property offenders the median time served was longest for arson (18 months) and burglary (15 months).

- Overall, the median time served for drug offenses was 12 months. Drug traffickers spent an average of 4 months longer than those convicted of drug possession (a median time of 14 months and 10 months, respectively).

- Slightly less than half of all first releases had served a year or less in prison before their release in 1991; 7% had served more than 60 months (table 2-4).

- Overall, men served longer than women. The median time served was 14 months by men, compared to 10 months by women (table 2-5).

- The median time served for blacks (14 months) was one month longer than for white offenders (table 2-6).

- The median time served for blacks was longer than that for whites for all violent offenses except for assault and other sexual assault.

- Among Hispanic first releases, the median time served on a violent offense was 22 months in prison; for a property offense, 12 months; a drug offense, 14 months; and a public-order offense, 9 months.

- Among those releases with data reported on minimum time to be served, the median maximum sentence length was 48 months, the minimum time estimated to be served was 20 months, and the time actually served was 18 months (table 2-8). On average, offenders had served 35% of their maximum sentence before release.

- Overall, offenders released through a parole board decision had served a median of 14 months (table 2-9). Mandatory parole releases, whose time had been set by statute, had served a median of 13 months. Unconditional releases had served a median of 18 months.

^aThe percent of maximum sentence length is calculated by dividing the mean minimum time to be served and the mean time served by the mean maximum sentence length. Detailed percentages may differ because reported means are rounded.

^bMaximum sentence length is the sentence length that an offender may be required to serve for the most serious offense.

^cMinimum time to be served is the jurisdiction's estimate of the shortest time that each admitted prisoner must serve before becoming eligible for release.

^aA conditional release occurs if the released inmate, upon violating the conditions of the release, can be imprisoned again for any portion of the sentences the inmate had not yet served in prison.

^bDiscretionary release occurs when a parole board approves a conditional release to community supervision.

^cMandatory release occurs when a statute requires that a prisoner be released conditionally. The prisoner has served time equal to the full sentence minus good time, if any. A mandatory release must meet the requirements of a conditional release until the sentence expires or until a period set by law has elapsed.

^dAn unconditional release occurs only if the inmate is released without being required to submit to community supervision and the inmate cannot be returned to prison to serve any remaining portion of the original sentence.

First entries to parole from State prison

Most prisoners leaving State prisons in 1991 were released to supervision in the community. In these data covering 34 States and the California Youth Authority, there were 194,411 first entries to parole supervision from State prisons. These prisoners were released to parole either by decision of a parole board (discretionary parole release) or by provision of the statute under which they were sentenced (mandatory parole release).

State statutes often determine what conditions prisoners must fulfill to enter parole. For example, some States specify the fraction of a sentence that offenders must serve — such as a third or a fourth — before entering parole. Other States have a mandatory minimum time to be served for certain crimes or for specified circumstances of a crime. Yet other States have parole guidelines that set ranges of time to be served for different types of crimes.

- In 1991, males comprised 91% of all those entering parole (table 3-1).

- Whites made up 46% of the 1991 parole-entry population, blacks 53%, and other races 1%.

- The median age of persons entering parole was 29 years.

- About 24% of all offenders entering parole supervision had served time for a violent offense; 35% for a property offense; 30% for a drug offense; and about 9% for a public-order offense (table 3-2).

