FOREWORD

This is the Sixth Report prepared by the Administrative Office of the United States Courts describing the implementation of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974. Part One shows the compliance rate for defendants disposed of during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1980. For defendants who entered the final time limits in the current year, the district courts had an overall compliance rate of 95.3 percent for the 30 day interval from arrest to indictment. For those defendants who entered the second time interval (indictment or information to trial of 70 days) the overall compliance rate was 94.4 percent.

Of the 32,589 defendants who came under the provisions of the Speedy Trial Act, 36.1 percent had one or more incidences of excludable delay during which time Speedy Trial time limits did not apply. The overall number of such incidences increased by 20.3 percent over last year. Motions filed by counsel accounted for 51 percent of all reasons for excludable delay in

The criminal caseload in the district courts continues to drop primarily as the result of announced policy changes in prosecution priorities by the Department of Justice. Enforcement is now directed to prosecuting white collar crime, political corruption, organized crime, and trafficking in narcotics and dangerous drugs.

In 1980, there were 168,789 civil cases filed, 29.2 percent more than in 1976, a year before the Act was implemented. On June 30, 1980, the civil pending caseload reached an all time high of 186,113 cases.

Part Two of this report summarizes the Final Plans submitted by the Speedy Trial Planning Groups. Eighty-five of the districts provided such plans; while 15 districts adopted early sanctions and were not required to submit a Final Plan.

The summary notes that a few districts experienced some problems with the Act, but generally the district courts adopted procedures and innovations which have eased the implementation. The significant improvements include the upgrading of communication within the court family; the development of forms and instructions for informing everyone about the prosecution time intervals for each defendant; and the utilization of automated data collection systems. Known as COURTRAN and STARS, these systems were developed by the Federal Judicial Center in response to the Speedy Trial needs of the district courts.

In the appendix, summary statistics are provided showing the compliance rates of defendants disposed of in the current year for each district court. It further shows statistics on the use of detention, the disposition of defendants by trial and those convicted, and the length of time civil cases have been pending. A national table shows how long it takes to prosecute different criminal offenses. Also provided are matters presented to the U.S. Attorney for prosecution. The analysis in the final appendix indicates that the impact of the Speedy Trial Act on civil cases has been negligible through 1979. Continued studies, as suggested by the Planning Groups, will be required as the final sanctions go into effect.

The recommendations presented by the Speedy Trial Planning Groups will be referred to the appropriate Committees of the Judicial Conference and to the Department of Justice. All of the District Speedy Trial Plans will be on file at the Administrative Office. Individual plans will be on file in the Office of the Clerk of Court in the district court.

Respectfully submitted,

William E. Folev.

SUBJECT:

Errata to the Sixth Report on the Implementation of the Speedy

Trial Act of 1974 Submitted to Congress on September 30, 1980.

Our readers have called attention to two errors of fact appearing in the Sixth Speedy Trial Act Report. We would appreciate it if this memo was placed in front of the report. For some who use the report for reference, such as librarians, the following procedure for making the two changes are recommended.

Errata #1. Page 2, Item H.

Delete in second line beginning with delays the two words "did not" and insert "do". As follows:

H. Extended the time for retrials from 60 to 70 days with the provision that excludable delays did not apply. Further, for cases returned for retrial after an appeal, a 70 day time limit was provided. In either case, if the court determined that the 70 day period was impractical, the court retrying the case could extend the time period not to exceed 180 days (18 U.S.C. 3161(e)).

Errata #2. Table 2 on pages 7 and 8.

The 1980 "cases six months or more pending June 30" and percent change are incorrect. The 1980 case figure erroneously presents defendants and not cases. Insert attached sheet ahead of page 7. Or if you prefer, remove Table 2 leaving sufficient left hand margin for attaching the table.

SIXTH REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR OF THE ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES COURTS ON THE OPERATION OF TITLE I OF THE SPEEDY TRIAL ACT OF 1974 (TITLE 18 U.S.C. 3161-3174)

-PART ONE-

I. INTRODUCTION

This report to the Congress on the implementation of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 reflects the rates of compliance of the district courts during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1980, with limited comparisons to the three transitional years beginning July 1, 1976 through June 30, 1979. Comprehensive data on the three transitional years were published in one volume on February 29, 1980.

Data in this report are generally limited, therefore, to defendants who had their cases closed by dismissal, acquittal or conviction from July 1, 1979 through June 30, 1980. For purposes of comparability, all defendants disposed of in the entire twelve month period were regarded as subject to the same time limits for compliance. Between July 1 and August 2, 1979, the Speedy Trial Act provided intervals of 30 days from arrest to indictment; ten days from indictment to arraignment; and 60 days from arraignment to trial. The amendments to the Speedy Trial Act, effective August 2, 1979, combined the second and third intervals into one 70 day interval from indictment to trial. Data in this report are shown as if this combined interval were in effect the entire year. Excludable incidences of delay were applied to the total gross days of prosecutions in each interval resulting in the net days reflected in this report.

This report further summarizes under Part Two the Speedy Trial Plans adopted by District Planning Groups and identifies those districts which, upon concurrence of the Circuit Council, adopted the sanctions set out in Title 18 U.S.C. 3162 earlier than July 1, 1980 - the statutory deadline. Also provided are those districts which were granted judicial emergency suspension of Speedy Trial time limits.

This marks the final comprehensive report under Title I on the Speedy Trial Plans required by the Act. Future statistics regarding compliance with the permanent time limits will be incorporated in the Annual Reports of the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts.

II. PROVISIONS OF THE AMENDMENTS TO TITLE I OF THE SPEEDY TRIAL ACT, AUGUST 2, 1979 (Public Law 96-43)

The major provisions of the amendments were as follows:

A. Postponed by one year to July 1, 1980, the date when criminal cases could be dismissed when the defendant in such a case was not tried within 100 days of arrest. District courts could apply to the Judicial Circuit Council for approval to apply the sanctions earlier if the district court's Planning Group determined that the district would be able to comply before June 30, 1980. In either case, defendants could have their cases dismissed for exceeding time limits and monetary sanctions could be taken against the attorney(s) in such cases (18 U.S.C. 3174(c)(1) and 3162(b)).

- Held the interval from arrest to indictment to 30 days; however, the former ten days indictment to arraignment interval was merged with the 60 day arraignment to trial interval to become a 70 day interval. The total arrest to trial interval remained 100 days exclusive of any excludable reasons for delay provided by the Act and its amendments (18 U.S.C. 3161 (b)(c)(1)).
- Provided that all defendants upon obtaining counsel or expressly waiving counsel and electing to proceed pro se have a 30 day minimum period to prepare for trial (18 U.S.C.
- Provided two new types and expansions of existing incidences of excludable delay, each of which could be applied during the 100 day arrest to trial time period. The new types of excludable delay were:
  - Transportation between district courts or for examination or hospitalization (18 U.S.C. 3161(h)(1)(H)).
  - Consideration by the court of a proposed plea agreement (18 U.S.C. 3161(h)(1)(I)).
- Expanded excludable delays which could be allowed for "ends of justice":
  - 1. Failure to grant continuance would stop further proceedings or result in miscarriage of justice (18 U.S.C. 3161(h)(8)(B)(i)).
  - Unusual or complex case (18 U.S.C. 3161(h)(8)(B)(ii)).
  - Indictment following arrest which for some reason cannot be filed within 30 days (18 U.S.C. 3161(h)(8)(B)(iii)).
  - Continuance granted in order to obtain or substitute counsel, or give new counsel reasonable time to prepare the case (18 U.S.C. 3161(h)(8)(B)(jv)).
- F. Expanded for excludable time for motions to include all time from filing of a motion to the hearing or disposition of the motion (18 U.S.C. 3161(h)(1)(F)).
- Made permanent the 90 day limit to try high risk defendants released and awaiting trial and those held in custody awaiting trial. It further provided that excludable delays applied to both high risk defendants and defendants detained in custody (18 U.S.C.
- Extended the time for retrials from 60 to 70 days with the provision that excludable delays did not apply. Further, for cases returned for retrial after an appeal, a 70 day time limit was provided. In either case, if the court determined that the 70 day period was impractical, the court retrying the case could extend the time period not to exceed 180 days (18 U.S.C. 3161(e)).
- Allowed circuit judicial councils at the request of the chief district judge to grant suspensions of the Speedy Trial time limits for up to one year (18 U.S.C. 3174(a)). Previously, only the Judicial Conference of the United States could approve such
- J. Allowed the chief judge of a district court to suspend the Speedy Trial time limits not to exceed 30 days if it is determined that there is "a great urgency." Within ten days of the entry of such an order, the chief judge must apply for the suspension (18 U.S.C. 3174(e)).

K. Determined that Congressional approval would be required for a second suspension of the Speedy Trial time limits. Prior to the amendment, the United States Judicial Conference could grant a second suspension which would remain in effect unless Congress decided to the contrary (18 U.S.C. 3174(d)(2)).

III. SPEEDY TRIAL ADVISORIES IMPLEMENTING THE AMENDMENTS

On August 3, 1979, the Administrative Office issued a Speedy Trial Advisory describing the effect of the amendments. On August 15, 1979, an advisory was issued on how the clerks of court should make changes in their reporting of Speedy Trial data for docket management and statistical purposes. At that time the new and expanded group of excludable delay periods were presented and procedures were instituted for reporting detained defendants, high risk defendants and retrials.

On December 14, 1979, the Speedy Trial Act Guidelines and Model Plan were provided to all Federal Judges, Speedy Trial Planning Group Members, United States Magistrates, Federal Public and Community Defenders, Circuit Executives, Chief Probation Officers, Chief Pretrial Service Officers, Clerks of Court and Deputy Clerks in Charge of Divisional Offices.

Chief judges of each district court were urged to convene the district's Speedy Trial Planning Group and (a) determine whether the district would elect to submit another plan or adopt the dismissal sanctions before July 1, 1980 and (b) schedule tasks and completion dates for the final plan if one was to be submitted. Such plans were to be sent to the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts by July 3, 1980 for review and summarization. The summaries appear in Part Two of this report.

To assist the districts in electing the submission of a plan or adoption of final sanctions, each was furnished with a set of statistical tables showing compliance rates for the first six months of the current year, excludable delays by time interval, detention time, disposition of criminal defendants and the status of the civil docket. These tables were also submitted with the final district plans. In this report the statistical tables which have been supplemented with data for the balance of the reporting year appear as Appendix A.

DISTRICTS WHICH ADOPTED DISMISSAL SANCTIONS AND FINAL SPEEDY TRIAL TIME INTERVALS

Chart 1 shows the Speedy Trial time intervals adopted by the district courts pursuant to their first Speedy Trial Plan submitted to the Congress on September 30, 1976. It further shows the ten districts which, under the previous provision for declaring a judicial emergency (18 U.S.C. 3174), requested and were granted a period of judicial emergency during which Speedy Trial limits were suspended. Each of the ten districts made its original request to its respective Judicial Circuit Council. Finding no remedy for the district's calendar congestion, the Circuit Council applied directly to the Judicial Conference of the United States which granted the suspension.

