NCJRS

This microfiche was produced from documents received for inclusion in the NCJRS data base. Since NCJRS cannot exercise control over the physical condition of the documents submitted, the individual frame quality will vary. The resolution chart on this frame may be used to evaluate the document quality.

Microfilming procedures used to create this fiche comply with the standards set forth in 41CFR 101-11.504

Points of view or opinions stated in this decument are those of the author(s) and do not represent the official position or policies of the U.S. Department of Justice.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE LAW ENFORCEMENT ASSISTANCE ADMINISTRATION NATIONAL CRIMINAL JUSTICE REFERENCE SERVICE WASHINGTON, D.C. 20531

prepared by SOUTH CAROLINA LAW ENFORCEMENT DIVISION • In cooperation with SOUTH CAROLINA EDUCATIONAL TELEVISION NETWORK

SOUTH CAROLINA LAW ENFORCEMENT-ETV TRAINING PROGRAM -

FROM CRIME TO COURT

Part HL2

"Homicide", Section 1,

Study Workbook

LAW ENFORCEMENT - E.T.V. TRAINING PROGRAM

besic Criminal Law"

Part II

"Homicide", Section I

Ву

C.T. Goolsby, Jr.
Assistant Attorney General
(South Carolina)

Sponsored by

South Carolina Law Enforcement Division in cooperation with South Carolina Educational Television Network

Endorsed by

South Carolina Governor, Robert E. McNair South Carolina Sheriffs' Association South Carolina Law Enforcement Officers' Association South Carolina Police Chiefs' Executive Association South Carolina F.B.I. National Academy Associates South Carolina Southern Police Institute Associates

Program Objectives

The material contained herein relates to its accompanying TV presentation. It enlarges upon the general topic of "Basic Criminal Law", dealing with such matters as MURDER - VOLUNTARY MANSLAUGHTER.

LAW ENFORCEMENT - ETV TRAINING PROGRAM

"Basic Criminal Law", Part III

"Homicide", Section I

Review and Study Workbook

INSTRUCTIONS: This review and study workbook is designed to be of use both during the group discussion period, which follows a television program, and by you at home on your own.

It should serve as 1) an effective aid to the Group Discussion Leader and to you for engaging in group discussions after you have viewed a TV program; also it should serve as 2) a means for you to privately check and see how well you learned the points covered in the TV lesson; and 3) as an opportunity for you to review the material on your own, at home, to be sure that you have gotten all out of the TV program and the group discussion that you want to.

Here is how the Study Workbook is to be used.

FOR THE GROUP DISCUSSION PERIOD

For the group discussion period which follows the television program, the discussion leader will provide you with the general and specific instructions. Just be sure that you write the answers he provides you in the space between the dashed lines and not in the blank spaces of the body of the items themselves. You will see what is meant when you get into the workbook proper.

FOR HOME REVIEW AND STUDY

Use the Workbook for review and study on your own as follows:

Before you get to the first item, cover the printed text of the workbook with a blank sheet of paper. Slide the blank paper down until you come to a triple star or asterick (***). Continue reading the printed material, above the stars, until you come to a numbered blank.

Fill in the blank with the word, words, or sentences which is/are missing to make sense out of the sentence so that it will then read correctly.

After you have filled in all of the blanks which are contained in an item, slide the loose sheet of paper down from its position, even with the stars, until it is just far enough to reveal the numbered correct answer or answers. These will be the answers which you have already filled in during the group discussion period. The numbers on these answers will correspond to the numbered blank or blanks which you will have just completed in the body of the item at home.

Next, slide the blank paper down past the printed material of the next item until you come to another set of three stars. Stop the blank paper so as not to reveal the answers. Answer the item by filling in the blanks. Proceed throughout the Workbook as just described.

By using this method at home, you can both (1) check to see how well you have learned the content of the associated television program and you can (2) find out immediately, item by item, whether the answer you have just given is correct.

Even after the workbook has been filled in, both in the blanks contained in the body of the items and between the dashed lines, it provides an excellent means for review.

