John McCallin

Denver's first Chief of Police, John McCallin, was appointed from the ranks April 6, 1874, and served until June 1, 1876. Chief McCallin was responsible for introducing photography into police work in Denver and was the first to introduce and submit the Chief's Annual Report to the Mayor which is still being done today.

APOLOGIA...

Omitting a photograph of George L. Seaton, the innovative and energetic Chief of the Denver Police Department from January 1, 1968 until his retirement, June 30, 1972, was unintentional.

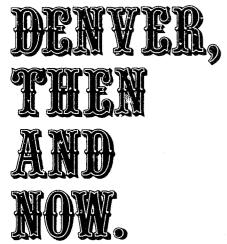

Denver's present Chief of Police, Arthur G. Dill, was appointed from the ranks July 1, 1972. Under his leadership the Police Department has taken giant strides forward in modernization of procedures, police effectiveness, and pride.

Honorable W. H. McNichols, Jr. Mayor, City and County of Denver 350 City and County Building Denver, Colorado 80202

Dear Mayor McNichols:

I am pleased to join with the men and women of the Denver Police Department in presenting this 1979 Annual Report to you.

This report graphically exhibits the many services rendered to the people of the City and County of Denver, but a report of this kind can never fully display the dedication and concern of the people who make up this very vital and living organization.

The steady progress made by the Police Department is obvious and one need not read this report to be aware of it. The strength of the department is provided through the municipal leadership of this great city and from the very citizens whom we are proud to serve.

We again thank you for your continued support and direction.

Cordially yours,

Manager of Safety

1979

Honorable William H. McNichols, Jr, Mayor, City and County of Denver Room 350 City and County Building Denver, CO 80202

Dear Mayor McNichols:

It is with pride and pleasure to present the 1979 Annual Report of the Denver Police Department to you for your review and acceptance.

Though the year of 1979 presented frustrations on national and international levels, the accomplishments of the men and women of the department, coupled with citizen cooperation, has been very gratifying. The emphasis on "prevention" has paid good dividends with a marked decrease in the Class 1 crime figures compared against other major cities of this nation.

I would like to take this opportunity to express our sincere appreciation to you and the citizens of the City and County of Denver for the interest and support that has been extended to the personnel of the Denver Police Department. I am proud of their accomplishments and their dedication to professional law enforcement service.

Sincerely,

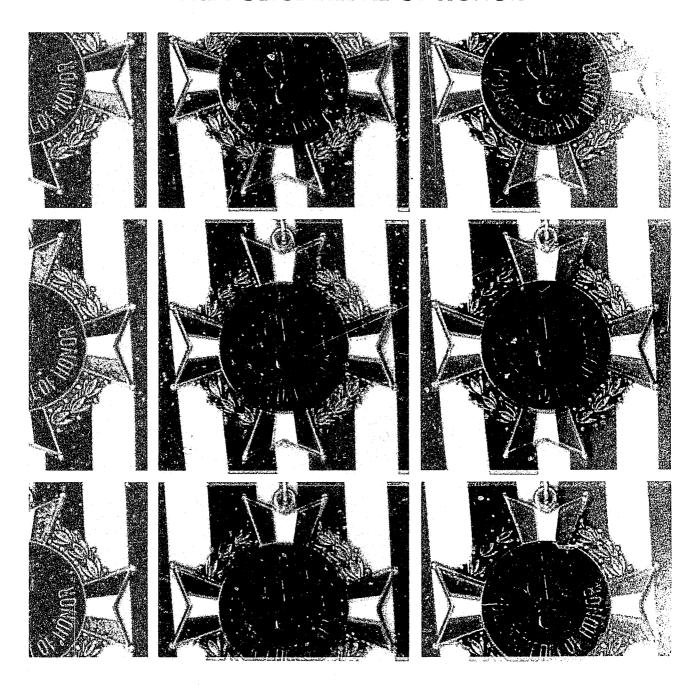

Arthur G. Dill Chief of Police

THE POLICE MEDAL OF HONOR

MEDAL OF HONOR

Patrolman Dock Foster III Medal of Honor

About ten o'clock the night of October 5, 1978, Patrolman Dock Foster III responded to an aggravated robbery in progress at the Tower Bar on South Broadway. Upon arrival, he was met by an unarmed, off duty recruit officer, John Diaz, who had observed the shotgun armed suspect flee the scene. Diaz lead Foster to a site in a poorly lit, residential area. Patrolman Foster stalked the wanted man using sounds and shadows as his only guides. Several blocks away, in a darkened alley, officer and stickup man met. Following an exchange of gunfire, the suspect was found injured atop the shotgun, his finger still on the trigger. The stolen money bag lay nearby. For his courage in facing shotgun fire to apprehend a dangerous suspect, Patrolman Foster was awarded the Police Medal of Honor.