Three major reasons were established supporting the need for extending the speedy trial time limits because of a judicial emergency. These were unfilled judgeship positions, illness of a judge resulting in recalendaring the caseload, and general calendar congestion caused by a backlog of civil and criminal cases.

Three of the districts were granted extensions of Speedy Trial time intervals of 120 days. Seven districts were granted extensions of 180 days.

V. STATUS OF THE CRIMINAL DOCKETS

On June 30, 1980, there were 14,759 criminal cases pending on the criminal dockets of the United States district courts, 34.1 percent fewer than five years ago when the Speedy Trial Act commenced. During this five year period, there has been a substantial decrease in criminal case filings of 33.2 percent. The number of criminal cases terminated dropped to 22,297 or 48.8 percent fewer than the 43,515 terminations before the Act took effect.

The overall decline in filings is the result of prosecution policies of the Department of Justice first announced by Attorney General Griffin B. Bell in November 1977 and further emphasized on March 19, 1980 by Assistant Attorney General Philip B. Heymann, Criminal Division, before the House Committee on the Judiciary Subcommittee on Criminal Justice. Mr. Heymann outlined among other enforcement policies that "the Criminal Division's focus includes the Department's priority areas of white collar crime, political corruption, organized crime, and trafficking in narcotics and dangerous drugs." These cases represent types of crimes for which the Federal government is best equipped to prosecute because of the multi-state nature of the offense, the magnitude of the criminal organization or the type of training required to investigate and prosecute elaborate offenses.

On a district by district basis the number of pending criminal cases declined in all but thirteen of the 95 district courts during the five year period between implementation of the Speedy Trial Act and June 30, 1980. (See Table 2.) Fifty-one districts reduced their pending caseloads by more than the nationwide 34.1 percent reduction. Of these, 33 districts during the five year period had reductions of 50 percent or more as follows:

Those districts which experienced increases in the criminal caseload, such as Hawaii, had prosecutions underway for violations of traffic laws occurring on Federal enclaves, which under State law are classified as misdemeanor offenses. It should also be noted that this is a under survey of the status of the pending criminal caseload and many such cases on the following day, or shortly thereafter, could have been closed by dismissal, acquittal, or conviction.

The decided overall reduction in the proportion of criminal cases pending six months or more is shown in Table 2. Since June 30, 1975, there has been a modest decline of 2.4 percent in the number of criminal cases pending six months or more.

On June 30, 1980, of the 11,168 defendants in non-triable criminal cases which had been pending six months or more, nearly 70 percent were cases where the defendant(s) was a fugitive or an essential witness was not available for trial. Only 15 percent of the defendants were triable, that is, were available for final plea or trial by judge or jury.

Table 3 provides data on the length of time defendants were pending in criminal cases as of June 30, 1976 through 1980. Also shown are the number of defendants who could not be tried for reasons set out in Table 4. There has been a substantial reduction in the number of defendants pending between 1976 and 1980 in all of the time intervals with the exception of those pending 61 months or more. This group, which represented 15.4 percent of all defendants pending on June 30, 1980, rose from 2,813 defendants in 1976 to 3,266 in 1980, an increase of 16.1 percent. Non-triable defendants whose criminal cases had been pending 61 months or more increased 14.0 percent.

Overall the proportion of defendants whose criminal cases had been pending six months or more varied only five percentage points from a low of 47.4 percent in 1977 to a high of 52.4 percent in 1976 and in 1980. The small variation of this group of defendants as a portion of all defendants pending in criminal cases reflects the fact that certain cases will always remain on the criminal docket for extended periods.

Table 4 is a record of the status of defendants recorded on a single day, June 30, for each year 1976 through 1980. The number of defendants available for final plea or trial by judge or jury has declined by 34.2 percent from 11,014 to 7,243 defendants from 1976 to 1980. After a three year decline in the number of triable defendants, the proportion of such defendants increased in 1980 to 34.2 percent of the 21,150 defendants pending on June 30.

*Added pursuant to August 2, 1979 Amendment to Speedy Trial Act. Note: Percent change computed on 25 or more.

For non-triable defendants, excludable delays applicable under provisions of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 accounted for approximately eight out of ten such pending defendants. Of those defendants with excludable delay, eighty percent were recorded as not available for trial because they were fugitives from justice or an essential witness was not available for commencement of trial.

All but ten of the 95 United States district courts implemented the 100 day time limits which began July 1, 1979. The ten districts which were granted extensions of time to dispose of a defendant under prosecution appear in Chart 1 and the time period when the extension ended is shown earlier in this report.

Table 5, the first table in this series, shows the improvement in compliance with first interval from arrest to indictment and the newly combined interval from indictment to trial for defendants whose criminal cases were terminated during the first three transitional years and this last year when the 100 day limit went into effect. The table disregards the year the time interval began and shows how much net time defendants required for the two intervals. In future years when all defendants are under the same 100 day time interval, this table will have particular significance.

In 1980, 90.8 percent of all defendants terminated with the first interval compared to 81.7 percent in 1977. For the second interval 88.5 percent of the defendants terminated in 1980 were tried within 70 days or less compared to 83.3 percent in 1977.

In the Speedy Trial time interval tables which follow, defendants whose criminal prosecutions were terminated during the twelve month ended June 30, 1980 are presented as follows:

The compliance record for defendants whose time interval began prior to July 1, 1979, is presented together with those defendants whose time intervals began on July 1, 1979 or later. These latter defendants were under the final limits of 30/70 days for the two intervals which commenced July 1, 1979. Further, for each district court similar data are presented in Table 1 in Appendix A. (Note should be taken that ten of the districts had an emergency extension of their Speedy Trial Time limits and their compliance rates should be related to the period of extension and not to the final 30/70 day limits.)

As would be expected, defendants whose cases were terminated in 1980 and whose time intervals began in the current year had a better record of compliance with the final for those defendants who entered the first interval during the current year, their compliance rate was 95.3 percent. Those who entered the first interval prior to July 1, 1979 had a compliance rate of 81.5 percent.

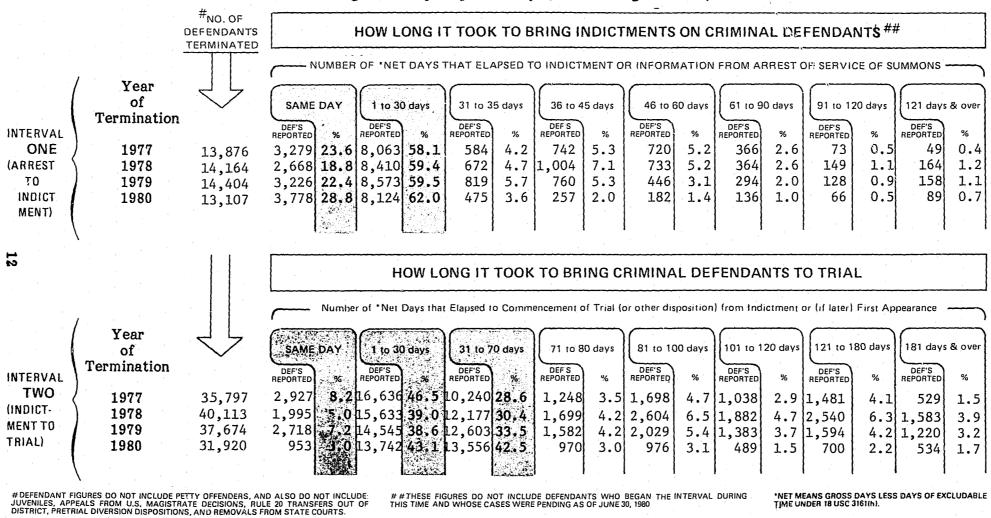

For those who entered into the second interval of 70 days on or after July 1, 1979, their compliance rate was 94.4 percent. For those who entered this interval prior to July 1, 1979, their compliance rate was 74.5 percent.

Briefly, the first interval beginning July 1, 1976 was 60 days; July 1, 1977, 45 days; July 1, 1978, 35 days; and July 1, 1979, 30 days. The former second interval, indictment to tarial, (referred to as the second interval) the time periods were thus: Beginning July 1, 1976, 190 days; July 1, 1977, 130 days; July 1, 1978, 90 days; and beginning July 1, 1979, 70 days (which includes the former 10 day interval).

* Note: Time intervals from arrest and indictment to trial are net time and, therefore, exclude all incidences of excludable delay pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3161. Excludable delay does not apply to time interval from conviction to sentencing.

A. Interval One - Time Period From Arrest to Indictment or Information

Tables 7 and 7a are derived from Table 1 in Appendix A. Table 7 shows that for the interval one time period, arrest to indictment or information, 95.3 percent of the defendants arrested during 1980 were brought to indictment in compliance with the 30 days or less maximum time limit. For those arrested prior to July 1, the compliance rate was 81.5 percent.

Forty-five districts (or 47.4 percent of the 95 districts reported) full compliance with the 30 day time limit for defendants arrested this year; 40 districts fully complied with the 30 day rule for defendants arrested prior to July 1, 1979.

The number of defendants who were indicted in 30 days or less following arrest for the entire year comprised 90.8 percent of the 13,193 defendants in this time interval. Seven out of ten districts had compliance rates of 90 percent or better.

If all terminations during the year are considered, 31 of the 94 districts reported full compliance for this interval for all of 1980. (The District of Northern Mariana Islands reported no defendants terminated in the first time interval.)

B. Interval Two - Interval from Indictment or First Appearance to Trial (Including Dismissal, Plea, or Acquittal)

Tables 8 and 8a, which are extracted from Table 1 in Appendix A, show the compliance rates with the 70 day interval. The overall compliance rate for defendants who entered the 70 day interval two period during the current year was 94.4 percent, with 21 districts achieving full compliance. For those defendants who entered this interval prior to July 1, 1979, the rate of compliance was almost 20 percentage points lower, at 74.5 percent. Overall for the year, the compliance rate for the 32,019 defendants terminated in the district courts was 88.3 percent.

When considering only defendants who entered the second interval in the current year, almost two thirds of the districts had a 95.0 percent or better compliance rate. Only 25.3 percent of the districts had this compliance rate for defendants who entered this interval prior to July 1, 1979. Considering all defendants terminated in 1980, 38.9 percent complied at the 95.0 percent level or better. This illustrates the need to separate the recording of defendants according to when the interval began in order to provide meaningful comparisons.

C. Interval Three - Time Interval Between Conviction and Sentence

The Speedy Trial Act does not mandate a time limit between conviction and sentence; however, the Committee on the Administration of the Criminal Law of the Judicial Conference of the United States recommended a standard 45 day time limit. Thus, elapsed time between conviction and sentence can be compared with this recommendation.