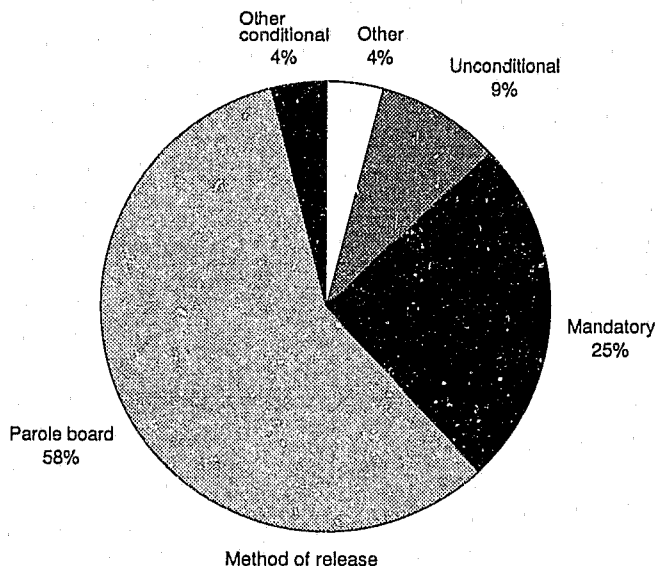

- A higher percentage of releases from State prison entered parole supervision from a parole board decision than from a mandatory parole release (70% versus 30%) (table 3-3).

- The median maximum sentence for all parole entries was 48 months while the median time served for was 14 months (table 3-4).

- On average, all persons paroled in 1991 had served slightly more than a quarter of their total sentence in prison prior to their release (table 3-5).

- On average, violent offenders served 35% of their mean total sentence in prison before their parole; property offenders served 23%; drug offenders served 22%; and public-order offenders served 28%.

About 87% of first State prison releases were released to parole

About 24% of first entries to State parole were violent offenders

Discharges from State parole

In 1991, 27 States and the California Youth Authority reported 186,789 discharges from parole supervision, with 99,590 discharged for the first time on their current sentence.

Most parole terms end with a discharge from the supervising agency or a return to prison. Parole revocation rates reflect various factors, including parole policy as well as parolees' behavior. The release of high-risk offenders because of crowded facilities, strict surveillance of parolees, rigid enforcement of parole conditions, and longer parole terms may contribute either singly or in combination to failure rates.

- Among all persons discharged by State paroling agencies in 1991, 41% successfully completed parole (table 4-2). Forty-three percent of white offenders were successfully released from parole, compared to 38% of black offenders. Slightly more than a third of Hispanics successfully completed community supervision.

- Among first discharges from parole, that is, persons released from parole for the first time for a particular offense, 61% completed parole successfully (table 4-3).

- Of State parolees discharged in 1991, 73% of the whites and 54% of the blacks had successfully completed parole supervision after their first release from prison on their current sentence.

- Among those who were discharged from community supervision, more blacks (41%) than whites (24%) were returned to prison or jail for violating the conditions of parole.

- Individuals convicted of property offenses were the least likely to successfully complete their first parole term (table 4-5).

- Among State parole discharges the highest percentage of returns to prison or jail were reported for offenders serving sentences for stolen property (40%), robbery (39%), burglary (36%), and murder (32%).

- On average, successful first State parole discharges served a total time in prison and on parole of 44 months; violent offenders, 63 months; property offenders, 39 months; drug offenders, 35 months; and public-order offenders, 32 months (table 4-6).

- All successful first State parole discharges served, on average, 73% of their sentence under some form of correctional supervision; violent offenders, 71%; property offenders, 75%; drug offenders, 73%; and public-order offenders, 91%. Those convicted of murder or arson served the smallest portion of their sentence in prison and on parole, 62%.

- On average, men spent more time in prison and on parole than women for every type of offense except rape, stolen property, weapons, and driving while intoxicated (table 4-7).

- Overall, whites had served a mean of 22 months in prison and 21 months on parole, while blacks served 23 months in prison and 22 months on parole (table 4-8).

- On average, blacks spent more time in prison and on parole than whites for violent offense and for public-order offenses; and less time than whites for property and drug offenses.

- The average total time served in prison and on parole was 44 months for successful first discharges from State parole compared to 45 months for unsuccessful first discharges (table 4-12). Compared to successful discharges, unsuccessful discharges served about 4 months longer in prison and 5 months shorter on parole before their discharge.

Admissions to Federal prison

- In 1991 Federal prisons reported admitting 38,542 persons — 23,000 with sentences of more than 12 months; 14,794 with sentences of 12 months or less; and 2,578 for whom total maximum sentence length data were not reported (table 5-1).

- Men comprised 89% of all Federal admissions.

- Whites made up 71% of all offenders admitted to Federal prison; blacks, 27%; and members of other races, primarily Asians and Native Americans, 2%.