Sergeant Roger H. Kaspersen Medal of Honor

Technician Robert Mosier Medal of Honor

On Thanksgiving Day 1978 a number of Denver Police officers, including Sergeant Roger H. Kaspersen and Technician Robert Mosier, were called to a home on Monaco Blvd. where a married couple was being held hostage by a suspect armed with a rifle and pistol. As the officers were discussing methods for resolving the situation, the suspect and hostages fled the residence in a convertible. Police units immediately took up pursuit as the suspect fled north to I-70, west to I-25, and again north. During the chase the suspect vehicle was forced off the highway, ran a police barricade and then continued north. At W. 84th Avenue the suspect cut through the convertible's top and proceeded to fire at the pursuing police cars. One police car was disabled with a shot through the radiator, while the cruiser containing Kaspersen and Mosier was hit in the windshield. With Kaspersen driving at speeds exceeding 95 miles per hour, Mosier attempted to return the suspect's fire without endangering the hostages. At 150 yards Mosier fired causing the suspect to retreat into the fleeing car. The car finally came to a stop at W. 104th and the hostages and the mortally wounded suspect were removed from the car. The male hostage had been slightly wounded by a ricocheting shotgun pellet.

For their calmness under great stress and Technician Mosier's outstanding marksmanship under extreme conditions, which resulted in saving the lives of fellow officers and the hostages, Sergeant Kaspersen and Technician Mosier received the Police Medal of Honor.

MEDAL OF HONG

Very early the morning of December 21, 1978, upon entering a restaurant on East Colfax Avenue, Technician Dennis Staff was told by an employee that an armed man was in the kitchen with the manager. Staff informed the dispatcher of the presence of the robbery suspect, asked for additional cover then proceeded immediately to minimize the risks for patrons and employees by confronting the gunman and manager in the isolated kitchen area. Panicked, the suspect whirled and fired his weapon wounding Staff, causing the officer to fall to his knees and his service revolver to slide under a table. The suspect fired several more shots as he fled the scene. Although in great pain, Technician Staff used his portable radio to calmly broadcast a remarkably accurate description of the gunman. Only after he had completed his report did Staff notify anyone of his injury. The description provided by the wounded officer lead to the assailant's arrest and the property recovery within three hours of the shooting. An official accolade states, "The self-sacrifice that Technician Dennis Staff has displayed is yet another example of the dedication and determination Denver's Finest are willing to give the citizens. This commendation is little enough thanks for such valiant acts of courage." Technician Dennis Staff was awarded the Police Medal of Honor.

POLICE SERVICE CROSS

On September 12, 1978 Patrolmen Lester N. Green and Robert A. Widmayer attempted to calm a despondent mother-to-be who was threatening to kill herself and her unborn child. Suddenly, the woman jumped to her feet and leaped headfirst out the second floor window. Patrolman Green grabbed the woman by her knees and ankles but was pulled out the window by her momentum. He would have fallen to the ground but for Patrolman Widmayer's quick action in grasping Green's shirt and the woman's ankle. By bracing himself against the wall Widmayer was able to pull both back into the room, thereby saving the lives of mother, baby and Green. For their life saving efforts, Patrolmen Green and Widmayer were awarded the Police Service Cross.

POLICE SERVICE CROSS

Late, the evening of May 30, 1978, officers were called by a frightened woman reporting an ex-boyfriend, who shot at her home and hit it several times earlier in the day, was again at the scene. When the officers arrived, they learned "the friend" had left and were given a description of his vehicle. Technician Martin Hayes, from a vantage point in his police unit parked near the corner across from the house, observed the vehicle described by the victim pull onto East 24th Avenue and stop. A man, carrying what appeared to be a weapon, exited the vehicle then stealthily approached the north side of the victim's home. As Hayes watched, the man circled around the house, furtively looked over the front porch and peered into a window. At this point, Technician Hayes drove across the intersection, got out of his car and confronted the suspect. The surprised man turned and fired at the officer. Hayes returned the gunfire, wounded the suspect and took him into custody. For demonstrated willingness to risk his life in the performance of duty, Technician Hayes received the Police Service Cross.