Tables 9 and 9a which are based on Table 1 in Appendix A summarize the time between conviction and sentencing for the one year period July 1, 1979 through June 30, 1980. In previous reports, this information was provided on a cumulative basis since the Act was implemented on July 1, 1976.

Table 9 shows by district the number of defendants sentenced in 45 days or less after conviction. Overall, 74.6 percent were sentenced in this time period. Two districts, the Southern District of Mississippi with 32 defendants and the Northern Mariana Islands with four defendants, sentenced all convicted defendants in 45 days or less. Altogether, 11 districts sentenced 95 percent of their convicted defendants in 45 days or less.

It is to be noted that excludable time periods do not apply from conviction to sentence. Therefore, included in these tables are defendants: who were sentenced following a period of observation and study; who jumped bail or were otherwise not available for sentencing until apprehended; and who have appealed their conviction, thereby delaying sentence.

VII. INCIDENCE OF AND REASONS FOR PERIODS OF DELAY

As discussed earlier in this report, the amendments to the Speedy Trial Act added four new excludable delay periods to the 17 established in the original law. In addition, several exclusion periods were expanded or made more flexible.

Of the 32,589 defendants terminated in 1980, 36.1 percent were reported to have had excludable time periods applied during the criminal process. For the year 1980, the 17,516 incidences of excludable time were the highest during the four year period as shown in Table 10. The proportion of defendants with excludable time rose from 23.5 percent in 1977 to 36.1 percent in 1980.

The number of defendants terminated declined by 30.5 percent since 1977. Defendants with excludable time periods increased by 6.8 percent. The number of defendants terminated under Speedy Trial provisions, for whom no excludable time incidences were recorded, declined by 42.0 percent.

The amendments to the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 combined into 70 days the former "Indictment to Arraignment" interval of ten days with the "Arraignment to Trial" interval of 60 days. Incidences of excludable time periods can be applied during the 30 day interval from arrest to indictment and 70 day interval from indictment to trial. In 1980 as in previous years the proportion of excludable delays recorded in the first time period, arrest to indictment, was low with only 5.2 percent of all excludable delays occurring in the 30 day time interval. This was modestly higher than in the previous three transitional years. Therefore, about 95 percent of all excludable time periods occurred in the indictment to trial time period. (See Table 11.)

* Former intervals, indictment to arraignment and arraignment to trial, combined pursuant to August 2, 1979 amendments to the Speedy Trial Act of 1974.

Twenty six districts reported no defendants with periods of excludable time in interval one. All of these districts with the exception of the Northern Mariana Islands reported defendants prosecuted during this time interval. In the second time interval, all districts reported excludable time intervals for defendants prosecuted.

In 1980, hearings on motions among all district courts comprised 36.5 percent of the reasons for excludable delay. In the previous three years, hearings on motions accounted for about one third of all excludable incidences. The increase in this type of reason for delay was accompanied by a downturn in incidences where motions were actually under advisement by the court which accounted for 2,541 or 14.5 percent of all incidences of delay. Altogether, motions accounted for slightly more than half of the reasons for delay reported in 1980 as well as in the three transitional years.

Unavailability of a defendant or an essential witness as reason for excludable delay continued to drop from a high of 2,503 in 1977 to the new low of 1,207 in 1980. In 1976, this reason represented 16.3 percent of all periods of excludable delay, whereas in 1980 the proportion dropped to 6.9 percent.

The 1979 amendment expanded reasons for delay under Section 3161 (h)(8) and provided four separate reasons for excludable delay which permitted continuing the criminal case for the "ends of justice." Most of the defendants were classified under the general "ends of justice" reason for delay and these accounted for 3,698 incidences in 1980, greater by 105.8 percent than in 1976. If the four separate reasons provided by the amendments are included with the above, the "ends of justice" reason for excludable delay increased by 130.6 percent over the same time period.

In 1980, the number of excludable delay periods lasting ten days or less dropped to 31.4 percent of the total compared to 42.5 percent in 1979 and 47.4 percent in both 1977 and 1978. All other lengths of delay shown in Table 12, except for the 121 day and over category, accounted for an increased percentage of all delays this year.

Table 13 distributes for all district courts the reasons for excludable delay in 1980 showing the length of the delay and the Speedy Trial interval in which the excludable delay occurred. Overall the increase in motions accounted for more than half of the reasons for delay as noted above; however, there has been a striking decline in motions with delays of ten days or less with an increase for all of the other time intervals. The greatest increase was in delays lasting 121 days or more as shown in Table 14.

Comparable data by circuit and district appear in Table 2 in Appendix A.

VIII. DETENTION PRIOR TO DISMISSAL, PLEA, OR COMMENCEMENT OF TRIAL

As shown in Table 15, the proportion of defendants detained in custody prior to dismissal, entry of a plea or trial has declined from 39.4 percent in 1977, the first year of the three year phase-in period, to 31.0 percent for the year ended June 30, 1980. In 1977, 96.0 percent of the detained defendants were held 90 days or less. In 1980, the percentage detained 90 days or less rose to 97.1 percent.

Beginning on August 2, 1979, the amendments to the Speedy Trial Act permitted the application of excludable delay intervals to detention time for defendants who were in custody. Thus, if a defendant filed a pretrial motion, the time required from the filing to the hearing and the decision by the magistrate or judge would be excluded from the "custody time clock". Previously, depending on court decisions, excludable time periods could or could not be applied. The amendment made the application of excludable time to defendants in detention universal in the district courts.

Further, custody or detention as used in this report reflects custody in a local jail or detention facility for which payment is made to local or state government by the United States. It includes detention in metropolitan correctional centers or other correctional institutions operated by the U.S. Bureau of Prisons. It does not include detention on a state or local charge by state or local authorities when a federal charge is also pending.

As shown in Table 16, five of the 95 district courts recorded no defendants detained in custody during 1980. Those districts were New York, Northern; Mississippi, both Northern and Southern; Northern Mariana Islands and Utah. (Some defendants may have been detained; however, with excludable time periods applied, the detention period resulted in zero days of detention and therefore were not reportable.)

The other 90 districts recorded the use of detention from a low of 0.6 percent in the Middle District of Georgia to a high of 89.7 percent in the Southern District of California. This latter district has many immigration and narcotic drug law defendants who, without detention, would not be available for trial.

District courts provide many reasons for defendants exceeding the 90 day time limit besides the one noted for the Southern District of California. For example, many who exceeded the 90 day time limit did so prior to August 2, 1979. When some defendants were detained because they were material witnesses and, therefore, to assure their appearance for a trial they were held in custody, often for their own protection. Other defendants were detained because they were unable to meet bail requirements. In one district the companies which handle bail will not generally post bond for federal criminal defendants. Border districts often detain aliens charged with an offense since experience has shown that, if released, they will not usually appear in court.

IX. CASES DISPOSED OF BY PLEA OR TRIAL

During the five year period, the number of defendants terminated in the district courts declined by 29.2 percent with those convicted declining 28.7 percent. While the number of convictions dropped substantially, the conviction rate in 1980 (78.2 percent) was slightly higher than in 1976. (See Table 17.)

In this same period, the number of convicted defendants tried by court or jury dropped by 9.6 percent; however, as a proportion of the total defendants convicted this group has increased from 15.1 percent in 1976 to 19.2 percent in 1980. A substantial part of this increase reflects misdemeanors occurring on military bases which are tried before a U.S. magistrate in the Southern District of Georgia. When this district is omitted from the computation of defendants convicted after trial, the national proportion would be reduced to 17.4 percent.

X. TIME TO PROCESS CASES BY MAJOR OFFENSE

The amended Speedy Trial Act of 1974 required that the rate of compliance with the Speedy Trial Act final time intervals for offense categories be provided to the Congress. In Tables 6a and 6b in Appendix A of this report, national figures are provided on all defendants whose criminal cases were terminated during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1980. Compliance rates varied by offense in both time intervals. Differences were due to the complexity of the cases, the problems associated with multi-defendant prosecutions and the amount of investigation including laboratory work required.

XI. MATTERS PRESENTED FOR PROSECUTION

The amended Speedy Trial Act requested that each district in its Final Speedy Trial Plan include under Section 3167 (c)(2) "the number of matters presented to the United States Attorney for prosecution and the numbers of such matters prosecuted and not prosecuted". Table 7 in Appendix A provides a summary of 65 reports submitted by the Planning Groups. Fifteen districts which adopted sanctions before July 1, 1980 were not required to make a report. For fifteen other districts the information was not available.

XII. IMPACT OF THE SPEEDY TRIAL ACT OF 1974, TITLE I

A. Costs

Shortly after the Speedy Trial Act became effective, all District Court Speedy Trial Planning Groups were convened. They met from time to time to prepare reports for the Director's submission to Congress to review local criminal procedures, and to prepare and amend local rules and to carry out the general oversight of the implementation of the Speedy Trial Act.

With the amendment of the Speedy Trial Act on August 2, 1979, and the requirement for a third report, District Court Speedy Trial Planning Groups expended $102,394 during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1980. When this figure is added to the $895,832 disbursed during the first three years of the Act, the Speedy Trial Planning Groups have expended a total of $998,226 of the $2,500,000

The first and second reports of the Speedy Trial Planning Groups were submitted to Congress on September 30, 1976 and 1978.

appropriated by Congress. Following a review of future expenditures by the Planning Groups, the balance of the appropriation will be returned to the United States Treasury and future expenditures will be budgeted from the Federal Judiciary appropriations.

B. Grand juries and trials

1. Grand juries and indictments

After an arrest on a felony, the U. S. Attorney presents the government's findings of probable cause to the grand jury without delay. There were 26,150 cases commenced by indictment in 1976, the year before the implementation of the Speedy Trial Act, compared to 16,522 in 1980, a decline of 36.8 percent. Likewise, the number of defendants in such cases dropped but not as great by 33.9 percent. Mention has been made of multi-defendant cases and there is some evidence in Table 19 that there has been a modest increase in the average number of defendants per indictment filed.

In 1980, the number of grand jury sessions was 23.0 percent greater than in 1976. The average number of defendants indicted per session declined almost 50.0 percent to 2.48. The total number of hours in session for grand juries has grown by 21.0 percent since 1976 while average hours per session has declined slightly by 1.7 percent.

2. Trials

The total number of jury trial days has increased 7.1 percent since 1976 with criminal jury trial days up 12.2 percent and civil up 35.2 percent. The proportion of criminal to civil trial days has changed over the five year period. In 1976, six out of ten jury trial days were criminal. In 1980, it was less than five out of ten. (See Table 20.)

