FOREWORD

This report provides a unique comparative study of persons under the supervision of the United States Probation System on June 30, 1968 and about 4½ years later on January 23, 1973. It covers persons placed on probation by the court, U. S. magistrates and under deferred prosecution as well as parolees and mandatory releases from federal correctional institutions using three major demographic characteristics: age, prior criminal record and offense.

In addition, a detailed Appendix provides for each district court comparative figures on age, prior criminal record and offense for the two census dates.

The 1968 statistics are based on computer summaries supplied from a case reporting system submitted to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts by the Federal Probation System. For the January 1973 census, the individual Federal Probation Offices were asked to furnish summary reports on persons under supervision. The success of this report is due to the efforts of the Federal Probation Office personnel.

Upon receipt of the 1973 data, it was analyzed in relation to the June 30, 1968 persons under supervision summary. The result is the first comparison of its type in the history of the Federal Probation System.

The report was prepared with the cooperation of the Division of Probation, Mr. Wayne Jackson, Chief; and under the supervision of Mr. James A. McCafferty, assisted by Mr. Thomas Wilson, Mrs. Delores Sawyer and Mrs. Norma Stern, of the Operations Branch, Division of Information Systems.

CENSUS OF PERSONS UNDER SUPERVISION OF THE FEDERAL PROBATION SYSTEM
JUNE 30, 1968 and JANUARY 23, 1973

The Federal Probation System supervises persons placed on probation by the courts, United States magistrates, and at the request of the United States attorneys under a process known as deferred prosecution. Probation officers also supervise offenders released from confinement on parole or through a mandatory release.

A census of persons under active supervision was obtained as of June 30, 1968 and January 23, 1973 to examine any changes which had occurred in recent years in the composition of the caseload of the United States probation officers. Chart 1 shows the number of persons under supervision in 1968 and 1973, by type of supervision.

Three descriptive categories were selected due to their common acceptance as indicators of anticipated difficulty in the adjustment of an offender under supervision. These three factors which help determine the need for greater or lesser supervision are: the offender's age, the extent of prior criminal record, and the nature of the offense which brought the offender under supervision.

The factor of age exhibits a high degree of association with the success or failure of an offender on probation or parole. The younger the offender the greater the risk that he will violate the conditions of his release. The more extensive his prior record the more likely he will be involved in future criminal behavior. Finally, there exists a substantial difference in violation rates according to the nature of the offense committed by the offender.