An EXAMPLE of how to use this "Study Workbook" at home is as follows:

When a person is found dead and his death appears as though it had been caused by foul play, an officer would question whether some form of the crime of (1) had been committed.   NOTE: Throughout the Workbook, the three stars indicate that, when working at home, you should not slide your blank paper farther down the page until you have given your answer or answers by filling in all the blanks in the item after you have written your answer or answers, slide the blank paper on down to reveal the correct answer.
Answer: (1) homicide+ (see footnote at bottom of page)
Note: Although the answer or answers is/are provided on this page of examples, ordinarily this page would not contain the answer or answers until you write it/them in during the group discussion period.
As another example, an item might call for more than one answer:
(Now, slide the blank paper down past the next item, stopping when you come to the three stars, and proceed, as above.)
A distinction which is made by some states, but not by South Carolina, is to identify murder as either (2) murder.
xxx
*
Answers: (2) first degree (3) second degree
+ Note: In some cases there may be other words which mean the same thing as those given you as the answer. When this is true, the important fact is whether you have given an answer which does not differ significantly in meaning from the one given as the "correct"

answer.

If there are any further questions about how to use the "Study Workbook", either during the group discussion period or at home, please do not hesitate to ask your group discussion leader for additional information.
Now to proceed with your study and review!
Generally, the term "Homicide" refers to an act of (4)
•
***
Answer: (4)
Where one person kills another individual without legal (5) or (6), the act of killing will be deemed unlawful.
***
Answers: (5)(6)
(either order)
In the absence of a statute, the crime of homicide is either
(7) or (8)
***
~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~
Answers: (7)(8)
(either order)
(

anal	lovialitare a	. v (10)		many Langlet ar
	raughter c	ir (ro)		manslaughter.
**			•
900 MK 800 T	ni, baal good lays good book good good good good	ومن يسو لاحو منذ واح الدو الدو الدو الدو	حمد عمد من ومو المو المو المو المو المو المو المو	, and and the sale had sale had sale our day and but the the the and and and	and love lead ann and yang give time love love using using lead of	ومه عمم پسو هدد محم شا
	Answers:	(9)		Merchanisma (     ( ) ) Merchanisma chanisma cyanisma para chanisma chanism	ंत स्थानव्यवेद्यप्रसेशः अञ्चलप्रसंस्त्री र तेतरं (शक्तेशः) स्योत्स्त्रस्य स्थान्त्रः रेपने
			(elther	·
				tble when it is the re 111
				during the commissio
12)	de antic (to de anticipare) de adolestes ( to de la company e e en el company e en el company e en el company e	ing of Service I the annual of the Arms and	act in a (13	Alternative and appropriate (Control of States Control of States (States Control of States Control of	manner.
ት አ
	د پده چمې شند دمد کای همو شوک چمې پدمې	~~~~~	That then had got good that had not been the mad not you you may not		. See had not see the day has been been been been been been be-	a 100 700 per per 370
	Answers:	(11)	afficiente en pro-l'hier course de l'hieréneques productifies à 1 communique des descriptions de colonges and colonges	(12) <sub>(12)</sub>	i metali, maksajamisti metamistakon pay isinkekat kassal galeinem kilipsakstur y
	•			and position. Then I and and Company consists defendance developments to consultations. The conjugated the state of the conjugated the conjugated the state of the conjugated the co
	e put put may past that hid had that the	~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~			, while think (JM) who first part than was not man you at a so
	A "homici	de <sup>n</sup> is j	ustifiable when	it is committed in (1	4)
				eras että 1900-tuutuvain juun valatavaitus ja jaminemakaisen ja 1900-tuvaisen 1900-tuu alkaisen ja ja ja vasti	garanti esperita la la companio de la companio del la companio de la companio del la companio de la companio del la companio de la companio de la companio del la companio de la companio de la companio del la co	, ·
		The state of the s
·16·16
	A and a control of the control of th	(14)	Not NOT This data find case game unit, dest too you man have need may have	ent man han han han ann ann ann ann an an an an an an an	**********
	Answers:
		(15)		(16)		- 1
			Coith	er order)