On November 29, 1978, Technician James H. Case, and his partner responded to a burglary call in which the suspects were possibly armed. Three suspects, two men and a woman, were reported to have attempted to enter a south Denver home. Upon examination of the area, the officers encountered one of the suspects holding a sawed-off shotgun which he proceeded to point and fire at Case's partner. Technician Case fired his service revolver several times, wounding the assailant and saving his partner's life. For his heroism and fast response under fire, Technician Case was awarded the Police Service Cross.

The Patrol Division, comprising 54% of the Department's strength, is decentralized into four individual districts - one through four. Principal tasks of members in the districts are to enforce the laws and ordinances enacted for the preservation of the peace and for the protection of life and property. District officers routinely patrol the entire City to accomplish this end and to assist the community as may be reasonably necessary in non-police matters.

The Juvenile Division comprises 6% of the Department's strength. Existing philosophy of Juvenile Court Law is to give a child a hearing and work out a program for his better adjustment in the community instead of giving him a trial and dealing out punishment. The most important principle underlying the approach of the police and the judiciary toward juvenile delinquency is the acceptance of the fact that juveniles are not adults.

CITY AND COUNTY OF DENVER

The City and County of Denver, famed as the "Mile High City," actually lies much lower than the average elevations of Colorado. Located 5,280 feet above sea level, our town is well to the east of the front range of the Rockies, nestled in a bowl at the foot of what the Indians called "the Shining Mountains."

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY PREVENTION UNIT

In January, 1979, the Denver Police Department was awarded a Federal grant to establish a Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Unit, a proactively oriented patrol force to be assigned to the Department's Juvenile Division. The project includes four major components: directed patrol, street level diversion, youth group intervention, and child abuse/neglect intervention. The Prevention Unit consists of 12 officers who have been selected from the various police districts, along with 2 sergeants, a lieutenant, an administrative clerk, a police statistician and an evaluation consultant.

Prevention Unit operations began in June, 1979, following a 40-hour training program for all Unit personnel. The program included classes in child abuse investigation, child psychology, legal rights of juveniles diversion, and family crisis intervention. Specific target areas were then chosen for Prevention Unit coverage, based pon their high rates of delinquent activity. Unit officers used saturation patrol techniques within these target areas in order to discourage acts of delinquency such as residential burglary, auto theft, and larceny. They directed special attention to "juvenile patrol hazards", or areas commonly frequented by youth in trouble.

The Prevention Unit places a special emphasis on assisting first time offenders and potentially delinquent youth through informal street contacts, counselling of juveniles together with their parents, referral to outside agencies, and lecture and release techniques. A youth with no prior arrest history might be "informally" arrested, or brought in to the Juvenile Division by a Prevention Unit officer and subsequently lectured and released to his or her parents. In these instances no juvenile case summary is ever made; however, the Prevention Unit officer maintains contact with the juvenile and family, and attempts to help them with any further problems.

An in-depth analysis was performed on juvenile arrests made by the Prevention Unit between June 12 and September 30, 1979. Outcomes of these arrests were compared to those of a random sample of juvenile arrests made by officers outside the Prevention Unit during the same period. During these months, the Prevention Unit made 215 juvenile arrests, 113 of which were informal (52.6%), and 102 of which were formal (47.4%). In all, 63.9% of the youth arrested by the Prevention Unit were lectured and released, compared to 31.3% for the rest of Denver. In addition, while 30.0% of juveniles arrested in the rest of Denver were eventually referred to Juvenile Court, only 7.4% of the Prevention Unit arrests were referred to court. These figures indicate that the Unit has been successful in dealing with delinquent juveniles through alternative methods to the formal juvenile justice system.

During operations in 1979, the Prevention Unit collectively made 415 juvenile contact cards and 338 juvenile case summaries. Some 101 of these case summaries (29.9%) dealt with child abuse and neglect. Unit officers also counselled a total of 447 delinquent or potentially delinquent juveniles and their parents.

An important component of the Delinquency Prevention project is public education on delinquency and crime prevention. This has been accomplished through a series of lectures and presentations made to schools and community groups by Prevention Unit personnel. In 1979, 75 such presentations were made, reaching approximately 2,000 people throughout the Denvei area. Consequently, citizens of Denver have been made aware of the Unit's purpose and activities, while the Unit has become more sensitive to the divergent needs of various groups within the City.