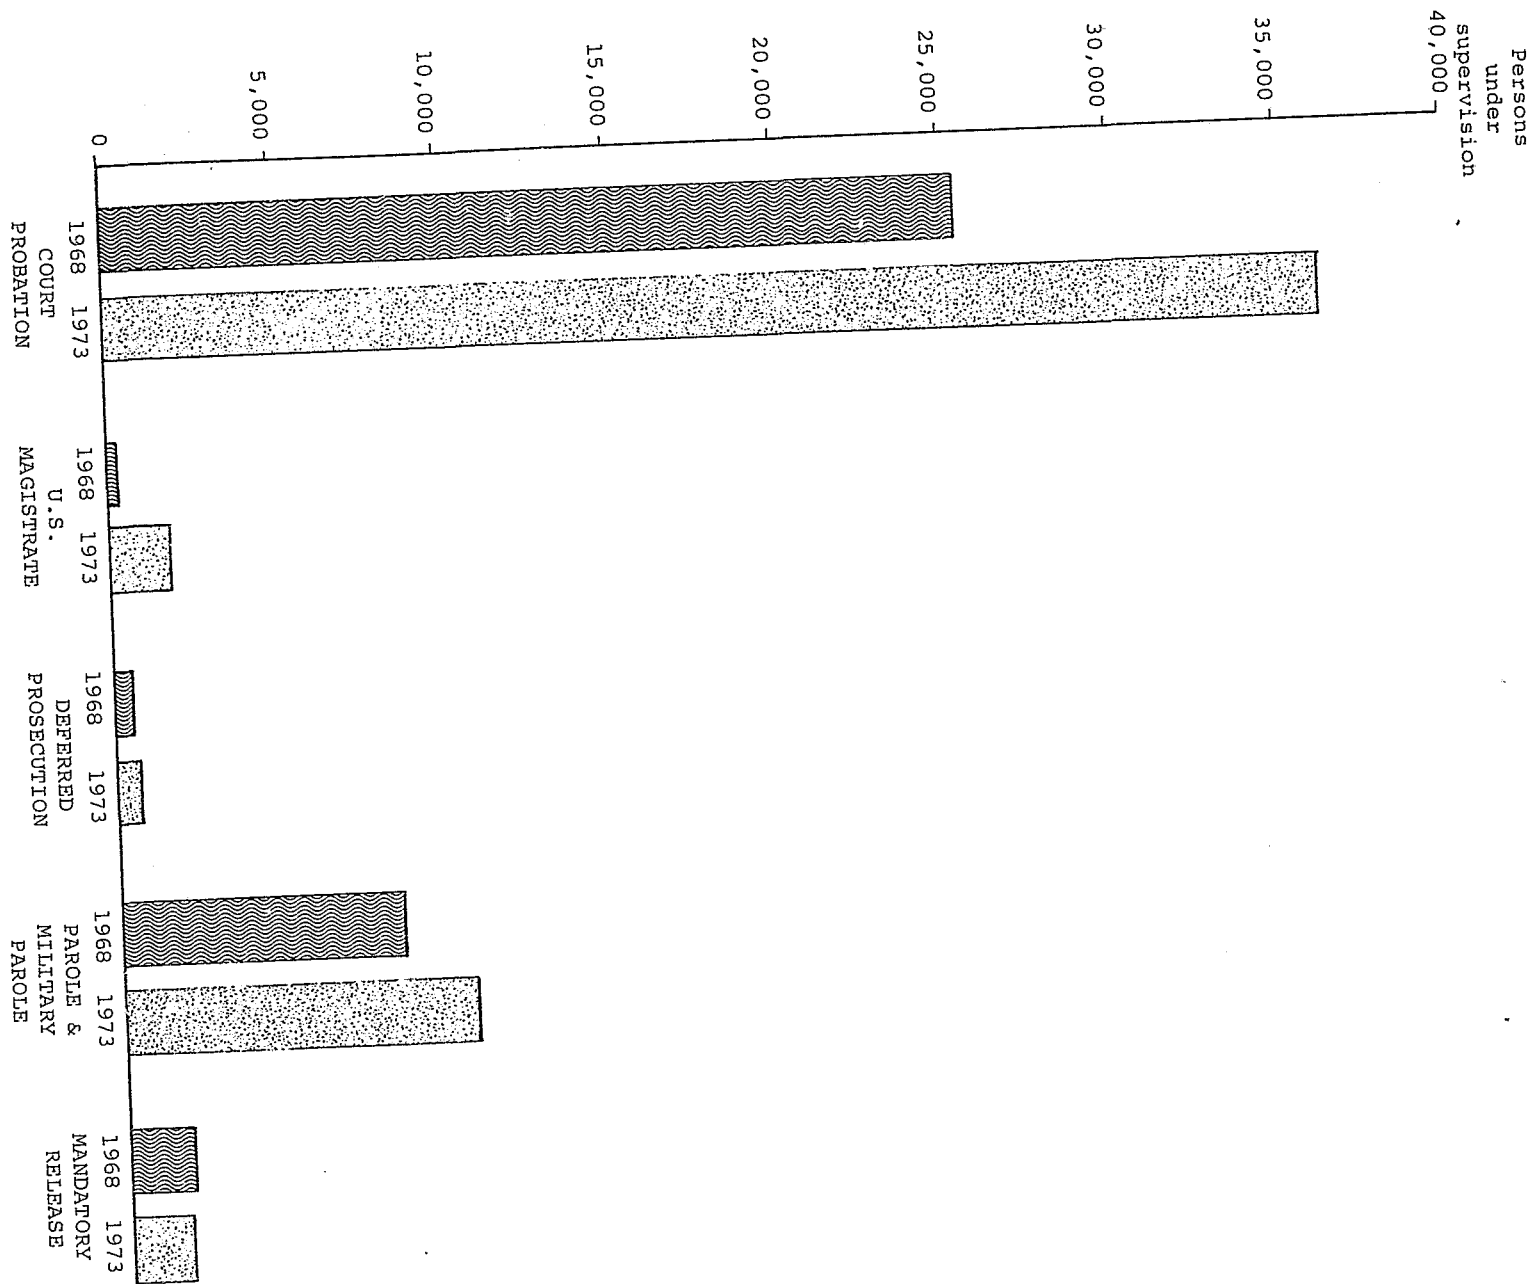

To determine what changes had occurred in recent years in the composition of the caseload, the results of the census for January 23, 1973 were compared with similar data for June 30, 1968. During this period the number of persons under supervision increased 40 percent from 36,799 to 51,528.

Persons received for and removed from the supervision of the Federal Probation System are shown for fiscal years 1968 to 1973 by type of supervision in Appendix Table 4.

Table 1, indicates a marked trend toward a younger population of offenders under supervision. In 1968, 27 percent of the population was 24 years of age or younger when received for supervision. By January 1973 this proportion had increased to 39 percent. The total number of persons in this age category increased from 9,891 to 19,987 an increase of 102 percent. Chart 2 shows the age distribution of persons under supervision in 1968 and 1973.

Although a greater proportion of persons received for supervision were younger in 1973, Table 2 reflects that the percentage of offenders with prior criminal records has not increased since 1968. Of those persons under supervision in 1973 for whom a statement of prior record is available, 15 percent have a prison record and 40 percent have a prior record of jail, probation, or juvenile delinquency.