C. Convictions

The conviction rate for all criminal defendants disposed of in the United States district courts the year before the Speedy Trial Act went into effect was 77.7 percent. It rose to 78.0 percent in 1977, the first phase-in year of the Speedy Trial Act. In 1978, the percentage convicted rose to 79.5 percent and in the third transition year it rose again to 79.9 percent. During the first year of the final limits, the percentage convicted declined to 78.2 percent. (See Table 17.)

During this five year period there was a marked change in types of criminal prosecutions in the district courts with greater emphasis on "white collar" offenses, or organized crime drug law prosecutions, and fraud violations. Each of these are difficult to prosecute and often take several months of investigation before evidence can be presented to a grand jury.

For defendants tried by a court or jury, there has been a rise in convictions from 77.6 percent of those tried in 1976, to 80.5 percent in 1980, the first year of the final time limits.

D. Civil Caseload Continues to Climb

The continued decline in the criminal caseload discussed elsewhere in this report has been accompanied by an accelerated increase in the civil caseload. Filings since 1976, have risen 29.2 percent from 130,597 in 1976 to 168,789 new filings in 1980. The termination effort in the district courts has continued at an even greater pace from 110,175 to 160,481 during the same five year period — an increase of 45.7 filings. But on a numerical basis the number of terminations did not match new 1976 to 186,113 on June 30, 1980, an increase of 32.8 percent.

As shown in Table 21, the number of civil cases pending on June 30 has increased each year from 1976 through 1980. Table 22 shows the pending civil caseload distributed by length of time pending. On June 30, 1980 the proportion of the older caseload, that is, those cases which are three years old or older now account for 12 out of 100 pending civil cases in the district court.

This older group of cases increased 31.5 percent from 16,714 on June 30, 1978 to 21,975 on June 30, 1980, an increase of almost three times the overall increase of 11.8 percent in the pending caseload. Excluding this older group of cases, the national pending caseload would have increased by 9.6 percent.

In September 1961, the Judicial Conference of the United States declared it "to be the policy of the judiciary that every case pending three years or more and appropriate for trial be regarded as a judicial emergency by all the judges of any circuit where such cases are to be found." In March 1963, the Judicial Conference approved a procedure requiring the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts to supply each Chief Judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals lists of civil cases three years old or older. These in turn are to be distributed to the Chief Judges of the Districts for review and action. This process has been carried out each year since September 1963 with the latest list supplied to the Chief Judges of the Circuits on August 22, 1980 for cases pending three years or more on June 30, 1980.

It is too early to determine the complete impact of the implementation of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 because, as many have noted, until the sanctions are in effect, that is, beginning July 1, 1980, observation to date can only note what has occurred during the transition period.

For example, using statistics based on a data furnished by the district courts through the office of the Clerk of Court, the Administrative Office has carried out a highly sophisticated statistical analysis of the civil workload. This report appears in Appendix C. Its major findings conclude that the majority of civil cases have not taken longer for disposition; however, those which have historically taken longer to close are now taking even longer.

Secondly, the courts have provided good compliance with the Speedy Trial Act while still disposing of the civil cases before the courts. And finally, courts which are better than average in compliance with the Act are those that generally do well in disposing of their civil caseload.

Great caution is needed in determining the impact of the Speedy Trial Act. Subtle changes have occurred, some measureable and some without measure. It will require continued comparisons after the final time limits and sanctions are in place to determine the full impact of the Act.

SUMMARY OF REPORTS SUBMITTED BY THE DISTRICT COURT SPEEDY TRIAL PLANNING GROUPS

Shortly after the approval of the amendments to the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 on August 2, 1979, all of the District Court Speedy Trial Planning Groups (established by Title 18 U.S.C. 3168) met. The original Planning Group was augmented by the addition of a U.S. magistrate, if designated by the Chief Judge, and an attorney "with substantial experience in civil litigation in the district."

Altogether, 80 of the district courts filed with the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts five copies of their Speedy Trial Plans which had been approved by the Judicial Council of their respective circuits.

Copies of all plans will be provided to the Judiciary Committees for the Senate and House, the Department of Justice, the Federal Judicial Center, and one on file at the Administrative Office of the United States Courts. A copy of each district court's final plan for Implementation of the Speedy Trial Act is on file in the office of the clerk of court.

I. PROBLEMS ENCOUNTERED IN IMPLEMENTING THE SPEEDY TRIAL ACT

Responses by the United States District Court Speedy Trial Planning Groups (hereafter referred to as Planning Groups) ranged from no difficulty in implementing the provisions of the Act to some problems as summarized below. Specifically, the lack of imposed sanctions was given as a reason that comparison statistics, though useful, would not suffice. Further, Planning Groups recognized the difficulty with the clerical tasks connected with tracking defendants, especially in multi-defendant cases, and that the statistical compliance rates often were not available in time to make changes in procedures. Most districts included in their plans statistics on compliance provided by the Administrative Office as well as locally maintained data. Others heavily utilized the three year transitional report issued by the Administrative Office on February 29, 1980.

Planning Groups found the amendments to the Speedy Trial Act helpful in resolving problems encountered under the transitional time limits, especially the combining of the ten day indictment to arraignment and 60 day arraignment to trial interval into a single 70 day interval.

Nevertheless, Planning Groups found problems in complying with the Act and these are set out below.

A. Problems Reported by the Courts

Most of the problems revolved around the need to have judgeships, (authorized by the 1978 legislation) filled, calendaring of cases, and complex criminal cases.

Judgeship vacancies, once filled, would enable the districts to provide timely scheduling of both criminal and civil cases. In the meantime, district courts rely heavily on senior judges as well as visiting judges to keep current.

Long term illness of judges often had a disastrous impact on the criminal as well as civil calendars. As a result, other judges had to take over the caseload, as well as maintain a current calendar of cases already assigned to them.

Several districts noted that the critical time intervals for compliance with the Speedy Trial Act resulted in less calendar flexibility. Because attorneys practice in both Federal and State courts, conflicts arise when attorneys have cases scheduled in both courts on the same day.

Due to a shift of prosecution of complex cases by the Department of Justice, more time is required to study individual cases. Lengthy criminal discovery motions impose burdens on the court which can be reduced by conducting criminal motion dockets from the bench.

Some Planning Groups gave special attention to the wide geographical jurisdiction of their district and the necessity of having court personnel, defendants and counsel travel long distances within the districts. In these cases, the Planning Groups noted that 30 days from arrest to indictment was not sufficient.

Though a one time only problem, two districts which were realigned in 1979 determined that because of administrative difficulties, it took more time than usual to clear up a temporary backlog of criminal cases.

B. Problems Reported by the Clerks' Offices

The Act places the responsibility for administering the clerical functions of the Speedy Trial Act with the clerk of court. Several Planning Groups noted that communication within the court family improved, but in multi-divisional districts difficulties arose in monitoring criminal cases.

Methods for entering excludable time periods vary from district to district. Some noted that instructions for recording the starting and stopping of time intervals are not always clear and with the turnover in deputy clerks, problems do occur in staying current in the monitoring process. Some noted that distances between the U.S. magistrate's clerical personnel, who complete much of the arrest to indictment data, create problems in the reporting responsibility of the clerk of court.

C. Problems Reported by the U.S. Attorney

Several Planning Groups noted continued communication problems between law enforcement agencies and the U.S. Attorney's Office. For example, failure to inform the U.S. Attorney about an arrest resulted in delay for presentment to the grand jury. Several Planning Groups noted that the U.S. Attorney adopted a policy of delaying arrest until after indictment. This is confirmed in the reduction in defendants arrested prior to indictment as noted in previous reports to the Congress.

Planning Groups noted that, with the prosecution of "white collar" multi-state offenses, U.S. Attorneys found it difficult to prepare a case within the time frame of 100 days. For example, where defendants initially indicated that they would waive indictment and plead guilty only later to change their minds, U.S. Attorneys have lacked sufficient time to prepare their case for presentment to the grand jury. Also, U.S. Attorneys required more time in the first interval to obtain the assistance of a defendant in an ongoing investigation, to file pre-trial motions and to work out plea negotiations.

D. Problems Reported by the U.S. Marshal

A few Planning Groups reported that the U.S. Marshal had difficulties meeting the demands for movement of defendants from custody to court and between district courts. Service of process and arrest of multiple defendants in a single case required personnel resources not available to the U.S. Marshal's office.

E. Problems Reported by Defense Counsel

District Planning Groups noted that there is generally a small defense bar which practices in the Federal courts and therefore, with the pressure to try cases within the 100 day time frame, compliance cannot always be attained. Some districts have restricted the number of Federal criminal cases assigned to defense counsel under provisions of the Criminal Justice Act which provides for the defense of indigent defendants. Some attorneys have, on their own initiative, reduced their criminal caseload so that they can direct all of their attention to such cases. There have been instances where attorneys have refused to take certain, if any, Federal criminal cases.

Some Planning groups believed that the Act does not provide adequate time for defense counsel to prepare a case, especially since it is difficult for defense counsel to complete discovery in time to file pretrial motions. A few also noted that defendants did not have adequate time to raise funds for a defense.

II. REASONS WHY EXCLUSIONS WERE INADEQUATE TO ACCOMMODATE REASONABLE PERIODS OF DELAY (18 U.S.C. 3167(b)

Section 3161 provides the reasons a defendant's case can be delayed during the 100 day time interval. The Planning Groups viewed the exclusions as adequate to accommodate most reasonable periods of delay. However, there were certain types of excludable delay which might require additional interpretation or be addressed by the Congress:

- A. Section 3161 (h)(1)(A), "delay resulting from any proceeding including any examinations, to determine the mental competency or physical capacity of defendants;" does not defendant in a district with limited psychiatric resources.
- B. Section 3161 (h)(1)(I), "delay resulting from consideration by the court of a proposed plea agreement to be entered into by the defendant and the attorney for the Government" does not include the time required for investigation of the proposed plea agreement for those districts which have pretrial services under Title II.
- C. Section 3161 (h)(8) which provides delays for "the ends of justice" does not recognize the conflicts criminal attorneys have in both State and Federal courts. Further, Planning Groups noted that many cases following arrest require exhaustive investigative and laboratory effort which is required for presentment of the case to a grand jury.
- D. Section 3161(h)(l)(j) requires clarification when a motion is actually under advisement.
- E. Section 3161(h)(7) provides "a reasonable period of delay when the defendant is joined for trial with a codefendant as to whom the time for trial has not run and no motion for severance has been granted." It was the opinion of some Planning Groups that this constitutes an inordinate period of time. This situation could result in numerous disputes in multi-defendant cases, and perhaps result in unnecessary trials involving the

Finally, several Planning Groups noted that attorneys generally appear to be reluctant to request excludable delay from the court. It was also noted that the court hesitated to grant reasons for delay, especially under Section 3161(h)(8) "ends of

III. EFFECT ON CRIMINAL JUSTICE ADMINISTRATION ON PREVAILING TIME LIMITS (18 U.S.C. 3166(b) (5)

The time limits set forth in the Speedy Trial Act required the scheduling of more grand juries with more sessions resulting in increased costs. It further required the court to set many more calendar calls which involved counsel advising if the case was ready for trial.