The	killing of a person who was going to die anyway is/is not
(26)	a homicide.
***
	Answer: (26)
dying. of life at all i sidered	are all going to die; thus, it is no defense that the person was The law regards the extinguishment by another of the last spark that is left in a human being as homicide. If there is any life in a human body, the destruction of that life by another is conhomicide. The victim's mental competency and one's physical immaterial.
Who	ere a person kills a living convict, whether the convict is under either a	life or death sentence, the killing will be regarded as a
(27)	•
***
to the sea too for one type to
	Answer: (27)
The	phrase, "born of woman", has a great deal of significance. Under the com	non law, it is not murder to kill an (28) child.
***
	Answer : (28)

The law requires that a child be physically (29) of the woman's body and be (30) before it can be regarded as a subject of homicide.
***
Answers: (29) (30)
It is sometimes stated that the child must have been wholly expelled from its mother's body and was possessed of or capable of an existance by means of (31)
****
Answer: (31)
Suppose a child is born alive in spite of an attempt to kill it while the child was in the mother's womb, and after it is born the child dies as a result of the prenatal attempts to kill it. A homicide has occurred.
The reason is because the child's death meets the two requirements to be considered a homicide victim. For one thing, it was (32)
Also, it was (33)
***
Answers: (32) (33)
~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~

It should be recognized, however, that while killing of an unborn child will not be treated as a homicide, the defendant would be guilty, in some cases, of violating the (34) statutes.
***
Answer : (34)
***************************************
Consider the following case. $\underline{A}$ wants to kill $\underline{B}$ . $\underline{A}$ gets his pistol and goes to $\underline{B}$ 's house. While $\underline{A}$ is on his way over to $\underline{B}$ 's house, $\underline{B}$ has a heart attack and dies as he sits in a chair in his living room. $\underline{A}$ goes to the window and see $\underline{B}$ sitting in the chair. $\underline{A}$ doesn't know that $\underline{B}$ has died. $\underline{A}$ shoots $\underline{B}$ through the head. A is/is not guilty (35) of a homicide.
***
~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~
Answer: (35)
***************************************
The reason that $\underline{A}$ is not guilty of homicide is because $\underline{B}$ must be
(36) in order to be a homicide victim.
***
Answer: (36)
In the above case, even though he is not guilty of homicide, $\underline{A}$ , nevertheles is guilty of the crime of (37)
***
Answer: (37)

Consider a case in which $\underline{A}$ shoots $\underline{B}$ in the head. $\underline{B}$ will die from this head-wound; however, before he dies, $\underline{c}$ comes along and stabs $\underline{B}$ in the heart.
This wound in the heart kills him. C could/could not (38) use as a defense the fact that $\underline{\mathtt{B}}$ was dying of a mortal wound inflicted by $\underline{\mathtt{A}}$ .
***
Answer: (38)
It makes no difference that the victim was dying at the time the defendant acted. If the act of the defendant hastens the death of the victim, he is guilty of a homicide. This would be true even though the victim was in a dying condition as a result of a mortal wound administered by someone other than the defendant.
Suppose $\underline{A}$ stabs $\underline{B}$ and $\underline{B}$ dies fifteen months later. $\underline{A}$ would/would not
(39) be guilty of homicide.
***
Answer: (39)
It is necessary that the death occur within (40)
after the defendant acted for him to be guilty of homicide.
***
Answer: (40)

The reason for this rule is that when death occurs more than a year and a day after the defendant's act, the law regards the death as due to (41) rather than due to the act of the accused.
***
Answer: (41)
In the example above, in which $\underline{A}$ stabs $\underline{B}$ and $\underline{B}$ dies fifteen months later, instead of being guilty of himicide, $\underline{A}$ would be guilty of (42)
***
Answer: (42)
A person must/need not (43) intend to kill a particular individual before he can be guilty of homicide.
***
Answer: (43)
~

The definition of homicide specifies the killing of one person by another person. The definition makes no reference whatever to intent. An actual intent to kill a person is not an essential element of homicide.

Murder, as well as manslaughter, may be predicated upon an (44) killing that occurs in the commission of an unlawful act.
***
Answer: (44)
If the intention of the defendant is to do an (45) act, this intention supplies the necessary mental element.
***
Answer: (45)
Suppose that a person, without any lawful excuse, fires a pistol into a crowd of people. He does this without intending to kill anyone. He just wants to scare them or to have fun. Despite his lack of an intent to kill anyone, he does so anyhow.
Because his conduct was extremely reckless, the law would say that he is guilty of a (46)
***
Answer: (46)
Suppose that a person desires only to inflict great bodily harm upon a victim. He does not intend to kill the other individual. He only wants to hurt him very bad.