It is noteworthy that 33 percent of the parole cases have been in prison at least once before, whereas 71 percent of the mandatory release cases had prior imprisonment. The prior criminal records of persons under supervision are presented in Chart 3.

Table 3 reflects the significant increases in the number of persons under supervision for certain types of offenses. Since 1968, the number of persons under supervision for assault has increased 58 percent, for robbery--81 percent, for marijuana--122 percent, and for narcotics--170 percent. Chart 4 shows the major offense groupings for persons under supervision.

The Appendix contains a series of tables showing the type of supervision as well as the age, prior record and major offense for persons under supervision by circuit and district. An analysis of this data indicates that some noteworthy changes took place between June 30, 1968 and January 23, 1973.

I. PROBATION

There are several classifications under probation. The largest group are those persons given terms of probation directly by the district court. The other groups comprise persons placed on probation by United States magistrates or by deferred prosecution.

A. COURT PROBATION

Probationers may be received indirectly from court under a split sentence, mixed sentence, or delayed supervision. A split sentence is a jail term up to six months, followed by a term of probation up to 5 years. With a mixed sentence, probation follows a term of imprisonment for conviction on another count. Delayed supervision is when probation supervision is postponed because of conviction in a hospital or correctional institution on a separate conviction and the prisoner is later placed under supervision for the new charge.

1. AGE GROUP

A review of this area indicates a trend towards younger offenders. The proportion aged 24 and under increased sharply from 25 percent in 1968 to 39 percent in 1973. Whereas in the over 40 age group the proportion declined from 33 percent in 1968 to 23 percent in 1973.

2. PRIOR RECORD

There was a slight increase in the proportion of probationers who did not have a prior criminal record. In 1968, 45 percent of the probationers had no prior record reported, that is, were first offenders; compared to 49 percent in 1973. Persons with prior jail records accounted for 18 percent of all probationers from the district courts with prior record information available in 1968; whereas in 1973, this group declined to 13 percent.

3. OFFENSE

The major offenses of persons supervised under court probation are shown in Chart 5. Table 3 reflects significant increases in the number of persons under court probation for certain types of offenses. Since 1968 the number of persons under court probation supervision for marihuana increased by 132 percent, counterfeiting increased 221 percent, narcotics--512 percent, weapons and firearms--543 percent, and Selective Service Act violations--666 percent.

There was a 39 percent decrease in the number of probationers convicted of auto theft. This downward shift is a result of the policy of the Department of Justice to prosecute only those auto thefts linked with organized crime or multi-theft violations; leaving the remaining cases to state and local prosecutors.

B. U. S. MAGISTRATE PROBATION

On July 1, 1971 the Federal Magistrates Act became fully effective in all United States district courts. The act authorizes magistrates to perform all those duties previously performed by United States commissioners. In addition, the act permits magistrates, where authorized by their district court, to try and sentence persons charged with "minor offenses". This new term refers to misdemeanors punishable under the laws of the United States, the penalties for which do not exceed imprisonment for a period of one year, or a fine of not more than $1,00, or both. This act thus gives magistrates a substantially greater trial jurisdiction than that enjoyed by the former commissioners, who could only try petty offenses (6 months imprisonment and/or $500 fine) committed on property within the exclusive or concurrent jurisdiction of the United States.