Several Planning Groups also noted that motion practice increased. This is further substantiated by the increase in the number of excludable time periods. There was a belief that some motions were of a protective type that would not be filed if there were more time to review the facts of the case.

Motion filing as well as calendar calls on the status of cases required more judge time, often adversely affecting the civil calendar. Further, some Planning Groups stated that the requirement to observe the time limits resulted in more requests for continuances which, in turn, overbooked the court calendar.

Three Planning Groups noted that there was a demand for more trials by those who anticipated that their case could not be tried within the time limit of 70 days. This was the situation when multiple defendants, hoping to weaken the prosecution's case, split demands with one seeking a speedy trial while other defendants asked for a continuance.

According to 14 districts, the time limits severely limited defense counsel's efforts to provide an effective defense. Once the sanctions were in effect, one Planning Group expected an "avalanche of appeals" based on technicalities and dismissals.

Several Planning Groups indicated that the time limits force the U.S. Attorney to prosecute only the most serious offenders and to refer other cases to the States for possible prosecution. This again reflects U.S. Department of Justice policy first announced by the Attorney General in November 1977, a few months after the transition time limits of the Speedy Trial Act went into effect.

According to 12 Planning Groups, U.S. Attorneys have been withholding arrests until after the grand jury returns an indictment. Others noted that the U.S. Attorney downgraded certain charges in order to expedite the prosecutions.

Despite these negative effects on the administration of criminal justice, many Planning Groups stated that there were several beneficial effects. Among these, one Planning Group indicated that the new time limits forced the court to dispose of its old criminal cases. The time limits eliminated stalling strategies by counsel as well as defendants. Two Planning Groups indicated that the time limits resulted in more rigorous investigation and preparation of criminal cases by both the U.S. Attorney and defense counsel.

One of the most effective means of administering the Speedy Trial Act time intervals was the establishment of the automated docket system by the Federal Judicial Center in 11 district courts. Referred to as COURTRAN Criminal, the system has enabled the district courts to maintain current statements regarding the triability of defendants. Another program, STARS, (Speedy Trial Accounting and Reporting System) was established in 20 district courts. Each system is administered by the clerk of court and has enabled the office to maintain instant information on all defendants in a criminal proceeding before the district court. Both COURTRAN and STARS were developed by the Federal Judicial Center in support of the requirements of the Speedy Trial Act. Another automated system developed by the Federal Judicial Center and referred to as INDEX provides easy access to the names of all parties in both criminal and civil cases. INDEX is now installed in 31 district courts. (See Chart 2.)

IV. DISTRICTS WHICH ADOPTED DISMISSAL SANCTIONS AND FINAL SPEEDY TRIAL TIME INTERVALS BEFORE JULY 1, 1980

Under provisions of Title 18 U.S.C. 3174, the Chief Judge of each district with the concurrence of the District's Speedy Trial Planning Group could apply to the judicial council of the circuit indicating that the district was ready to apply the sanctions set out in Section 3162 as well as meet the time intervals set out in the Act. These are the 30 day time interval from arrest to information or indictment and the 70 day interval from information or indictment to trial. Reasons for excludable delay would be applicable to both time intervals.

Of the 95 district courts, 15 districts adopted early sanctions for the time intervals set out in the Act. The districts were by earliest date of adoption:

District	Date Sanctions adopted prior to July 1, 1980
Alabama, Middle Alaska Canal Zone Iowa, Northern Northern Marianas Delaware Missouri, Western Virginia, Eastern Montana Texas, Eastern Wisconsin, Eastern Wisconsin, Western West Virginia, Northern Hawaii Indiana, Southern	January 11, 1980 May 1, 1980 April 1, 1980 April 1, 1980 April 1, 1980 May 1, 1980 May 1, 1980 May 15, 1980 June 1,  1980 June 15, 1980 June 15, 1980

V. USE OF SANCTIONS UNDER 18 U.S.C. 3164 AND RELEASE FROM CUSTODY OR MODIFICATION OF RELEASE CONDITIONS PURSUANT TO 18 U.S.C. 3166 AND DISMISSAL OF CASES PURSUANT TO 18 U.S.C. 3162.

Several Planning Groups reported that, between filing the original Speedy Trial Plan and the current plan, no sanctions were imposed under Section 3162. Three Planning Groups indicated that the district court had released defendants from custody after 90 days of detention and that the trial occurred shortly thereafter.

Thirteen Planning Groups indicated that the U.S. Attorney did not designate defendants as "high risk" and one district dropped the term from the Speedy Trial Plans. Another Speedy Trial plan, while dropping the designation "high risk," used a less prejudicial term - "Priority Defendants."

One planning group explained that, if a defendant did not move for dismissal under Section 3162, the district court did not release the defendant.

Of the 80 districts submitting Speedy Trial Plans, only five stated that the District Court criminal cases had been dismissed pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3162.

VI. ADDITIONAL RESOURCES NEEDED BY THE DISTRICTS

The Speedy Trial Act requires each district to state in its final plan the additional resources needed to comply with the permanent time limits. In Table 23, the requests for additional personnel resources are listed by the district courts making such requests.

The resource requests are summarized below.

A. Judgeships

Fifteen districts indicated in their plans that 25 new judgeships were required on a permanent basis. Further, 11 Planning Groups were anxious to have judgeships, authorized by the 1978 Judgeship Act, filled.

Requests for new judgeships will be considered by the Judicial Conference during the Biennial Survey of New Judgeships.

Regarding the filling of vacancies, all but 13 of the 117 new judgeships authorized by the 1978 Judgeship Act were filled on June 30, 1980.

B. United States Magistrates

Sixteen permanent full-time magistrate positions were requested and five districts requested five part-time positions be converted to full-time. These requests will be reviewed on an individual basis by the Judicial Conference Committee on the Administration of the Magistrate System.

C. Court Reporters

Five districts indicated that they required 8 more full-time Court Reporters. Two more districts indicated the need for additional Court Reporters, but provided no number. These requests will be reviewed and evaluated by the Judicial Conference Subcommittee on Supporting Personnel.

D. Clerks of Court

Twenty-three Planning Groups requested 37 additional positions for handling the monitoring and records requirements of the Speedy Trial Act. Six of these districts also made requests for clerical assistance. These will be reviewed by the Judicial Conference Subcommittee on Supporting Personnel.

1. Probation Officers

Altogether, six districts requested eight probation officers. Another four indicated additional requirements for probation officers. One district requested a pretrial services officer the same as provided under Title II of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974.

2. Federal Defenders

Eight districts requested ten additional Federal Public Defenders, with one of these districts not specifying an actual number. These requests will be reviewed by the Judicial Conference Committee to Implement the Criminal Justice Act.

3. Supporting Personnel

The Planning Groups indicated the need for additional personnel to assist judicial officers as well as other officers in carrying out their functions under the Speedy Trial Act.

A - Requests more equipment
B - Requests expanded court facilities
C - Requests installation of Courtran II or STARS
D - Requests establishment of a satellite clerk's office
E - Requests additional vehicles for U.S. marshal
F - Requests Department of Justice national teletype service
G - Requests increased travel funds
H - Requests expanded detention facilities
N/3 - Number not specified

Eight districts requested an increase in support staff for the judge with six districts not indicating the number of support staff requested.

Three districts requested 36 additional permanent support staff for the U.S. magistrates.

Three districts made requests for an additional seven support positions for their Federal Public Defender offices. An additional district did not specify an exact number of defenders that was needed.

Five districts requested six additional support personnel without specifying the number needed for the U.S. Probation offices.

4. Department of Justice Personnel

The Attorney General is responsible for providing additional personnel resources for components of the Department. Ten Planning Groups requested 65 new Assistant United States Attorney positions. The Southern District of New York indicated a need for 40 of these requested positions. Four other districts indicated the need for additional U.S. Attorneys. Nine districts requested 25 support positions for the U.S. Attorney and five other districts did not specify the number of positions required. (Including the three districts which neglected to state numerical needs, 22 districts requested an additional 113 deputy U.S. Marshals on a permanent basis.) Including the one district which did not specify an actual number, thirteen districts requested 16 support personnel for the U.S. Marshal.

5. Other Resource Needs

Planning Groups identified other resources required by the district for meeting the final limits of the Speedy Trial Act. Eight Planning Groups requested expanded court facilities. One district desired to establish a satellite office for the clerk of court. The U.S. Marshal in two districts requested additional vehicles, and two other U.S. Marshals requested teletype communication with the Department of Justice. Two other Planning Groups requested additional travel funds for the district personnel.

VII. PROCEDURES AND INNOVATIONS ADOPTED BY THE DISTRICT COURTS

Responding to one requirement of the Speedy Trial Act, the Planning Groups reported many innovations dealing with criminal procedures. Many districts included the Speedy Trial Act Guidelines and Model Plan approved by the Judicial Conference Committee on the Administration of the Criminal Law. In their plans, others amended existing rules to include the salient provisions of the Model Plan.

Great effort was made to designate a judge or several judges as a committee of the court to monitor the day to day compliance with the Speedy Trial Act provisions aside from the overview responsibilities of the Planning Groups. Each Planning Group which reported various innovations did so according to the components of the court. These are set out below.

A. District courts

To eliminate piecemeal filings of motions, many courts require the U.S. Attorney and defense counsel to file all pre-trial motions at one time and date (usually after arraignment) so that the court can adequately consider the motions. Further, the district courts require the government's counsel and defense counsel to meet on pretrial discovery matters.

- 1. District guidelines were established for the use of excludable delay with the U.S. magistrate and, in some districts, the clerk of court, by local rule, entering excludable delay notations. To ease the problem of computations, the district courts require both the government and defense counsel to identify the type of excludable delay covered by the motion.
- 2. Pursuant to the Federal Magistrate Act of 1979, additional duties such as arraignment following indictment or information under Rule 10 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure were conducted by magistrates in 89 of the 92 district courts covered by the Federal Magistrate Act. Magistrates also conducted pretrial conferences or omnibus hearings in 55 districts and reviewed motions in 80 districts, about 10 percent of which were "dispositive" matters in which magistrates submitted a finding and recommended a resolution.
- When Magistrates monitored criminal cases for compliance with the Speedy Trial intervals, local rules allowed them to set indictment due dates, prepare status reports, and dismiss complaints if the time limit was exceeded. Further, several Planning Groups reported that magistrates in their districts evaluate criminal cases and advise the court if they are complex or routine.
- 4. Some districts forbade any calendar change within 24 hours of scheduled appearances. If an emergency occurs, a judge can assign the case to another judge. Emphasis is made on having trial dates set at time of arraignment. Further, judges in one district must notify the chief judge within 21 days when a case will exceed Speedy Trial Time limits.
- 5. Proceedings following the transfer of defendants under Rule 20 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure have been expedited. When the defendant arrives in the district for further proceedings, the clerk of court immediately notifies the court.
- Considerable effort has been made to improve juror management, including the establishment of jury pools, multiple voir dire and use of answering devices for jurors who are scheduled to report to court. Also, new grand jury procedures have been established, including setting the time and location of grand jury sessions so that the grand jury can present an indictment in any division of the district without regard to the location where the defendant will be tried.

