CHIEF CONSTABLE'S OPENING REPORT

TO THE CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE POLICE AUTHORITY.

I have pleasure in presenting my report on the Cheshire Constabulary for the year ended 31st December 1973.

I am delighted that, for the first time since I have been Chief Constable of Cheshire, I can report a DECREASE in crime. Compared with the previous year the crime in 1973 showed a reduction of 5.71%. It would be very rash to give a reason, but I think some credit can be taken by all operational branches of the Force. The uniform patrolling, crime prevention department, and criminal investigation department have each made their contribution. The rate of detection is 50% compared with 48% the previous year.

As we are about to enter on another reorganisation it is heartening to record that all buildings in our programme planned by the present Police Authority have started and should be completed next year. At the same time, we have been able to hand over to Merseyside and Greater Manchester many excellent new and well-built stations.

A great deal of our time in 1973 has been taken up with reorganising the Force to coincide with Local Government Boundaries, and this is the last report to the present Police Authority and on the Cheshire Constabulary as it now exists. I am sure that members of the Authority must regret, as much as I do, the changes affecting the Force on 1st April 1974. Since 1967 an amalgamated Force has been built up to a standard of which the Authority and members of the Force can be proud. This is the result of a great deal of hard work and co-operation by all concerned, and I am extremely grateful to everyone for the support I have received.

Finally, I take this opportunity to thank all members of the Force for their loyalty and the members and officials of the Police Authority for their continued support and encouragement.

H. Watson

CHIEF CONSTABLE.

WARNING AND MONITORING

Police officers are responsible, on behalf of the Home Office, for ensuring that the public warning equipment is maintained in good working order and that a sufficient number of people are trained in its use.

Following publication of the 1971 census figures, much work has been done to identify those parts of the county that have developed outside the warning range of existing equipment, and to arrange for the installation of new equipment in those areas.

The training of civilians who would have a responsibility for operating warning and monitoring equipment has continued. 26 Classes were held and 140 persons attended, during the year.

Chapter III CRIME AND PROCEEDINGS

CRIME

During 1973, crime in Cheshire fell by 5.71% when compared with 1972, the first reduction since 1969.

37,558 offences were recorded, whilst reported crime totalled 39,020 complaints. The detection rate increased to 50%.

It is pleasing to note a reduction in a wide range of offences, significantly unauthorised taking of motor vehicles, burglary, robbery and most classes of theft; although offences of wounding and damage have risen during the year.

CRIME PREVENTION

There has been active participation in the field of crime prevention by the whole force during the year.

The duties connected with prevention, which are considered out of the routine of everyday police work, have been performed by the Crime Prevention Department consisting of one inspector, ten sergeants and a constable.

The department's work has involved all aspects of crime with particular emphasis being paid to crimes of burglary, theft of vehicles and robbery.

Surveying of vulnerable property and new properties in the early stages of construction resulted in either verbal advice or detailed written survey reports being supplied in respect of over 3,000 premises. Many follow up visits were made to premises over the implementation of these recommendations. There is increasing evidence that the protection, both physical and electrical, has reached a stage where it is becoming a positive deterrent to crime. Intruder alarm systems increased by almost a thousand (1,827 '999' alarms; 1,104 direct line into police stations; 130 direct line into alarm company central stations; 20 other type silent systems and 2,535 purely audible alarms).

There are now 5,616 alarms and by far the greatest increase has been in the 'silent' types of systems. Over the latter months there has been a marked increase in the number of alarms being fitted into dwelling houses.

A new policy was implemented in anticipation of the increased number of alarms and the inevitable false calls. All new subscribers of silent type systems were sent an advice letter together with a request for two key holders residing nearby, with a telephone and suitable means of transport. Alarm companies and subscribers were warned verbally and by letter following several false calls and the withdrawal of police response was implemented in respect of a few troublesome systems. There have been fewer false calls received than in 1972, which is a remarkable achievement considering the increase in alarm systems.

128 genuine calls from 'silent' systems resulted in 79 persons being arrested for burglary. One of the main causes of persons not being arrested at every genuine call resulted from the activation of the delayed action bells before the police arrival.

The number of radio alarms and triggering devices held by the force was doubled. These were installed on 320 occasions by Crime Prevention Officers and as a result 40 persons were arrested at premises and charged with burglary. A new wallet bug alarm installed to detect petty pilferage resulted in a person being arrested for theft.

Liaison was maintained with the Drug Squad officers over the security of chemist shops in relation to the implementation of the Misuse of Drugs (Safe Custody) Regulations 1973.

Special efforts were made to communicate with the community as a whole by the greater use of the mass publicity media, i.e. 340 talks and lectures, many of which were accompanied by slides or one of the Crime Prevention films. 27 exhibitions, including the use of the Home Office Crime Prevention Caravan on 20 of these occasions, were staged selectively at shows, markets, housing estates and at the two police station open weeks; a 'Stop Autocrime' campaign was launched in January and continued throughout the year; a pre-Christmas campaign involving the distribution of 15,000 letters and leaflets dealing with the transportation of cash and valuables on foot and by vehicle was mounted.

A distribution was made of 300,000 leaflets, posters, bookmarks and stickers covering all aspects of crime prevention and to some crimes in particular, e.g. "Another car vanishes". Many items of propaganda material were designed and produced during the year.

Liaison and co-operation was maintained with insurance companies and surveyors, local authorities, architects, banks, post offices, National Supervisory Council for Intruder Alarms, local departmental police forces, welfare organisations, explosive experts, Police Technical Equipment (Operational Trials) Centre, security organisations, schools, education authorities and youth clubs,

Rifle clubs, ranges, firearms dealers and explosive stores were visited at frequent intervals and included the making of recommendations for the improvement of security. Crime Prevention Officers also dealt with the renewal of all firearm dealers certificates and the security arrangements of many firearm certificate renewals.

