FOREWORD

The Regional Institute of Social Welfare Research, Inc. (RISWR) began operations as an affiliate of the University of Georgia in Athens in January, 1970. Start-up funding was provided by a long-term grant from the Social and Rehabilitation Service, DHEW, as part of its then current overall plan to provide a social welfare research resource in each of HEW's ten (10) geographic regions.

In an effort to extend its services to a wider constituency, RISWR departed the University in July, 1976, to become an independent non-profit human services research and development organization serving the public interest.

During its eight (8) year existence, the Institute has successfully completed a variety of human services research and development projects supported by the federal government, and state governments within the Southeast and throughout the nation.

A major addition to the Institute was the Regional Child Abuse and Neglect Resource Center which was launched January 1, 1975, and refunded September, 1978, to serve the states comprising Region IV of DHEW—Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee.

RISWR's multi-disciplinary staffing pattern and flexible staffing arrangements have enabled it to address numerous human service topics and problems in a timely fashion on both short term-small dollar amount and multiyear-large dollar amount bases.

Research staff have developed important new knowledge on such matters as rural poverty in the South, adolescent pregnancy, protective services for the aged, employment of marginal workers in the labor force, uses of volunteers in public welfare settings, child abuse and neglect, child protective services systems, foster family care, and the effectiveness of institutional services for children.

Systems development staff have produced a number of management systems now in service in several states including social service and child welfare service computer driven management information systems, case management methodologies, a statewide deinstitutionalization plan for children's services, a statewide employability services plan for AFDC-WIN recipients, and a state system for monitoring purchase of service contracts.

In approaching the problem of child abuse and neglect, RISWR has developed this document to serve as a resource directory of child protective service (CPS)—child abuse and neglect (CAN) matters in the eight (8) southeastern states in Region IV-DHEW. The realization that the welfare of children is a community affair and that often it is not the non-existence of services to meet the needs of children and their families, rather the lack of knowledge regarding their existence led to efforts to develop the most comprehensive resource directory possible.

Part I of the directory presents national resources. Part II outlines resources endemic to the Region. Part III describes state level resources identified by state level child protective service personnel in each of the eight (8) states. Part IV, which is perhaps the most comprehensive and resourceful section for local utilization, describes all of the identified resources and services available at the county level. The Appendixes include a copy of the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-247), the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment and Adoption Reform Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-266), condensed tables of the states' reporting statutes, and a copy of the county level questionnaire.

Resources included in Parts I, II, and III have been grouped under broad headings for easy reference. In Part IV, identified community resources have been presented in the following order where they exist: local CPS agency; medical and health facilities; educational institutions; voluntary and private social agencies involved in treatment, prevention, respite services, etc.; child care institutions; and judicial and law enforcement agencies.

Information for Part IV was collected from two main sources: (1) a mailed-out questionnaire to County Directors of Social Services or their equivalent, and (2) a mailed-out questionnaire to identified state and national organizations. Regarding the former, County Directors were asked to supply information on their own CPS-CAN programs and services as well as on any other community-wide programs and/or activities known to them. The instrument utilized represents a concise method for determining and describing community resources to the extent that they exist and are known.

State and national level organizations which have assumed some responsibility for dealing with legal, educational, advocacy, health and treatment, or the preventive aspects of child abuse and neglect provided information on their state and/or national level activities and on activities within specific counties where applicable.

Data were collected during the Winter of 1978. Given the lapse in time between data gathering and the dissemination of the final product, some changes in the identifying information for resources resulting from such occurrences as promotions, resignations, elections, discontinuations, etc., can be expected. Thus in some instances, and hopefully only a few, the appropriate contact person may not be the person listed and/or the resource may be defunct.

Our apologies go out to any person whose name may be misspelled or abbreviated and/or whose positional title may be incorrect. Two sources of error could account for the possible occurrence—information providers might have unknowingly erred or more probably, our handwriting analysis was not accurate. At any rate, we have made every attempt to assure correct spellings and to secure titles and correct telephone listings.

The questionnaire was sent to the County Director of Social Services or the equivalent in all of the counties in seven (7) of the eight (8) southeastern states. In one state, a third of the counties was included in the survey. The states are represented by county input by the following percentages of counties: 33.3, 60.6, 69.6, 71.0, 80.0, 86.8, 92.7, and 100.0.