B. Clerks of Court

The Speedy Trial Act gives the clerk of court the responsibility for obtaining information under Sections 3166(b) and (c) from all relevant sources including the United States Attorney, Federal Public Defender, private counsel, district court judges, and the Chief Probation Officer. To do this, the Planning Groups indicated the following procedures and innovations:

- 1. Devised forms for tracking defendants in the Speedy Trial process;
- 2. Utilized automated systems such as COURTRAN and STARS as well as word processing equipment to monitor all defendants;
- Appointed Speedy Trial Coordinators for the entire district and trained deputy clerks to handle only criminal docketing, including monitoring all speedy trial intervals;

- 4. Consolidated in the office of the clerk of court all criminal docketing thereby reducing duplication of the U.S. magistrate's docketing;
- 5. And took over from the U.S. Marshal the notification of trial dates.

Federal Public Defenders

- 1. Planning Groups noted that the Federal Public Defenders assisted the court by arranging office schedules so that a public defender would be available at all arraignments should their service be required.
- Some districts required the private defense counsel practicing in Federal courts to familiarize themselves with the Speedy Trial Act. This effort has been helpful in improving compliance rates generally.

D. U.S. Probation Offices

- 1. U.S. Probation Officers, in at least two districts, supervise defendants released following arraignment to reduce the number of defendants who do not appear for scheduled court appearances.
- In many districts, the U.S. Probation Office provides the U.S. magistrate and defense counsel forms for collecting data that later will be required for a presentence report should it be ordered.
- Planning Groups indicated that Probation offices provided the court with presentence investigations well before trial to insure that sentencing occurred within the 45 days conviction to sentence period suggested by the Judicial Conference Committee on the Administration of the Criminal Law.

E. United States Attorneys

- 1. In four districts, the U.S. Attorney established procedures to assure that all arrests are reported promptly and, where detention occurs, that the 90 day custody period is monitored, taking note of incidences of excludable delay.
- Many Planning Groups noted that the U.S. Attorney had revised several reporting forms, many of which are used to monitor a defendant's progress through the two time intervals. Some of these forms are attached to the case file for easy reference. Target dates for filing motions and otherwise complying with the time intervals have been established.
- 3. U.S. Attorneys following an investigation are taking their case directly to a grand jury with the arrest and arraignment occurring afterwards. This procedure eliminates the 30 day interval one period.
- Pretrial diversion is practiced by the U.S. Attorneys with the assistance of the Probation Service.
- The U.S. Attorney established a plea cutoff date before trial in at least three districts, which prevented loss of time for the court.

F. U.S. Marshals

1. U.S. Marshals have adopted reporting programs to alert the court when a defendant is approaching 30 days of detention without indictment or 90 days without trial.

- 2. U.S. Marshals have reduced the amount of time required to bring a defendant to court following a transfer into the district under provisions of Rule 20 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure.
- 3. During the grand jury sessions, U.S. Marshals limit other court activity except for court security and emergencies. This permits the Marshals to serve arrest warrants and arraignment notices.

VIII. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR CHANGES IN STATUTES

The United States district court Speedy Trial Planning Groups, as part of their report, included recommendations for changes in statutes pursuant to provisions of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974. These recommendations will be reviewed by the appropriate committees of the Judicial Conference with further action recommended to the Congress.

A. Recommendations for Changes in Statutes

1. Intervals for Speedy Trial Disposition

Many Planning Groups suggested that the time limits for both interval one and interval two be expanded. The request was to expand the first time interval to sixty days instead of the present thirty days. For the second interval, one district recommended 100 days and three supported 120 days. Another Planning Group saw the need to eliminate the intervals altogether and set one 180 day time period from arrest to trial.

Two districts suggested that unused days in the first interval be credited to interval two, as long as an overall 100 day limit is met. Though exclusions can be applied, it was the recommendation of one district that Speedy Trial intervals begin only when a defendant is in the district following transfer from another district.

2. Time to Trial

One Planning Group recommended that Congress extend by thirty days the seventy day limit for bringing a defendant to trial when a defendant requests a 30 day waiting period before trial. Another district recommended that in no event should a trial be required less than 30 days after reindictment.

One Planning Group wanted clarification as to when the 30 day limit under 3161(c)(2) begins. Is it the first appearance of the defendant with counsel before indictment or an appearance after the indictment or information has been filed? For defendants proceeding pro se many Planning Groups requested longer time intervals for these cases.

Exclusions Under Section 3161

Most of the courts which commented on the present exclusions found them satisfactory; however, some did have recommendations regarding factors that should be considered. These can be summarized as follows:

- a. Additional time, not to exceed 30 days, should be provided for plea negotiation and deferred prosecution.
- b. Discovery requires long periods of time and it was recommended that delays due to discovery should be provided under Section 3161.

- Time should be excluded in a pending case when there is a legal issue pending in another similar case or for a defendant in a multi-defendant case which would effect further proceedings and the defendant(s) do not object to delay of trial until the issue is resolved.
- Three Planning Groups recommended that long excludable delays should also be the basis for extending the Speedy Trial time limits.
- Under Section 3161(h)(8), one district recommended that a judge be permitted to exclude time in interval two for a case in process when an older case requires immediate attention. Planning Groups further recommended that Section 3161 (h)(8) be amended to cover cases assigned to a judge that cannot be disposed of because the judge is involved in a long trial. Other Planning Groups recommended that more discretion should be given to the courts in the use of Section 3161(h)(8) including the court's emergency requirements to attend to other judicial business.

4. Complex Cases

Generally, federal offenses by their nature involve interstate criminal violations. For example, gambling offenses which involve interstate violation with multiple defendants need longer time limits because such cases often require more pretrial time to prepare the prosecution's case.

Planning Groups recommended that separate and longer time limits be considered for different defendants in the same case. Other Planning Groups recommended that multiple defendant cases and cases which pose constitutional issues be removed from the Act's current time limits.

Some Planning Groups noted the need for more time to try complex cases which involved conspiracy charges and are regarded as serious offenses by the public at large, such as tax and fraud cases and other white collar offenses.

5. Imposition of Sanctions

Only four districts commented on the imposition of sanctions as follows:

- Compel the defendant to move for sanctions under Section 3162 at least ten days before trial:
- Limit fines for defense counsel to $250;
- Repeal Section 3162(b) and enable the court to levy whatever sanction fits the

6. Waivers of Speedy Trial

Three districts suggested that Speedy Trial waivers be reviewed and five districts recommended that such waivers should be part of the Speedy Trial Act.

7. Other Recommendations

Thirteen of the district courts recommended that the Act be repealed. Some Planning Groups noted that the courts should rely on Rule 50(b) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure instead of the Speedy Trial Act.

Rule 48. Two Planning Groups recommended that Rule 48(b) (dismissal) should be amended to agree with Section 3162 of the Speedy Trial Act. Another district asked to have Rule 48(a) amended so that the U.S. Attorney would have to inform the court and the defense of an intention to reinstate charges against a defendant whose original charges

X. OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS IN REGARD TO CRIMINAL RULES AND PROCEDURES

A. Rules

Most of these recommendations were for rules that would further expedite criminal cases. One district believed a rule was needed to require magistrates or any judicial officer to record and determine the excludable incidences of delay at time of first appearance in a district of record. This was regarded as appropriate in districts which receive many transfers under Rule 20.

A rule was proposed for placing the responsibility on the U.S. Attorney and the defendant or his counsel for reporting excludable delays including forms for this

One district recommended that a procedure be established whereby the U.S. magistrate could appoint counsel at first appearance when it was possible to do so.

B. Procedures

One Planning Group recommended that court calendars be provided to the U.S. Marshal's Office at least 24 hours before a scheduled court appearance so that the defendant could be transported to court on time.

Another district saw value in continuing the District Planning Groups and recommended that there should be circuit-wide communication on issues as well as procedures for handling cases.

Two districts suggested that pretrial diversion programs should be funded.

XI. FORMS AND INSTRUCTIONS

Two Planning Groups recommended that the Administrative Office develop standardized forms to be used throughout the Federal Judiciary for recording excludable delays within the courts. Two districts requested that all districts have a comprehensive order on excludable delay, thereby reducing the clerical time preparing such orders.

One Planning Group suggested that the U.S. Marshal provide custody reports on each defendant which could be included in the clerk of court's case file. Also, notification of arrests in other districts should be reported uniformly to the district where the prosecution will be held. Routinely, arresting officers should promptly report any arrest in the district to the U.S. Attorney, the clerk of court, and the U.S. magistrate.

According to one district, the Administrative Office should eliminate the current detailed reporting of excludable incidents and time of such delays.

Two districts noted the value of COURTRAN and STARS. These systems serve to reduce the clerical tasks connected with monitoring each case, especially those with multi-

- b. In order to reduce the workload of the Federal courts, one district suggested that Title 42 U.S.C. 1983 be amended to require that State prisoners exhaust all of their State remedies before filing in a Federal Court.
- c. Some districts believe the court should be able to appoint and compensate back-up counsel when regular counsel has a potential trial conflict.
- d. Other districts saw the need for increasing the compensation of panel attorneys appointed under provisions of the Criminal Justice Act.
- e. Consideration of a defendant's danger to the community caused one district to recommend that the Bail Reform Act be amended to respond to this problem.