The Birkenhead, Stockpart, Crewe, Runcorn and North East Cheshire Crime Prevention Panels continued to play their part in the prevention of crime, perhaps the most noteworthy activities being the fitting of over 500 door chains by Birkenhead and a successful two week campaign by the North East Cheshire Panel.

DRUG SOUAD

The Drug Squad has a staff consisting of 1 Detective Inspector, 3 Detective Sergeants, 3 Detective Constables and 3 Detective Policewoman. A Dog Handler is also attached to the Squad, his dog having been specially trained to detect the presence of Cannabis.

The Squad is divided into three units of 1 Detective Sergeant, 1 Detective Constable and 1 Detective Policewoman based at Chester, Bromborough and Stockport. The Detective Inspector and Dog Handler are also based at Headquarters, Chester.

The Misuse of Drugs Act 1971, came into force on the 1st July 1973 and, as a result, all previous drugs legislation was repealed. It incorporates most of the offences contained in the Dangerous Drugs Acts and the Drugs (Prevention of Misuse) Act but also introduces other offences which tend to differentiate between the drug user and the trafficker.

The following table shows a comparison of drug offences during a three year period:

| Offence | | | | 1971 | 1972 | 1973 |

Assistance was also given to another Police Force when 4 Drug Squad officers were seconded to a neighbouring area on the occasion of an open air 'Pop Festival'. The drug dog was also used on this occasion.

Close liaison with Customs and Excise officers is maintained and security checks have been carried out at Ringway Airport, using Customs Officers, Drug Squad Officers as well as the drug dog.

CRIMINAL INTELLIGENCE SECTION

The section has at present an operational strength of 1 Detective Inspector and 3 Detective Sergeants whose object is to obtain from all possible sources information on persons known or suspected of being engaged in crime and to assess, interpret and disseminate that information for action by other operational units. In addition, a civilian clerk employed in the Section office at Hecaquarters maintains the various indices which embody information on criminals operating in and around the Force area. Modus Operandi and Crime Indices are also maintained by the Section to keep abreast of current crime trends. The nominal index of persons of interest to the Criminal Intelligence Section is interspersed with the Wanted Persons and Stolen Car Indices where the information is available to the Force on a 24 hour basis.

Personal liaison is kept with Intelligence Officers of surrounding Forces, Divisional Collators, Officers of the Regional Crime Squads, Drug Squad and Special Branch, also with C.11 Branch at New Scotland Yard and the Central Drugs and Illegal Immigration Intelligence Unit, producing a regular exchange of invaluable information.

SUPPORT GROUPS

There are two C.I.D. Support Groups in the Force area, one based at Brombarough and the other at Stockport, each under the command of a Detective Superintendent.

The Groups are normally divided into teams deployed on the investigation of crime in support of Divisional C.I.D. In an incident of serious crime, or where there is a series of troublesome crimes continuing over a period, the teams come together and operate as a Group to undertake the major part of the investigation.

During the year the Support Groups have given valuable assistance in liaison with Divisional C.I.D., Drug Squad and Regional Crime Squad in various investigations and operations resulting in the arrest of several active criminals.

330 were in relation to crime, 1,636 related to unfitness to drive motor vehicles, the remainder were of a miscellaneous nature.

Two scenes of crime officers attended a course of one week at the Laboratory in connection with their specialised duty.

Special two day courses were held in which six Detective Inspectors and sixteen Detective Sergeants took part.

Chapter IV TRAFFIC, ROAD SAFETY AND COMMUNICATIONS

TRAFFIC

The level of police involvement in education of road users, preventative patrolling and enforcement of road traffic legislation has again risen. Considerable reductions in the number of accidents and casualties have been achieved during the year. In terms of percentages the Cheshire figures present a brighter picture than the national figures.

TRAFFIC MANAGEMENT

The increased number of vehicles leads to more traffic congestion and a constant exchange of views has taken place during the year between the police and highway authorities, in an attempt to improve the traffic flow and reduce accidents. It is essential that consultation should be made at an early stage when traffic management proposals are being considered if they are to be successful.

Meetings have been held at many accident black spots in an attempt to improve conditions, and we have regularly attended meetings with representatives of local authorities and other organisations to discuss proposals to improve traffic conditions.

During the year work has continued on further sections of the M56 Motorway, the Ellesmere Port Motorway and the extensions of the Expressway and the bus way system at Runcorn New Town. Police Officers have attended regular meetings in connection with these and other major road construction schemes.

ROAD SAFETY

Divisional Road Safety Officers represent the police on the various local road safety committees within their area, and the Chief Superintendent, Traffic, is a member of both the Merseyside and South East Lancashire and Cheshire Accident Prevention Federations.

Co-operation with local authority organisations in the running of predriver training schemes in schools has continued. Visits to schools and other educational establishments continue to be a regular function of the department, and in this respect, an attempt to influence road users' attitudes has been tried out with the older age groups at colleges of further education and senior schools. These schemes have been well received by the teaching staffs of these establishments.

Road Safety exhibitions have been staged in various parts of the County during the year. Two major exhibitions in connection with "Open Weeks" at Crewe and Wallasey Police Stations have been staged, together with many further exhibitions with other organisations.

Training schemes in connection with the National Cycling Proficiency Scheme have been supported and the department has been active in both training and testing of candidates.

The Force Road Safety Review entitled "Facts and Figures" continues to be published monthly.

3 of the accidents did not involve school children or school crossing patrols.