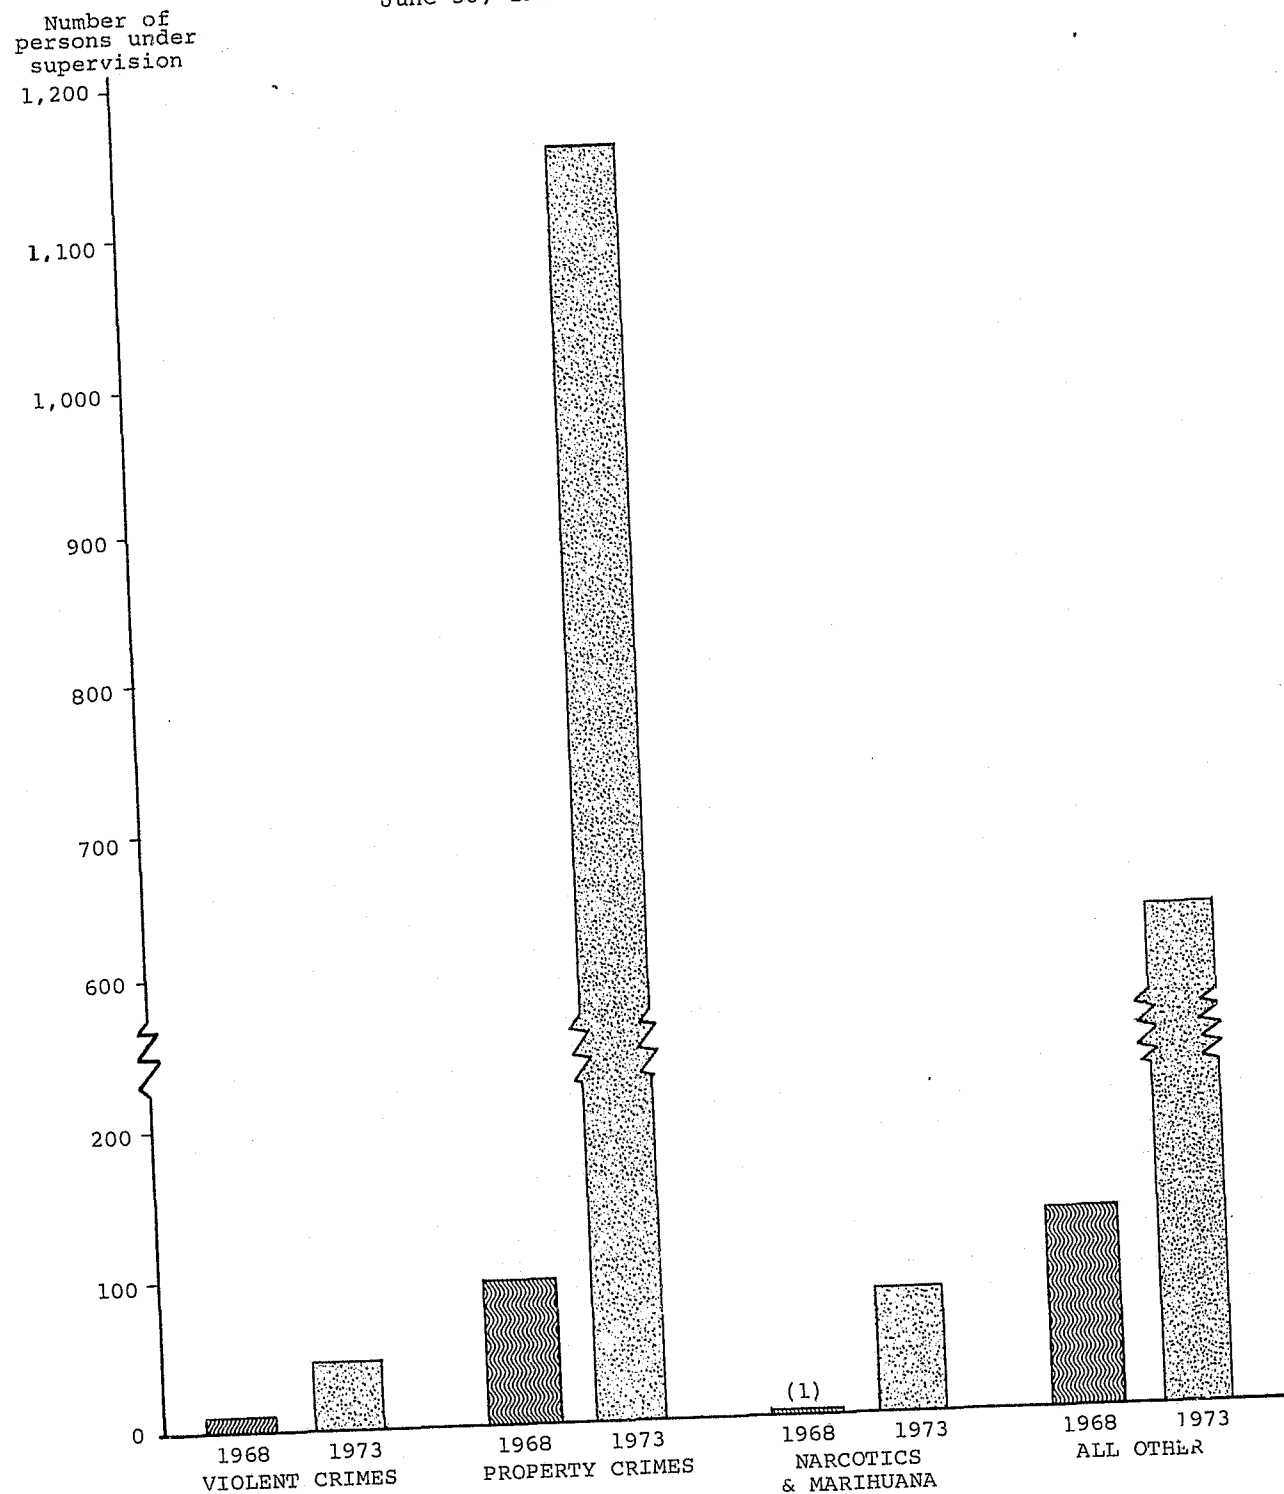

Following passage of the Magistrate Act of 1971, there has been a substantial increase in the number of persons placed on probation by United States magistrates.

1. AGE

The age distribution of persons under U. S. magistrates probation again demonstrates a trend towards younger offenders. The number of persons aged 24 years and under increased from 44 to 50 percent of the total, while the 25 to 39 year age group increased from 27 to 34 percent.