IX. RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING THE FEDERAL RULES OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

Speedy Trial Planning Groups indicated that the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure should be amended to fit the requirements of the Speedy Trial Act. The recommendations are as follows:

- Rule 7(a). Two Planning Groups indicated that the rule should reflect the time limits for filing an indictment or information. Another Planning Group indicated that Rule 7(a) should be amended to clarify whether or not an information in a felony case was filed by the U.S. Attorney prior to the defendant waiving indictment.
- Rule 8(b). One Planning Group recommended that Rule 8(b) be amended to provide specifically that an information may not be filed against multiple defendants in a criminal case unless all defendants are available for trial.
- Rule 10. Two Planning Groups requested that this Rule provide a time limit for entering a plea. Another district recommended that the U.S. Attorney be requested to designate an unusual or complex case at time of arraignment. One Planning Group suggested that Rule 10 and Rule 43 be amended so that a defendant can enter a written plea without being present.
- Rule 14. In view of Section 3161(h)(7)which provides for a reasonable period of delay for a defendant who is joined for trial with a co-defendant, consideration should be given to defining a time period which is presumed prejudicial within the meaning of such words in Rule 14 and listing the factors to be weighed in determining prejudice in such cases.
- Rule 18. One Planning Group requested a revision of Rule 18 to state that a judicial emergency may provide a good reason to try a defendant outside the original jurisdiction.
- Rule 20. This Rule should permit a defendant to waive venue in the district where the complaint is pending and consent to be charged in the arresting district. At the present time, the defendant can waive indictment and trial under Rules 7, 11, and 20(b).
- Rule 23. Two districts noted that this rule should provide for the time limits for commencement and recommencement of trial as provided by the Speedy Trial Act.
- Rule 23(b) One Planning Group indicated that this rule should be amended to provide a six person jury in misdemeanor cases.
- Rule 45(a) All Speedy Trial accounting for Speedy Trial time intervals and incidents of delay should follow Rule 45(a).

XII. RECOMMENDATIONS OF STUDIES OF THE SPEEDY TRIAL ACT

Districts were not requested to provide recommendations on types of studies that might be taken in examining the effect of the implementation of the Speedy Trial Act; however, recommendations were provided as follows:

- A. An extensive study should be made of the impact of the seventy day limit from indictment to trial.
- B. In two years, there should be a study to determine if there is a need to extend limits and eliminate record keeping now required to monitor all cases, many of which are in compliance.
- C. Another Planning Group suggested that in view of the purpose of the Act, "to assist in reducing crime and the danger of recidivism," there should be a study to determine if this purpose is obtained.
- D. Finally, a Planning Group recommended that there should be a study into the problems resulting from delays in the post-trial procedures. Though not a subject of the Speedy Trial Act, there is concern about the mounting increase in attacks by defendants against their sentences as well as the conduct of the trial.

APPENDIX A

The seven statistical tables for Appendix A are provided as follows:

Table 1 shows the net processing times for Speedy Trial Intervals One and Two (pursuant to the August 2, 1980 amendments) for defendants whose cases were terminated during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1980. Processing times are also shown for Interval Three, the time from conviction to sentence, which has no specified time limit under the Act. Excludable delay periods do not apply to this interval.

Table 2 shows the incidence of and reasons for excludable delay granted by the district courts and the intervals where the delay occurred.

Table 3 is a summary of the district court use of detention for defendants terminated during the twelve months ended June 30, 1980.

Table 4 shows all defendants terminated in the district courts for the two years ended June 30, 1979 and 1980, including those who did not come under the reporting provisions of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974.

Table 5 provides the age of the pending civil caseload for three years ended June 30.

Tables 6a and 6b show, by major offense for the first and second time intervals, the net time required to dispose of defendants during the year ended June 30, 1980 who were prosecuted under provisions of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974, as amended.

Table 7 summarizes, by district, the number of matters presented for prosecution and the number on which prosecution was initiated. This based on a report provided by the District Planning Groups on matters presented for prosecution to the U.S. Attorney.

§ 3161. Time limits and exclusions

(a) In any case involving a defendant charged with an offense, the appropriate judicial officer, at the earliest practicable time, shall, after consultation with the counsel for the defendant and the attorney for the Government, set the case for trial on a day certain, or list it for trial on a weekly or other short-term trial calendar at a place within the judicial district, so as to assure a speedy trial.

(b) Any information or indictment charging an individual with the commission of an offense shall be filed within thirty days from the date on which such individual was arrested or served with a summons in connection with such charges. If an individual has been charged with a felony in a district in which no grand jury has been in session during such thirty-day period, the period of time for filing of the indictment shall be extended an additional thirty days.

(c)(1) In any case in which a plea of not guilty is entered, the trial of a defendant charged in an information or indictment with the commission of an offense shall commence within seventy days from the filing date (and making public) of the information or indictment, or from the date the defendant has appeared before a judicial officer of the court in which such charge is pending, whichever date last occurs. If a defendant consents in writing to be tried before a magistrate on a complaint, the trial shall commence within seventy days from the date of such consent.

(2) Unless the defendant consents in writing to the contrary, the trial shall not commence less than thirty days from the date on which the defendant first appears through counsel or expressly waives counsel and elects to proceed pro se.

(d)(1) If any indictment or information is dismissed upon motion of the defendant, or any charge contained in a complaint filed against an individual is dismissed or otherwise dropped, and thereafter a complaint is filed against such defendant or individual charging him with the same offense or an offense based on the same conduct or arising from the same criminal episode, or an information or indictment is filed charging such defendant with the same offense or an offense based on the same conduct or arising from the same criminal episode, the provisions of subsections (b) and (c) of this section shall be applicable with respect to such subsequent complaint, indictment, or information, as the case may be.

(2) If the defendant is to be tried upon an indictment or information dismissed by a trial court and reinstated following an appeal, the trial shall commence within seventy days from the date the action occasioning the trial becomes final, except that the court retrying the case may extend the period for trial not to exceed one hundred and eighty days from the date the action occasioning the trial becomes final if the unavailability of witnesses or other factors resulting from the passage of time shall make trial within seventy days impractical. The periods of delay enumerated in section 3161(h) are excluded in computing the time limitations specified in this section. The sanctions of section 3162 apply to this subsection.

(e) If the defendant is to be tried again following a declaration by the trial judge of a mistrial or foilowing an order of such judge for a new trial, the trial shall commence within seventy days from the date the action occasioning the retrial becomes final. If the defendant is to be tried again following an appeal or a collateral attack, the trial shall commence within seventy days from the date the action occasioning the retrial becomes final, except that the court retrying the case may extend the period for retrial not to exceed one hundred and eighty days from the date the action occasioning the retrial becomes final if unavailability of witnesses or other factors resulting from passage of time shall make trial within seventy days impractical. The periods of delay enumerated in section 3161(h) are excluded in computing the time limitations specified in this section. The sanctions of section 3162 apply to this subsection.

(f) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (b) of this section, for the first twelve-calendar-month period following the effective date of this section as set forth in section 3163(a) of this chapter the time limit imposed with respect to the period between arrest and indictment by subsection (b) of this section shall be sixty days, for the second such twelve-month period such time limit shall be forty-five days and for the third such period such time limit shall be thirty-five days.

(g) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (c) of this section, for the first twelve-calendarmonth period following the effective date of this section as set forth in section 3163(b) of this chapter, the time limit with respect to the period between arraignment and trial imposed by subsection (c) of this section shall be one hundred and eighty days, for the second such twelve-month period such time limit shall be one hundred and twenty days, and for the third such period such time limit with respect to the period between arraignment and trial shall be eighty days.

(h) The following periods of delay shall be excluded in computing the time within which an information or an indictment must be filed, or in computing the time within which the trial of any such offense must commence:

(1) Any period of delay resulting from other proceedings concerning the defendant, including but not limited to—

- (A) delay resulting from any proceeding, including any examinations, to determine the mental competency or physical capacity of the defendant;
- (B) delay resulting from any proceeding, including any examination of the defendant, pursuant to section 2902 of title 28, United States Code;
- (C) delay resulting from deferral of prosecution pursuant to section 2902 of title 28, United States Code;
- (D) delay resulting from trial with respect to other charges against the defendant;

(E) delay resulting from any interlocutory appeal;

(F) delay resulting from any pretrial motion, from the filing of the motion through the conclusion of the hearing on, or other prompt disposition of, such motion;

(G) delay resulting from any proceeding relating to the transfer of a case or the removal of any defendant from another district under the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure;

- (H) delay resulting from transportation of any defendant from another district, or to and from places of examination or hospitalization, except that any time consumed in excess of ten days from the date an order of removal or an order directing such transportation, and the defendant's arrival at the destination shall be presumed to be unreasonable;
- (I) delay resulting from consideration by the court of a proposed plea agreement to be entered into by the defendant and the attorney for the Government; and

(J) delay reasonably attributable to any period, not to exceed thirty days, during which any proceeding concerning the defendant is actually under advisement by the court.

- (2) Any period of delay during which prosecution is deferred by the attorney for the Government pursuant to written agreement with the defendant, with the approval of the court, for the purpose of allowing the defendant to demonstrate his good conduct.
- (3) (A) Any period of delay resulting from the absence or unavailability of the defendant or an essential witness.
- (B) For purposes of subparagraph (A) of this paragraph, a defendant or an essential witness shall be considered absent when his whereabouts are unknown and, in addition, he is attempting to avoid apprehension or prosecution or his whereabouts cannot be determined by due diligence. For purposes of such subparagraph, a defendant or an essential witness shall be considered unavailable whenever his whereabouts are known but his presence for trial cannot be obtained by due diligence or he resists appearing at or being returned for trial.
- (4) Any period of delay resulting from the fact that the defendant is mentally incompetent or physically unable to stand trial.
- (5) Any period of delay resulting from the treatment of the defendant pursuant to section 2902 of title 28, United States Code.
- (6) If the information or indictment is dismissed upon motion of the attorney for the Government and thereafter a charge is filed against the defendant for the same offense, or any offense required to be joined with that offense, any period of delay from the date the charge was dismissed to the date the time limitation would commence to run as to the subsequent charge had there been no previous charge.

(7) A reasonable period of delay when the defendant is joined for trial with a codefendant as to whom the time for trial has not run and no motion for severance has been granted.

- (8) (A) Any period of delay resulting from a continuance granted by any judge on his own motion or at the request of the defendant or his counsel or at the request of the attorney for the Government, if the judge granted such continuance on the basis of his findings that the ends of justice served by taking such action outweigh the best interest of the public and the defendant in a speedy trial. No such period of delay resulting from a continuance granted by the court in accordance with this paragraph shall be excludable under this subsection unless the court sets forth. in the record of the case, either orally or in writing, its reasons for finding that the ends of justice served by the granting of such continuance outweigh the best interests of the public and the defendant in a speedy trial.
- (B) The factors, among others, which a judge shall consider in determining whether to grant a continuance under subparagraph (A) of this paragraph in any case are as follows:
- (i) Whether the failure to grant such a continuance in the proceeding would be likely to make a continuation of such proceeding impossible, or result in a miscarriage of justice.
- (ii) Whether the case is so unusual or so complex, due to the number of defendants, the nature of the prosecution, or the existence of novel questions of fact or law, that it is unreasonable to expect adequate preparation for pretrial proceedings or for the trial itself within the time limits established by this section.
- (iii) Whether, in a case in which arrest precedes indictment, delay in the filing of the indictment is caused because the arrest occurs at a time such that it is unreasonable to expect return and filing of the indictment within the period specified in section 3161(b), or because the facts upon which the grand jury must base its determination are unusual or complex.
- (iv) Whether the failure to grant such a continuance in a case which, taken as a whole, is not so unusual or so complex as to fall within clause (ii), would deny the defendant reasonable time to obtain counsel, would unreasonably deny the defendant or the Government continuity of counsel, or would deny counsel for the defendant or the attorney for the Government the reasonable time necessary for effective preparation, taking into account the exercise of due diligence.
- (C) No continuance under paragraph (8)(A) of this subsection shall be granted because of general congestion of the court's calendar, or lack of diligent preparation or failure to obtain available witnesses on the part of the attorney for the Government.