It is not often that an effort involving mailed-out questionnaires results in such a high rate of returns. We must credit a great deal of this success to state level protective service personnel who endorsed the undertaking and encouraged county level participation, and to county level personnel who swiftly cooperated with our requests.

It is anticipated that this resource directory will be updated and disseminated annually. It is our hope that counties which are not represented by a listing of resources in this issue will provide information for subsequent issues, and counties which are represented will be moved to provide information on other community resources as they emerge. In this way, the goal of presenting as comprehensive a picture as possible of existing CPS-CAN programs and services in Region IV-DHEW will be realized.

No researcher or editor of such a document which purports to present resource information drawn from and of value for county level utilization can rightly claim that the final product is a result of his or her single-handed efforts.

Initial interest in conducting a survey toward the development of a resource directory was stimulated by RISWR's President, George Thomas, who is characterized by ingenious ideas and subtle suggestions which have a way of endowing the actor with the feeling of part ownership in the original idea. Special acknowledgments are due to Dr. Thomas for foreseeing the need for such a directory and for his continued interest in the progress of efforts toward its development.

As indicated earlier, the high level of participation by counties in the individual states can be attributed, in part, to the endorsement by and encouragement from state level protective services personnel who comprise the Regional CAN Resource Center's Advisory Committee.

Special thanks for their efforts toward the conduct of this project as well as efforts in other Center undertakings go out to Robert Hogue, Alabama; Patricia Hicks, Florida; Barbara Cundiff, Georgia; Lynn McCarthy, Kentucky; Adine Mathews, Mississippi; Page Shelton, North Carolina; Linda Liverman and Roger Gutmann, South Carolina; and Juanita Walker, Tennessee. In addition, special thanks for endorsement are due to Commissioners Guy L. Burns, Alabama; F. W. St. Clair, Mississippi; Horace Bass, Tennessee; Interim Commissioner Robert D. Floyd, South Carolina; and to Louise Pittman, Director, Bureau of Family and Children Services, Alabama; Dr. Jacquelyn A. Gallop, Assistant Secretary for Program Planning and Development, Florida; L. Patricia Johnson, Director, Division of Family and Children Services, Georgia; Max Jackson, Director for Field Services, Kentucky; and Robert H. Ward, Director, Division of Social Services and Joan C. Holland, Chief, Family Services Section, North Carolina.

Realizing that in the final analysis the success of this undertaking is due, in large measure, to the participation of the respondents, special thanks are extended to the County Directors in all of the states, to District Program Managers in Kentucky and District Administrators in Florida for expediting the data collection process in the counties within their jurisdiction in their respective states, and to personnel in the many state and national level organizations and agencies.

The tasks of developing a one-page form to which information from the questionnaires could be transcribed for typing purposes, the actual transferring of information from the seemingly insurmountable pile of questionnaires, and the checking and cross-checking of transferred information involved the diligent work of many in-house staff. For the time taken from their normal duties and the cooperative and efficient manner with which they assumed the tasks, special thanks are due Robert Bransford, Grady Cornish, Anthony LaCavera, and William Sparrowhawk.

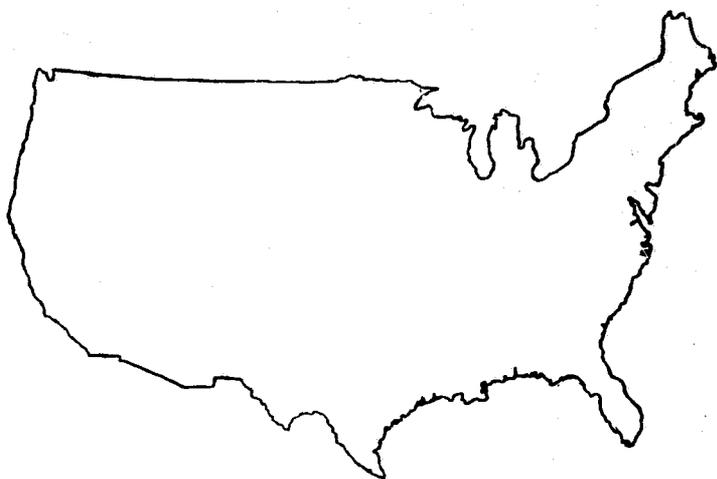

Thanks are also due to Daniel Boserup, Gerald Gouge, and Joan Adams-Curtis who were available for perceptive criticisms, formating ideas, and editorial remarks.