- Prisoners with sentences of more than 12 months were on average older than those with short sentences (a median age of 34 compared to 31).

- About 7% of blacks admitted to Federal prison, compared to 4% of whites, were violent offenders. Forty percent of whites and 51% of blacks were entering prison for drug offenses (table 5-2).

- Among Hispanics admitted to Federal prison, almost half were immigration violators, and over a third were drug offenders.

- A third of offenders with "other" racial origins — Native Americans, Asians, or Pacific Islanders — were admitted for violent offenses, particularly assault (13%) and other sexual assault (12%).

- Approximately 61% of all persons admitted to Federal prison with a sentence of more than 12 months had been convicted of drug abuse violations — 34% convicted of trafficking and 27% of other or unspecified drug offenses (table 5-7).

- Among prisoners admitted with sentences of 12 months or less, 37% were convicted of immigration law violations, 16% were convicted of drug violations, and 21% were convicted of fraud offenses, such as embezzlement, fraud, or counterfeiting.

- Overall, 5% of all persons admitted to Federal prison in 1991 had been convicted of a violent offense.

- The median maximum sentence for all admissions was 21 months (table 5-9). The large number of short-sentenced immigration offenders, who comprised 17% of all admissions, heavily influenced this median.

- The median sentence of all admissions for violent offenses was 51 months, while that for drug offenders was 55 months. The median sentence for property offenses was 11 months and for public-order offenses, 6 months.

- For those entering prison with a sentence of more than 12 months, the median maximum sentence was 49 months; for violent offenses, 61 months; for property offenses, 24 months; drug offenses, 60 months, and for public-order offenses, 27 months.

- Men entering Federal prison had received a median maximum sentence that was 6 months longer than that of women (median sentences of 21 months and 15 months, respectively) (table 5-10).

- The overall median sentence length for whites admitted to prison was 18 months, a median influenced by the large number of short sentences among immigration violators. The median sentence for blacks was 36 months.

Half of the Federal prison admissions sentenced to more than 12 months received a maximum sentence of 49 months or less ^aExcludes those admissions with an unknown maximum sentence length, and minimum time to be served.

^bMaximum sentence length is the sentence length that an offender may be required to serve for the most serious offense.

^cMinimum time to be served is the jurisdiction's estimate of the shortest time that each admitted prisoner must serve before becoming eligible for release.

^dIncludes sentences of life.

^eExcludes sentences of life.

Releases from Federal prison

- In 1991, 28% of the 28,876 prisoners leaving Federal prison for the first time on a sentence were released conditionally to supervision in the community (table 6-1). Mandatory parole, a release established by statutory guidelines rather than a parole board decision (discretionary), comprised nearly 38% of the conditional releases.

- Among the first releases sentenced to more than 12 months, 46% left prison when their sentence expired, and 50% left before expiration, with conditions attached to the remainder of the sentence.

- Males constituted the majority (90%) of all releases from Federal prison (table 6-2). Whites accounted for 72% of the releases; blacks, 25%; and members of other races, 2%.

- Hispanics comprised 32% of the first releases from Federal prison. Slightly less than half of those with sentences of 12 months or less were Hispanic.

- About 58% of first releases from Federal prison in 1991 had served 12 months or less, and 19% had served 13 to 24 months (table 6-3). Overall, 23% of the prisoners released for the first time on a sentence had been in prison more than 2 years.

- Among first releases with sentences of 12 months or less; 51% served less than 4 months before their release (table 6-4). The median time served was 4 months. This median is relatively low because immigration offenders served a median of 2 months. Immigration offenders accounted for 38% of first releases with sentences of 12 months or less.

- Of first releases sentenced to more than 12 months, half served 23 months or less before their release (table 6-5).

- First releases with sentences of more than 12 months served a median of 45 months in prison for violent offenses; 25 months for drug offenses; and 18 months for property offenses and for public-order offenses.

- Among individual offenses, the median time served for kidnaping was the longest, 68 months; for homicide, 66 months; for rape, 41 months; for robbery and assault, 46 months; for arson, 34 months; for burglary, 23 months; and for drug trafficking, 24 months.