In U. S. magistrates probation as in court probation the age group of 40 and over shows a decrease. In 1968, 29 percent of the population fell into this age category whereas in 1973 only 16 percent were so reported.

2. PRIOR RECORD

Magistrate probation again closely parallels the trends observed for those under court probation supervision. Almost 6 out of every 10 persons placed on magistrate probation had no prior record (57 percent in 1968 and 63 percent in 1973). For those with prior jail records there was a decline from 11 percent in 1968 to 7 percent in 1973. The proportion of offenders without any type of prior record increased from 57 percent to 63 percent.

3. OFFENSE

Because of the increased responsibilities of the magistrates there are some very noticeable changes in the types of offenses for those placed under supervision, as shown in Chart 6. In 1968 there were no persons charged with embezzlement under supervision, while in 1973, there were 109 embezzlers placed under probation supervision by U. S. Magistrates.

For larceny and theft, including the interstate transportation of stolen property the number of probationers increased from 82 in 1968 to 250 in 1973. However, the most substantial increase was for persons placed under supervision for postal law violations (other than theft). In 1968 there were 6 probationers as compared to 723 in 1973.

C. DEFERRED PROSECUTION

Under a procedure known as deferred prosecution, criminal prosecution of a person charged with a federal offense is waived by the United States attorney and the offender is supervised for a limited period of time by a United States probation officer. Deferred prosecution was introduced primarily for handling juvenile cases in which criminal prosecution seemed undesirable. This type of supervision has also been extended to young adults and a few older offenders.

1. AGE

As already noted--this type of supervision was primarily designed for the juvenile offender. In the past 5 years there have been some noteworthy shifts in the age groups placed under deferred prosecution. There has been a decrease in the 24 and under age group from 96 percent in 1968 to 90 percent in 1973. However, in the two older age groups there have been increases; from 3 percent to 8 percent for the 25-39 age group, and from 1 percent to 2 percent for the 40 and over age group.

2. PRIOR RECORD

The figures for this category again reflect the special nature of the deferred prosecution program, that is to place under supervision persons with little or no prior contact with law enforcement agencies. In 1968, 88 percent of this particular probation population had no prior criminal record. In 1973 there was a slight decrease to 85 percent. Almost all of this decrease can be accounted for by a corresponding increase in the percentage of persons with prior probation records.

3. OFFENSE

Three offense groups demonstrating sizable increases since 1968 are: Marihuana up from 18 to 61 persons under deferred prosecution supervision; narcotics up from 1 to 30 in 1973, and weapons/firearms, which increased from 3 to 25. Chart 7 illustrates the major offense categories for these offenders.