Special acknowledgments are due to Virginia Vaughn for the art work and the many hours spent in duplicating, collating and binding the finished product.

Finally, thanks are due to the typist Christine Bennett who, in the end, made it all a realization. Special recognition is due to her for her efficiency in typing drafts, her perseverance in obtaining telephone numbers and other identifying information which were not included for some of the indicated resources, and her keen perception of my errors during her usual superb job of preparing the final product.

RISWR maintains a full-time staff of 20 professional, technical, and clerical personnel.

The Regional Institute of Social Welfare Research (RISWR) began operations at the University of Georgia in Athens in January, 1970. Start-up funding was provided by a long-term grant from the Social and Rehabilitation Service, HEW, as part of its then current overall plan to provide a social welfare research resource in each of HEW's 10 geographic regions. RISWR has survived by successfully obtaining and conducting roughly 4 million dollars worth of short-term and multiyear contract and grant work for a variety of state governments and federal agencies.

A major addition to the Institute was the Regional Child Abuse and Neglect Resource Center which was launched January 1, 1975, to serve the states comprising Region IV of HEW -- Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee.

The primary purpose of the Resource Center is to advance the development of child protective services in the Southeast by engaging in the following six (6) goal related activities, as follow:

Public Awareness.--The Resource Center's major method of fostering public awareness has been the development and conduct of conferences on child abuse and neglect. The Center, in cooperation with the National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect, sponsored the First National Conference on Child Abuse and Neglect held January 4-7, 1976, in Atlanta, Georgia. A Regional Child Advocacy Conference was held in Atlanta, Georgia, October 26-28, 1977.

Resource Exchange.--The Center's Resource Exchange consists of our Institute library, audio-visual, and other materials holdings which are available on lending/loan and at-cost purchase bases. Other Resource Exchange services include: 1) A newsletter, Checkpoints for Children; 2) Bibliographic searches; and 3) High speed mass printing.

Needs Assessment.--Utilizing a "need to know" needs assessment approach, the Resource Center mounts needs assessment studies to fill informational gaps identified by the Center's Regional Planning Committee. Presently, regionwide data are being processed on the utilization and cost of the guardian ad litem; on the roles, responsibilities, and qualifications of child protective service workers; and on the nature and prevalence of sexual abuse cases. A model for costing out Title XX Social Services was a first product in this area.

Training.--The Center's training goals are realized through the production of materials as well as through actual training activities. Basic curricula on child abuse and neglect have been developed for direct use in training regionwide headstart personnel, foster parents, and child protection service workers. The Institute provides training through short-term institutes, comprehensive staff training, and conferences.

Technical Assistance.--The Institute provides technical assistance to social welfare service providers at all levels of government and the voluntary sector throughout the region. Individual staff and/or teams are available to provide assistance in program planning, program research and evaluation design, systems development, community organization, and the development of service models in child protective services.

The Rural Multi-county Child Protective Services Model has been developed and implemented in a three county area of South Carolina. Technical assistance on the implementation of the model is now being provided in Alabama, Florida, and Georgia.

The Sexual Abuse Help-Line Project is now being implemented in Knoxville, Tennessee. The tele-tape system was designed to demonstrate a community resource which meets the informational and service needs of adolescents who are sexually abused and/or at risk of such abuse.

Child Advocacy.--The principal objective of the Resource Center relative to child advocacy is to promote the development of a regionwide constituency. A variety of activities fall within this domain including the sponsoring of conferences, the distribution of materials, and program appearances.

The North Carolina CAN Resource Center is a federally funded state project designed to stimulate the development of and assist in the provision and implementation of child abuse and neglect services.

The Resource Center which was funded in February, 1975, by the National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect, grew from the experience of the Department of Pediatrics at UNC Medical School and North Carolina Memorial Hospital in treating children referred to the hospital's maltreatment syndrome team.

Current Activities include:

Maltreatment Syndrome Team.--This multidisciplinary team, begun in 1971, is based in the Department of Pediatrics at N.C. Memorial Hospital. The team meets on a weekly basis and offers consultation to those professionals treating hospitalized or outpatient children suspected of being abused or neglected.

Intensive Care Nursery Project.--This is a pilot program to provide a service link between the North Carolina Memorial Hospital Infant Intensive Care Unit and community agencies. The major problem addressed by the project is the increased vulnerability for maltreatment in premature and medically high-risk newborns.