If the victim dies as a result of the injury inflicted, the one causing the injury will be deemed guilty of a (47) even though it was not his (48) to kill him.
*
Answers : (47) (48)
The intent to cause grievous bodily harm or injury displays a disregard of (49) and, therefore, a person is held answerable for all the harm he does even though he does not specifically design (50)
***
Answers : (49) (50)
Consider the following case; $\underline{\mathtt{A}}$ shoots $\underline{\mathtt{B}}$ without intending to kill him or with the intent only to cripple $\underline{B}$ , however, $\underline{B}$ does die. $\underline{A}$ would be guilty of a (51)
***
f
Answer : (51)
***************************************
Consider another example: $\underline{A}$ wants to kill $\underline{B}$ , and sees $\underline{B}$ standing in

Consider another example:  $\underline{A}$  wants to kill  $\underline{B}$ , and sees  $\underline{B}$  standing in a crowd of people.  $\underline{A}$  shoots  $\underline{B}$  but the bullet strikes  $\underline{C}$  instead. Now here, there was an actual intent to kill someone; but the person that  $\underline{A}$  killed was not the one that he wanted to kill.

The fact that the homicidal act was directed against or intended to cause the death of one other than the person killed does/does not (52) relieve the slayer of criminal responsibility.
***
Answer: (52)
The fact that a bystander was killed instead of the intended victim is (53)· ***
Answer: (53)
The intent is transferred, in a sense, to the person whose death has been caused. As one court has stated, the malice or intent follows the bullet. There is an issue or complication here, however.
If the killing of the intended victim, in the example above, would have been (54) instead of "murder", then the unintended and accidental killing of the bystander would also be (55)•
***
Answers : (54) (55)

	notions of the bouletters of the nature of the homicide involved.
	****
	Answer: (56)
	In distinguishing between the crimes of murder and manslaughter, the
	(57) of the accused is an important factor.
	 *
	Answer : (57)
Ä
•	One's mental state determines which of the offenses, between murder and manslaughter, has occurred in a given case. Notice that the term is
	One's mental state determines which of the offenses, between murder and manslaughter, has occurred in a given case. Notice that the term is "mental state" - not "mental intent."  Where a person, other then the one that the defendant intends to kil
	One's mental state determines which of the offenses, between murder and manslaughter, has occurred in a given case. Notice that the term is "mental state" - not "mental intent."  Where a person, other then the one that the defendant intends to kil is slain, homicide partakes of the quality of the original act. Thus, the
	One's mental state determines which of the offenses, between murder and manslaughter, has occurred in a given case. Notice that the term is "mental state" - not "mental intent."  Where a person, other then the one that the defendant intends to kil is slain, homicide partakes of the quality of the original act. Thus, the guilt of the perpetrator of the crime, in the case where a bystander,
	One's mental state determines which of the offenses, between murder and manslaughter, has occurred in a given case. Notice that the term is "mental state" - not "mental intent."  Where a person, other then the one that the defendant intends to kil is slain, homicide partakes of the quality of the original act. Thus, the
	One's mental state determines which of the offenses, between murder and manslaughter, has occurred in a given case. Notice that the term is "mental state" - not "mental intent."  Where a person, other then the one that the defendant intends to kil is slain, homicide partakes of the quality of the original act. Thus, the guilt of the perpetrator of the crime, in the case where a bystander,
	One's mental state determines which of the offenses, between murder and manslaughter, has occurred in a given case. Notice that the term is "mental state" - not "mental intent."  Where a person, other then the one that the defendant intends to kil is slain, homicide partakes of the quality of the original act. Thus, the guilt of the perpetrator of the crime, in the case where a bystander,
	One's mental state determines which of the offenses, between murder and manslaughter, has occurred in a given case. Notice that the term is "mental state" - not "mental intent."  Where a person, other then the one that the defendant intends to kil is slain, homicide partakes of the quality of the original act. Thus, the guilt of the perpetrator of the crime, in the case where a bystander, instead of the intended victim is killed, will be determined by (58)
	One's mental state determines which of the offenses, between murder and manslaughter, has occurred in a given case. Notice that the term is "mental state" - not "mental intent."  Where a person, other then the one that the defendant intends to kil is slain, homicide partakes of the quality of the original act. Thus, the guilt of the perpetrator of the crime, in the case where a bystander,
	One's mental state determines which of the offenses, between murder and manslaughter, has occurred in a given case. Notice that the term is "mental state" - not "mental intent."  Where a person, other then the one that the defendant intends to kil is slain, homicide partakes of the quality of the original act. Thus, the guilt of the perpetrator of the crime, in the case where a bystander, instead of the intended victim is killed, will be determined by (58)