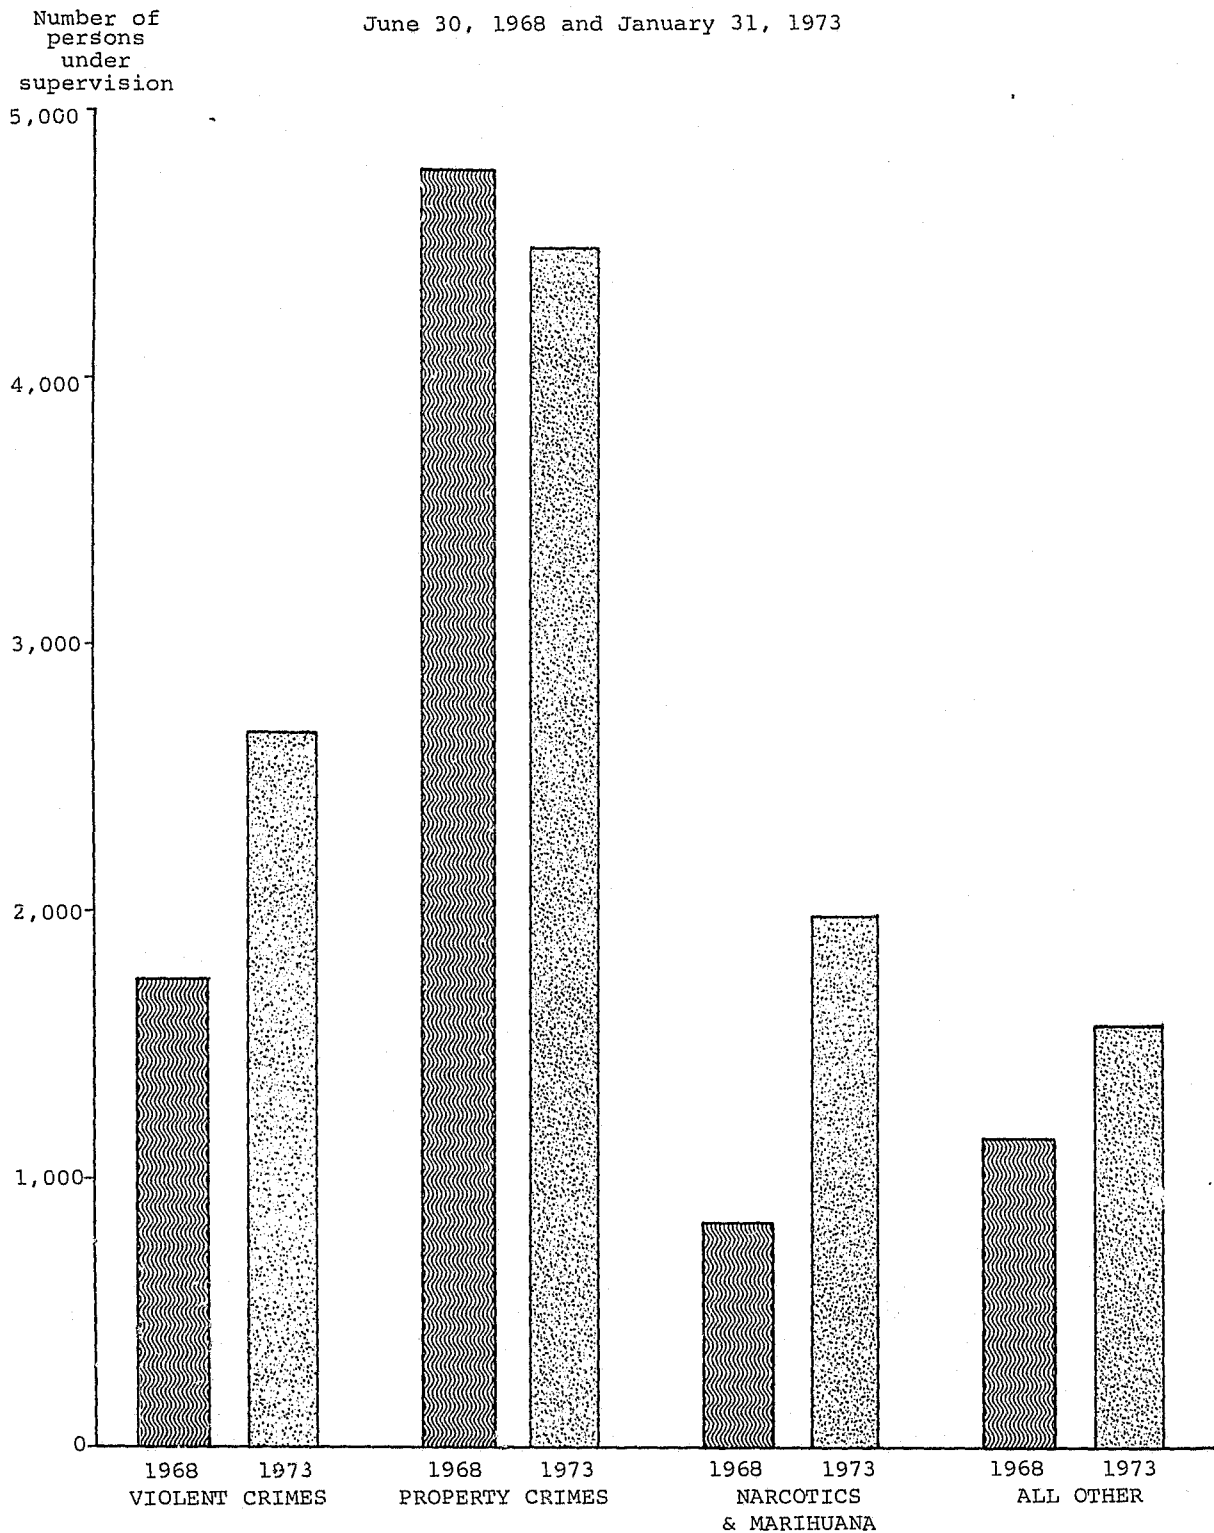

II. PERSONS RECEIVED FOR SUPERVISION FROM INSTITUTIONS

Federal prisoners may be released from confinement prior to the expiration of their terms of imprisonment in two ways; by parole or by mandatory release. The greatest proportion so released have served terms of confinement in federal correctional institutions. A smaller group comprises persons originally sentenced by military courts who are released on parole or mandatory release in the community.

A. PAROLE AND MILITARY PAROLE

Persons sentenced under the regular sentencing provisions of Federal law are eligible for parole supervision after completion of one-third of their original sentences. In addition, those sentenced under the indeterminate provisions of the law may be eligible for parole in less than 1/3 of their sentence as the United States Board of Parole may determine (18 U.S.C. 4208 (a) (2)), or after the expiration of the minimum time in custody fixed by the court (18 U.S.C. 4208 (a) (1)).