- For mean time served by first releases with sentences of more than 12 months, men served more time in prison than women for every offense except weapons and immigration offenses (table 6-8).

- Overall, men served a median of 24 months, and women, 20 months. For male violent offenders the median time served was 6 months longer than that for women; for male property offenders, 3 months longer; for male drug offenders, 4 months longer; and for male public-order offenders, 1 month shorter.

- For first releases sentenced to more than 12 months, little difference separated the median time served by white and black offenders, except for violent offenses (table 6-10). Black violent offenders served 18 months longer than white offenders (a median sentence of 59 months and 41 months, respectively) (See Methodology, page 2.)

- Mandatory releases with sentences of more than 12 months served 36 months in prison, 1 month shorter than discretionary releases (table 6-11).

- Prisoners released at the expiration of their term served the least amount of time, a median of 16 months.

Half of Federal prisoners sentenced to more than 12 months served 23 months or less in prison of rounding.

First entries to parole from Federal prison

- Men made up 92% of the 7,219 entries to parole from Federal prison in 1991 (table 7-1).

- White offenders comprised 71% of all parole entries; black offenders, 27%; and offenders of other races, 3%. Hispanic entries, who could be of any race, were 18% of the total.

- The median age for parolees at the time of their release from prison was 38 years.

- On average, parole entries had graduated from high school. Fifteen percent had completed eight grades or less.

- Among first releases from Federal prison to parole, 52% had been released by a parole board, and 48% were mandatory releases (table 7-3).

- A higher percentage of public-order offenders than of other offenders was released from prison and entered parole as a result of mandatory guidelines. Sixty-six percent of weapons violators were mandatory entries.

- Among parole entries for whom complete data exist on maximum sentence and time served in prison, half served 36 months or less in prison on a median maximum sentence of 60 months (table 7-4).

- Violent and drug offenders on average served a smaller proportion of their maximum sentences than other types of offenders. The mean time served in prison by violent offenders, 70 months, was 48% of the mean maximum sentence; the mean time served by drug offenders, 40 months, was 48% of the mean maximum sentence. The mean time served by property offenders was 31 months, or 51% of the mean sentence and by public-order offenders, 35 months, or 55%.

- Among first releases, the average times served in prison before a discretionary release and before a mandatory release were the same, 42 months (table 7-5).

- Among violent offenders, discretionary releases had served 9 months longer on average than mandatory releases (a mean of 75 months compared to 66).

- For all offenses among parole entries for whom complete data exist on mean maximum sentence length and mean time served in prison, whites served a greater percentage of their sentence in prison before being released (49%) than did blacks (46%) (table 7-6). The mean maximum sentence of white parolees was 81 months and mean time served was 40 months. The mean sentence of black parolees was 95 months, and time served, 44 months.

Discharges from Federal parole

- Among the 7,012 individuals discharged from Federal parole, 64% were successful in leaving supervision and reentering the community, 22% were returned to prison, and 2% died (table 8-1).

- Women were slightly more likely to complete parole successfully than were men (70% and 63%, respectively). White parolees (70%) were more likely than blacks (48%) to have successfully completed parole.

- Among Federal parole discharges, violent offenders were the most likely to be returned to prison (table 8-3). Forty-nine percent of the violent offenders were returned to prison, compared to 23% of the property, and 19% of the drug and public-order offenders.

- Overall, drug offenders were the largest group discharged from Federal parole (43%) (table 8-4). Property offenders were second largest at 27%, followed by violent, 16%; and public-order offenders, 14%.

- Among those successfully discharged from parole, 47% were drug offenders; 28% were property offenders; 15% were public-order offenders; and 10% were violent offenders. Drug trafficking was the largest individual offense group (42%), followed by robbery (8%).

- For those unsuccessful discharges from parole who were returned to prison — 34% were drug offenders, 31% were violent offenders, 25% were property offenders; and 10% were public-order offenders. Drug trafficking was the largest individual offense group (30%), followed by robbery (27%) and larceny/theft (9%).