Organizational Consultation.--The Center provides a number of consultative services to the State of North Carolina. The Center's major focus is in its aid to local communities.

Resource Center.--The Center maintains a resource center which contains bibliographies, articles, booklets and pamphlets, and other audio and visual aids.

The Child Medical Evaluation Project provides a component of protective services in the form of medico-legal evaluations for children suspected of being abused or neglected. A network of child examiners (pediatricians and family practitioners) is organized to perform the medico-legal evaluations of these children. The objective of this program is to medically evaluate only those cases of suspected abuse or neglect referred by the Departments of Social Services and having possible health impairments. The overall goal of the project is to ensure medical coverage for the maltreated children of North Carolina. At present, the project is available in half of the state's 100 counties with 120 physicians agreeing to participate. The project is funded through Title XX of the Social Security Act.

TITLE II—ADOPTION OPPORTUNITIES

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

42 USC 5111.

SEC. 201. The Congress hereby finds that many thousands of children remain in institutions or foster homes solely because of legal and other barriers to their placement in permanent, adoptive homes; that the majority of such children are of school age, handicapped, or both; that adoption may be the best alternative for assuring the healthy development of such children; that there are qualified persons seeking to adopt such children who are unable to do so because of barriers to their placement; and that, in order both to enhance the stability and love of the child's home environment and to avoid wasteful expenditures of public funds, such children should not be maintained in foster care or institutions when adoption is appropriate and families for them can be found. It is, therefore, the purpose of this title to facilitate the elimination of barriers to adoption and to provide permanent and loving home environments for children who would benefit by adoption, particularly children with special needs by—

(1) promoting the establishment of model adoption legislation and procedures in the States and territories of the United States in order to eliminate jurisdictional and legal obstacles to adoption; and

(2) providing a mechanism for the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to (A) promote quality standards for adoption services (including pre-placement, post-placement, and post-adoption counseling and standards to protect the rights of children in need of adoption), and (B) provide for a national adoption and foster care information data gathering and analysis system and a national adoption information exchange system to bring together children who would benefit by adoption and qualified prospective adoptive parents who are seeking such children.

MODEL ADOPTION LEGISLATION AND PROCEDURES

Publication in Federal Register.
42 USC 5112.

SEC. 202. (a) Not later than eighteen months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare (hereinafter referred to as the “Secretary”) shall issue, based on the recommendations of the panel described in subsection (b) of this section, proposed model adoption legislation and procedures and publish such proposal in the Federal Register for comment. After soliciting and giving due consideration to the comments of interested individuals, groups, and organizations and consulting further with such panel, the Secretary shall issue and publish model adoption legislation and procedures which shall not conflict with the provisions of any interstate compact in operation pursuant to which States are making, supervising, or regulating placements of children.

(b) (1) Not later than ninety days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall appoint a panel (hereinafter referred to as the "panel") to be composed of not less than eleven nor more than seventeen members generally representative of public and voluntary organizations, agencies, and persons interested and with expertise and experience in facilitating the achievement of the purposes of this title (including, but not limited to, national, State, and local child welfare organizations, including those representative of minorities, and adoptive parent organizations). The panel shall (A) review current conditions, practices, and laws relating to adoption, with special reference to their effect on facilitating or impeding the location of suitable adoptive homes for children who would benefit by adoption and the completion of suitable adoptions for such children; and (B) not later than twelve months after the date on which the members of the panel have been appointed, propose to the Secretary model (including adoption assistance agreement) legislation and procedures relating to adoption designed to facilitate adoption by families of all economic levels.

(2) The panel shall be terminated thirty days after the Secretary publishes the final model legislation and procedures pursuant to subsection (a) of this section.

(3) Members of the panel, other than those regularly employed by the Federal Government, while serving on business of the panel shall be entitled to receive compensation at a rate not in excess of the daily equivalent of the rate payable to a GS-18 employee under section 5322 of title 5, United States Code, including traveltime; and, while so serving away from their homes or regular places of business, they may be allowed travel expenses (including per diem in lieu of subsistence) as authorized by section 5703 of such title for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

(c) The Secretary shall take such steps as he or she deems necessary to encourage and facilitate the enactment in each State of comprehensive adoption assistance legislation and the establishment in each State of the model legislation and procedures published pursuant to subsection (a) of this section.