MAJOR OFFENSE GROUPS OF PERSONS UNDER PAROLE & MILITARY PAROLE SUPERVISION

Source: Administrative Office of the United States Courts

Sentences of youth offenders under the Youth Corrections Act and sentences of juveniles proceeded against under the Federal Juvenile Delinquency Act are also indeterminate and the Board of Parole may act at anytime. The Youth Corrections Act requires at least two years of the sentence to be served on parole. The standard six year sentence requires initial parole no later than four years from the date of conviction.

The Federal Juvenile Delinquency Act allows persons who committed an offense before their eighteenth birthday to be placed in the custody of the Attorney General and committed to an appropriate institution. Commitments are for a definite period of time not to exceed either the juvenile's twenty-first birthday or the maximum sentence permitted by law for the particular crime.

As indicated above, the Federal Probation System also supervises a small group of persons sentenced to prison by military courts and subsequently placed on parole or mandatory release. Confinement may be in either a military correctional facility or an institution administered by the Federal Bureau of Prisons. Military parolees are released from military institutions under the authority of the Department of Defense. The United States Board of Parole determines the release of military prisoners confined in Federal correctional institutions.

1. AGE

Again the figures demonstrate the trend towards younger offenders. In 1968, 32 percent of the parole population was in the 24 and under age group, compared to 38 percent in 1973. The two older age groups decreased slightly from 45 percent to 44 percent (25-39 years) and from 23 percent to 18 percent (40 years and over).