- The median time served on parole for all offenses was 20 months (table 8-5). The median time on parole for violent offenses was 22 months; for property offenses, 19 months; drug offenses, 21 months; and public-order offenses, 16 months.

Federal discharges successfully completing parole served on average 64 months under correctional supervision; those unsuccessfully completing parole, 91 months

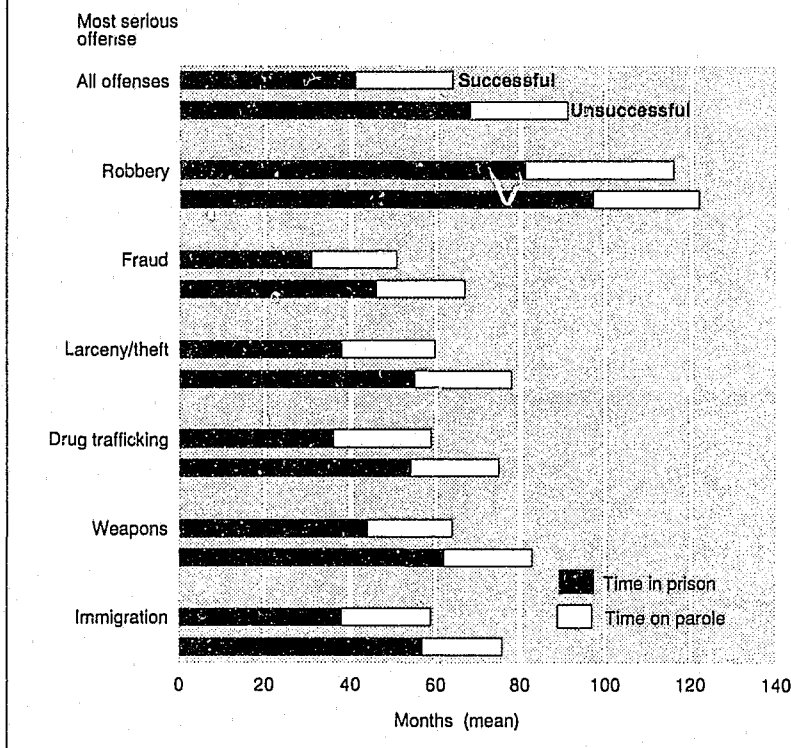

Figure 8-1. Federal parole discharges: Time served in prison and on parole by offense and method of parole discharge, table 8-8

- Among those who successfully completed parole, whites had a longer median time served on parole than blacks, except for violent offenders (table 8-6). Overall, whites spent 4 more months on parole than did blacks; 4 months longer than blacks for property offenses; 7 months longer for drug offenses; and 1 month longer for public-order offenses. Among violent offenders the median time on parole was 4 months longer for blacks than for whites.

- Among parolees returning to prison, the median time served on parole for whites was 1 month longer than for blacks (19 versus 18 months) (table 8-7). Among violent offenders returned to prison, black parolees had been on parole for a median of 20 months and white parolees for a median of 17 months.

- Successful parole discharges for whom data were reported on both time in prison and on parole served a median of 32 months in prison and 21 months on parole (table 8-8). Unsuccessful parole discharges served a median of 54 months in prison and 18 months on parole.

Correctional Populations in the United States, 1992

The 8th annual BJS report on the Nation's jail and prison inmates, probationers, parolees, and inmates under sentence of death, available spring 1994.
Send in your order *today!

- In one book, you get a summary of criminal justice characteristics of the population under correctional supervision — admission type, release type, sentence length, escapes, probation and parole violations, facility crowding, and deaths in prison.

- The book presents data State by State, except for local jails.

- More than 150 pages of tables, questionnaires, and explanatory text represent all major components of corrections: probation, jail, prison, parole, and persons under sentence of death.

- Aggregate data describe inmates or persons under community supervision — their sex, race, and Hispanic origin.

- 26 large tables, based on individual-level data, present detailed information on persons who entered prison under sentence of death, who were executed, or whose capital sentence was removed. The information includes criminal history, sex, race, age, marital status, and level of education.