Consider this example: $\underline{A}$ intends to kill $\underline{B}$ but kills $\underline{C}$ instead.
If $\underline{A}$ would have been guilty of murder had $\underline{B}$ been killed, then $\underline{A}$ is guilty of murder for having killed $C$ ; however, if $A$ would have been guilty of only manslaughter had $\underline{\mathtt{B}}$ been killed, then $\underline{\mathtt{A}}$ is guilty of manslaughter for having killed C .
The question is (59)
······································
***
Answer: (59)
One's motive in killing another person is important, and a police officer in investigating a homicide ought to try to find out what it was. It is/is not
(60) an essential element of a "homicide."
***
Answer: (60)
Consider the following example: $\underline{B}$ is dying of cancer and is in terrible pain. A loves $\underline{B}$ very much and cannot bear to see $\underline{B}$ 's suffering. To put $\underline{B}$ out of his misery, $\underline{A}$ kills $\underline{B}$ . $\underline{A}$ is prompted by love in killing $\underline{B}$ . The act of A is/is not (61) considered homicide.
***
Answer: (61)

The above answer is so because  $\underline{\text{motive}}$  is not an  $\underline{\text{essential element}}$  of a homicide.

To summarize thus far, a homicide is a killing of a person by another individual.

If the homicide is inexcusable or unjustifiable, it is, of course, unlawful. The term "Homicide" will include the common law crimes of murder, voluntary manslaughter, and involuntary manslaughter. In South Carolina, there are no degrees of murder. Only a living human being that is born of woman can be a victim of homicide. The victim's mental and physical condition is immaterial. Neither an unborn child nor a dead person can be a homicide victim.

Where a person is dying and another accelerates the latter's death, the individual performing the act that hastens the other's death will be deemed guilty of homicide. On the other hand, where one inflicts an injury upon another from which he dies more than one year and a day later, the accused cannot be guilty of a homicide.

Neither intent to kill nor motive is an essential element of a homicide; but one's mental state is a factor which will be important in determining whether the crime of murder or manslaughter was committed.

When a person intends to kill a particular individual but kills a bystander instead, the defendant will be guilty of a homicide. As to whether, in such a case, the offense is "manslaughter" or "murder" will depend upon the mental state of the accused with regard to the intended victim.

A person is not legally responsible for the death of another individual unless his act (62) or contributed to the other person's death.
 *
Answer : (62)
For an act to be considered a cause of death, it is necessary that death be a natural or (63) result of the act in question.
 *
Answere (63)

It is not necessary that the result or consequences of the act should have actually been forseen or intended by the accused.

Consider a case in which  $\underline{A}$  points a gun at  $\underline{B}$ 's head and fires, the natural and probable result of  $\underline{A}$  pointing the gun at  $\underline{B}$ 's head and firing it is that  $\underline{B}$  will be put to death -- that is, be killed.

Suppose, A is "playing" and does not think that the gun is loaded when he has it pointed at B's head; but the gun is, as a matter of fact, loaded.

A does not intend to kill B. He doesn't actually foresee that he is going to kill B. A pulls the trigger, and a bullet, which A did not know was in the gun, enters B's head. As a result, B falls dead. A would be guilty of (64) ______.

****

Answer: (64) ______.

****

Answer: (65) ______.

It does not make any difference whether the person actually foresaw the consequences of his act or actually intended them.

An act may be too remote to be considered a cause of death.

If the victim would not have died as a result of the wound, and death was caused solely by an act of the victim or the attending physician, the person inflicting the wound is not responsible.