The Unit has achieved substantial success in its efforts to reduce offenses commonly committed by juveniles within its target areas. Table 1 compares the numbers of reported residential burglaries and auto thefts for the months that the Prevention Unit was operating in its first two target areas with frequencies of these offenses during the same months and within the same areas in 1978. The percentage rate of change within the target area is also compared to that for the rest of the City of Denver.

The figures presented in Table 1 show that residential burglaries within the Unit's target areas decreased 23.11% between 1978 and 1979, compared to a decrease of only 2.89% in the rest of Denver. Similarly, while auto thefts throughout Denver declined 7.77%, a drop of 15.1% occurred in the Unit's target areas.

During December 1979, the Prevention Unit along with the Juvenile Division School Resource Officers and the graduating class of the Denver Police Academy, participated in "Operation Stoplift," a special assignment in downtown Denver designed to curtail Christmas shoplifting. Table 2 shows that this effort met with remarkable success, since reported shoplifting offenses in the downtown area dropped by 44.6% over 1978, and thefts in general were decreased by 23.1%. For the rest of Denver, shoplifts only decreased by 2.2% and thefts actually increased 13.9%.

DENVER PEDESTRIAN SAFETY PROJECT

On October 1, 1977, the Denver Police Department in cooperation with the Colorado Division of Highway Safety began a comprehensive, two year pedestrian safety program as our response to a serious problem in the city. Between 1972 and 1978, pedestrians accounted for more than one-third of Denver's traffic fatalities. In 1979, 28% of the fatalities were pedestrians. Alcohol abuse was involved in some 43% of these.

After a thorough pedestrian accident analysis, four major countermeasures were developed and subsequently implemented. These countermeasures encompass the 3-E's of traffic safety: EDUCATION, ENFORCEMENT and ENGINEER-ING. During 1979, the Pedestrian Safety Program expanded.

EDUCATION . . . via public information

A massive public information campaign was launched to examine the nature of the problem and to explore the measures pedestrians and drivers must take to avoid collisions. A second pedestrian safety flier was mailed to over 140,000 Denver homes. New radio and television public service announcements were produced and aired in the metropolitan area. Some 1,800 assorted pedestrian/traffic safety posters were developed and distributed to Denver businesses for display and 700 pedestrian safety car-card messages were placed in RTD mass transit vehicles. Project personnel participated in radio and television talk shows and news programs as well as took part in numerous presentations before community and civic groups.

. . . in the schools

Educational programs aimed at the high risk groups, children aged 5 through 9 and the elderly, were also expanded this year. A six hour Safe Street Crossing Program is currently presented in 49 Denver elementary schools. Thus tar, 8,513 kindergarten through third grade students have completed the training sessions. An additional 5,916 students have begun the program and will have completed it by spring, 1980. Since the inception of the School Pedestrian Safety Program, the incidence of auto-pedestrian accidents involving 5-9 year old children has dropped 20%. There has not been a single fatality in this group.

... and for the community

A Senior Citizen Pedestrian Video Safety Presentation was developed to specifically address the problems and needs of the elderly. Community groups have responded enthusiastically to the concepts of this program.

ENFORCEMENT... to protect

The pedestrian enforcement unit continued their selective enforcement of existing pedestrian and driver ordinances with emphasis on high risk locations. Officers were encouraged to issue citations to pedestrian violators when other traffic was present and the normal flow was affected by an unlawful and dangerous pedestrian action. The team deployment, in terms of time and location, was based upon results of monthly accident analysis.

... and correct

In lieu of paying a fine, persons issued citations for violations of ordinance are encouraged by the court to attend a two hour "Pedestrian Violator School," conducted each Wednesday in the Police Administration Building by enforcement officers. The school was established as a specific countermeasure directed toward a group of known risk takers, those pedestrians who engage in behavior sufficiently risky to have come to the attention of the officer issuing a citation.

ENGINEERING ... to assist

Numerous engineering modifications were made in the high risk centers such as the downtown area and heavily traveled arterial and collector streets. The modifications include pedestrian walk/don't walk indicators, international signing, pedestrian walk cycles and signal retiming to permit a longer crossing phase at locations with a high proportion of elderly pedestrians.