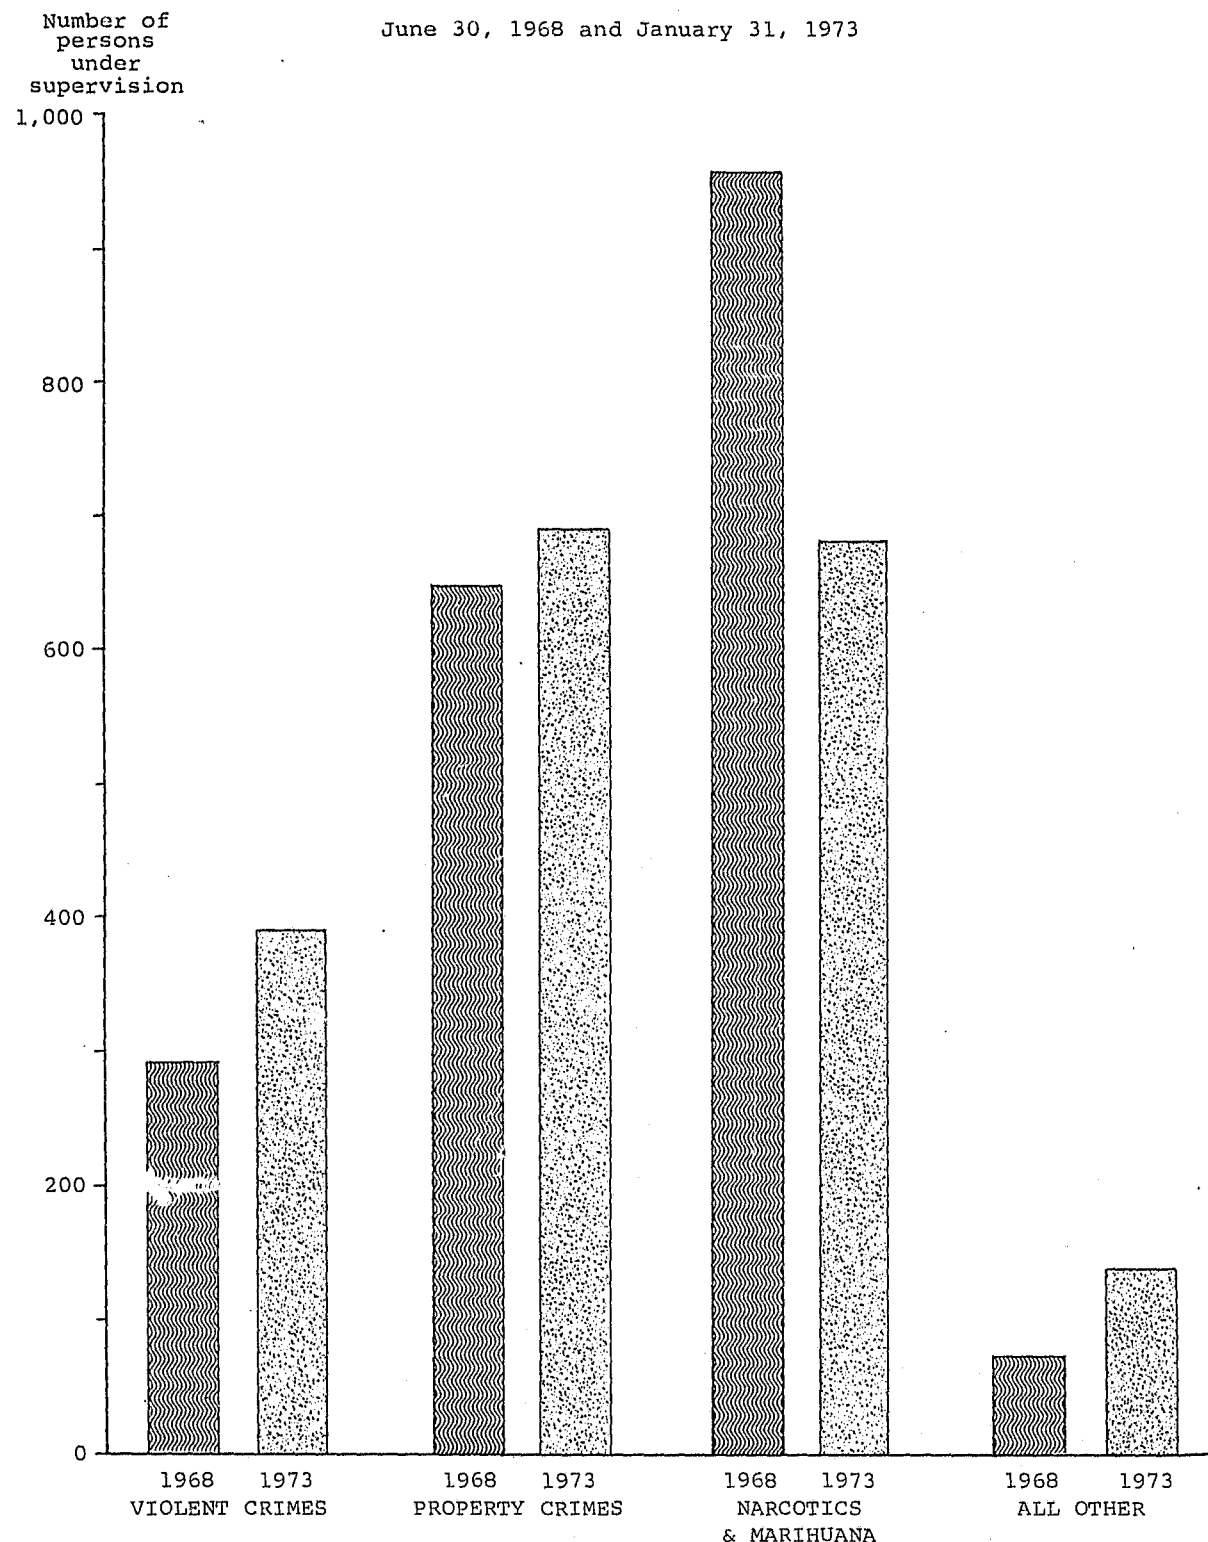

2. PRIOR RECORD

Approximately one out of every four parolees had no prior criminal record, 24 percent in 1968 and 26 percent in 1973. The proportion of persons under supervision with prison records increased from 30 to 33 percent, while there was a decline in prior jail records from 19 percent in 1968 to 14 percent in 1973.

3. OFFENSE

Overall there was a 25 percent increase over 1968 in the number of persons under parole supervision to 10,692 in 1973. Noteworthy increases occurred in the following offense groups: assault, up 96 percent from 84 to 165 persons under supervision; counterfeiting, up 69 percent from 254 to 429; marihuana, up 119 percent from 454 to 995; and narcotics, up 156 percent from 386 to 987. Marked decreases can be noted for forgery, down 38 percent from 794 in 1968 to 493 in 1973, and in liquor laws, down 56 percent, from 513 to 225.

MAJOR OFFENSE GROUPS OF PERSONS UNDER MANDATORY RELEASE SUPERVISION

Source: Administrative Office of the United States Courts

The major offenses of parolees are shown in Chart 8 for years 1968 and 1973.

B. MANDATORY RELEASE

A prisoner is eligible for mandatory release when he has served his full term of imprisonment less "good time" allowances. If an inmate has earned over one-hundred eighty days of good time credits he is released to the supervision of the probation officer for the period of his good time which exceeds 180 days. Persons released from prison under mandatory release usually serve longer terms of confinement, but have shorter periods of supervision than do persons released on parole.

1. AGE

Because of the particular conditions related to this type of supervision the overwhelming majority of mandatory releases consistently fall into the two older age groups. Only 6 percent and 9 percent were found in the 24 and under age group in 1968 and 1973.

2. PRIOR RECORD

It is characteristic of mandatory release supervision that the great majority of persons have prior records; over 90 percent in both years. Seven out of every ten persons in 1968 and 1973 had prior prison records.

3. OFFENSE

The number of persons supervised under mandatory release declined 4 percent from 1968 to 1973. There was an increase however for larceny and theft from 88 to 175. Major decreases occurred for the following offenses; marihuana, down 57 percent from 91 to 39; forgery, down 51 percent from 156 to 76; and homicide, down 49 percent from 45 to 23.

Chart 9 describes the major offense categories for persons under mandatory release supervision.