Consider another case of stabbing. $\underline{A}$ stabs $\underline{B}$ in the arm. The wound is not such in and out of itself to cause death. For example, the victim would not have bled to death. B does not seek medical attention. He is killed in an automobile accident the same day. In this case, $\underline{A}$ is/is no:
(71) guilty of homicide.
***
Answer: (71)
If a victim receives a wound from which he would not have died, but he dies because of his own act or that of his doctor, the person causing the wound would not be criminally responsible.
Take this example. $\underline{A}$ hits $\underline{B}$ on the head with a rock. The wound, if left untreated, would not cause death. However, $\underline{B}$ is anxious about his wound and goes to the doctor. $B's$ doctor is negligent in treating $B's$ superficial head wound and $\underline{B}$ dies as a result. $\underline{A}$ would/would not
(72) be responsible.
***
Answer : (72)

2:

Where a person wounds another and that wound develops into or initiates an affliction or disease from which the wounded person dies, the one causing the wound is (73) responsible.
*
Answer: (73)
Should $\underline{A}$ stab $\underline{B}$ , and $\underline{B}$ develops blood poisoning and dies, $\underline{A}$ would be guilty of (74)
***
Answer: (74)
Where one inflicts a wound upon another which develops into an affliction or disease from which he dies, the individual causing the wound will be criminally liable.
The above rule will be applied not only to diseases or afflictions (75) related with the wound - such as lockjaw - but to (76) conditions as well - such as pneumonia.
***
Answers : (75) (76)

In summary, for one to be legally responsible for the death of another person, he must have done the act, the natural and probable consequence of which is to produce death. The wrongdoer need not have actually foreseen or intended that his act cause death.

Where one does some act which is too remote to have brought about death, he will not be criminally responsible. Should one perform an act that could cause death but an independent intervening cause with which the person is not associated brings about another's death instead, the accused will not be guilty of a homicide.

A wrongdoer is not relieved of criminal liability where his victim acts negligently or carelessly.

In a case where a person wounds another and the person dies as a result of an affliction or disease that has developed from or has been initiated by the wound, the defendant would be guilty of a homicide.

Each person is strongly urged to retain their reference material. Prior to the next television program, the material contained herein should be reviewed in detail, because the law of homicide is most difficult and requires devoted study.

"Basic Criminal Law"

Part III Homicide, Section I

Study Workbook Answer Key

(1)	Homicide	(26)	is
(2) (3)	first degree second degree	(27)	homicide
(3)	(either order)	(28)	unborn
(4)	one person in killing another	(29) (30)	out living
(5) (6)	excuse justification (either order)	(31)	a circulation independent of its mother
(7) (8)	murder manslaughter (either order)	(32) (33)
(9)	voluntary	(34)	abortion
(10)	involuntary (either order)	(35)	is not accident	(36)	alive
	lawful lawful	(37)	attempted murder
` '	self-defense	(38)	could not
(16)	death serious bodily harm	(39)	would not
(17)	does not	(40)	a year and a day
	kills himself	(41)	natural causes
(19)	a person is killed by another	(42)	assault and battery with intent to kill
(20)	a human being	(43)	need not
(21)	is not	(44)	involuntary
(22)	living	(45)	unlawful
(23)	could	(46)	homicide
(24)	mental
(25)	physical (either order)	(47) (48)	homicide intention
	(erruer order)	(40)	Incompton

(49) consequences (71) is not (50) death (72) would not (51) homicide (73) criminally (52) does not (74) homicide (53) immaterial directly (54) manslaughter (76) disassociated (55) manslaughter (56) mental (57) mental state (58) what his guilt would have been had the fatal blow fallen upon the intended victim rather than the bystander. (59) what was the accused's mental state at the time (60) is not (61) is (62) caused (63) probable (64) a homicide (65) probable (66) remote (67) natural and probable consequence (68) would not (69) is not death

(70) sufficient to have caused

STATEWIDE LAW ENFORCEMENT EDUCATION THROUGH TELEVISION

This training program is made available through the cooperation of the South Carolina Law Enforcement Division, the South Carolina Educational Television Network and the U.S. Department of Justice through funds made available under the Law Enforcement Assistance Act of 1965.

This publication does not necessarily reflect the views of the U.S. Department of Justice.

END

BOUTH CAROLINA EBUCATIONAL TELEVISION RETWON