- (i) If trial did not commence within the time limitation specified in section 3161 because the defendant had entered a plea of guilty or nolo contendere subsequently withdrawn to any or all charges in an indictment or information, the defendant shall be deemed indicted with respect to all charges therein contained within the meaning of section 3161, on the day the order permitting withdrawal of the plea becomes final.
- (j) (1) If the attorney for the Government knows that a person charged with an offense is serving a term of imprisonment in any penal institution, he shall promptly—
- (A) undertake to obtain the presence of the prisoner for trial; or
- (B) cause a detainer to be filed with the person having custody of the prisoner and request him to so advise the prisoner and to advise the prisoner of his right to demand trial.
- (2) If the person having custody of such prisoner receives a detainer, he shall promptly advise the prisoner of the charge and of the prisoner's right to demand trial. If at any time thereafter the prisoner informs the person having custody that he does demand trial, such person shall cause notice to that effect to be sent promptly to the attorney for the Government who caused the detainer to be filed.
- (3) Upon receipt of such notice, the attorney for the Government shall promptly seek to obtain the presence of the prisoner for trial.
- (4) When the person having custody of the prisoner receives from the attorney for the Government a properly supported request for temporary custody of such prisoner for trial, the prisoner shall be made available to that attorney for the Government (subject, in cases of interjurisdictional transfer, to any right of the prisoner to contest the legality of his delivery).

§ 3162. Sanctions

- (a) (1) If, in the case of any individual against whom a complaint is filed charging such individual with an offense, no indictment or information is filed within the time limit required by section 3161(b) as extended by section 3161(h) of this chapter, such charge against that individual contained in such complaint shall be dismissed or otherwise dropped. In determining whether to dismiss the case with or without prejudice, the court shall consider, among others, each of the following factors: the seriousness of the offense; the facts and circumstances of the case which led to the dismissal; and the impact of a reprosecution on the administration of justice.
- (2) If a defendant is not brought to trial within the time limit required by section 3161(c) as extended by section 3161(h), the information or indictment shall be dismissed on motion of the defendant. The defendant shall have the burden of proof of supporting such motion but the Government shall have the burden of going forward with the evidence in connection with any exclusion of time under subparagraph 3161(h)(3). In determining whether to dismiss the case with or without prejudice, the court shall consider, among others, each of the following factors: the seriousness of the offense; the facts and circumstances of the case which led to the dismissal; and the impact of a reprosecution on the administration of this chapter and on the administration of justice. Failure of the defendant to move for dismissal prior to trial or entry of a plea of guilty or nolo contendere shall constitute a waiver of the right to dismissal under this section.

- (b) In any case in which counsel for the defendant or the attorney for the Government (1) knowingly allows the case to be set for trial without disclosing the fact that a necessary witness would be unavailable for trial; (2) files a motion solely for the purpose of delay which he knows is totally frivolous and without merit; (3) makes a statement for the purpose of obtaining a continuance which he knows to be false and which is material to the granting of a continuance; or (4) otherwise willfully fails to proceed to trial without justification consistent with section 3161 of this chapter, the court may punish any such counsel or attorney, as follows:
- (A) in the case of an appointed defense counsel, by reducing the amount of compensation that otherwise would have been paid to such counsel pursuant to section 3006A of this title in an amount not to exceed 25 per centum thereof;
- (B) in the case of a counsel retained in connection with the defense of a defendant, by imposing on such counsel a fine of not to exceed 25 per centum of the compensation to which he is entitled in connection with his defense of such defendant;
- (C) by imposing on any attorney for the Government a fine of not to exceed $250;
- (D) by denying any such counsel or attorney for the Government the right to practice before the court considering such case for a period of not to exceed ninety days; or
- (E) by filing a report with an appropriate disciplinary committee.

The authority to punish provided for by this subsection shall be in addition to any other authority or power available to such court.

(c) The court shall follow procedures established in the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure in punishing any counsel or attorney for the Government pursuant to this section.

(Added Pub.L. 93-619, Title I, § 101, Jan. 3, 1975, 88 Stat.

- (a) The trial or other disposition of cases involving—
- (1) a detained person who is being held in detention solely because he is awaiting trial, and
  (2) a released person who is awaiting trial and has been designated by the attorney for the Government as being of high risk, shall be accorded priority.

- (b) The trial of any person described in subsection (a)(1) or (a)(2) of this section shall commence not later than ninety days following the beginning of such continuous detention or designation of high risk by the attorney for the Government. The periods of delay enumerated in section 3161(h) are excluded in computing the time limitation specified in this section.
- (c) Failure to commence trial of a detainee as specified in subsection (b), through no fault of the accused or his counsel, or failure to commence trial of a designated releasee as specified in subsection (b), through no fault of the attorney for the Government, shall result in the automatic review by the court of the conditions of release. No detainee, as defined in subsection (a), shall be held in custody pending trial after the expiration of such ninetyday period required for the commencement of his trial. A designated releasee, as defined in subsection (a), who is found by the court to have intentionally delayed the trial of his case shall be subject to an order of the court modifying his nonfinancial conditions of release under this title to insure that he shall appear at trial as required.

The group shall advise the district court with respect to the formulation of all district plans and shall submit its recommendations to the district court for each of the district plans required by section 3165. The group shall be responsible for the initial formulation of all district plans and of the reports required by this chapter and in aid thereof, it shall be entitled to the planning funds specified in section 3171.

§ 3174. Judicial emergency and implementa-

- (a) In the event that any district court is unable to comply with the time limits set forth in section 3161(c) due to the status of its court calendars, the chief judge, where the existing resources are being efficiently utilized, may, after seeking the recommendations of the planning group, apply to the judicial council of the circuit for a suspension of such time limits as provided in subsection (b). The capabilities of the district, the availability of visiting judges from within and without the circuit, and make any recommendations it deems appropriate to alleviate calendar congestion resulting from the
- (b) If the judicial council of the circuit finds that no remedy for such congestion is reasonably available, such council may, upon application by the chief judge of a district, grant a suspension of the time limits in section 3161(c) in such district for a period of time not to exceed one year for the trial of cases for which indictments or informations are filed during such one-year period. During such period of suspension, the time limits from arrest to indictment, set forth in section 3161(b), shall not be reduced, nor shall the sanctions set forth in section 3162 be suspended; but such time limits from indictment to trial shall not be increased to exceed one hundred and eighty days. The time limits for the trial of cases of detained persons who are being detained solely because they are awaiting trial shall not be affected by the provisions of this section.
- (c)(1) If, prior to July 1, 1980, the chief judge of any district concludes, with the concurrence of the planning group convened in the district, that the district is prepared to implement the provisions of section 3162 in their entirety, he may apply to the judicial council of the circuit in which the district is located to implement such provisions. Such application shall show the degree of compliance in the district with the time limits set forth in subsections (b) and (c) of section 3161 during the twelve-calendar-month period preceding the date of such application and shall contain a proposed order and schedule for such implementation, which includes the date on which the provisions of section 3162 are to become effective in the district, the effect such implementation will have upon such district's practices and procedures, and provision for adequate notice to all interested parties.
- (2) After review of any such application, the judicial council of the circuit shall enter an order implementing the provisions of section 3162 in their entirety in the district making application, or shall return such application to the chief judge of such district, together with an explanation setting forth such council's reasons for refusing to enter such order.

- (d)(1) The approval of any application made pursuant to subsection (a) or (c) by a judicial council of a circuit shall be reported within ten days to the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, together with a copy of the application, a written report setting forth in sufficient detail the reasons for granting such application, and, in the case of an application made pursuant to subsection (a), a proposal for alleviating congestion in the district.
- (2) The Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts shall not later than ten days after receipt transmit such report to the Congress and to the Judicial Conference of the United States. The judicial council of the circuit shall not grant a suspension to any district within six months following the expiration of a prior suspension without the consent of the Congress by Act of Congress. The limitation on granting a suspension made by this paragraph shall not apply with respect to any judicial district in which the prior suspension is in effect on the date of the enactment of the Speedy Trial Act Amendments Act of 1979.
- (e) If the chief judge of the district court concludes that the need for suspension of time limits in such district under this section is of great urgency, he may order the limits suspended for a period not to exceed thirty days. Within ten days of entry of such order, the chief judge shall apply to the judicial council of the circuit for a suspension pursuant to subsection (a).

Impact Study The Effects of the Speedy Trial Act on Civil Cases In United States Courts

Introduction and Summary of Results

From November 1979 through May 1980, the Administrative Office conducted a study of the nationwide civil caseload data in order to determine the effects of the Speedy Trial Act upon civil cases. In contrast to the rest of this report, this impact study does not use 1980 data. In examining ten years of statistics which are related to the length of time necessary to process a civil case (such as the median time from filing to disposition; the median time for just those cases which went to trial; or the percentage of cases pending three or more years), a general pattern emerges. When all civil cases are examined together, there appears to be no change in the amount of time required to dispose of a civil case which could be caused by the Speedy Trial Act. When those cases which tend to take longer (like cases which go to trial) are studied separately, however, there is a striking difference between the periods before and after the implementation of the Speedy Trial Act. In particular, the median time from filing to disposition of civil cases which went to trial and the median time from issue to trial of civil cases steadily increased after 1976, when the Speedy Trial Act came into effect, after having remained roughly constant for the preceding five years. After decreasing since 1967, the percentage of civil cases pending three or more years increased sharply after 1976. A similar change occurred in the time by which 90 percent of all civil cases are terminated. Possibly because of these increases in time, the percentage of civil cases terminated during or after trial started to decrease after 1976 even faster than before. The percentage of civil cases which were appealed to the circuit courts rose until 1976 and then declined sharply.

In addition to the ten year nationwide analysis, many of these same factors were examined district by district for 1979 to determine if districts with high Speedy Trial Act compliance achieved it at the expense of other areas, or if they had high compliance just because they do well in general. The data indicates that more often than not the latter is true. The districts with good Speedy Trial Act compliance tended to have: (1) shorter median times from filing to disposition of civil cases which went to trial; (2) shorter median times from filing to disposition for criminal defendants; (3) shorter times by which 90 percent of all civil cases are resolved; and (4) a smaller percentage of civil cases pending three or more years. Although there were other measures of court quality which apparently are not related to Speedy Trial compliance, there were none which conclusively indicated that some aspect of the courts' work was impaired when compliance improved.

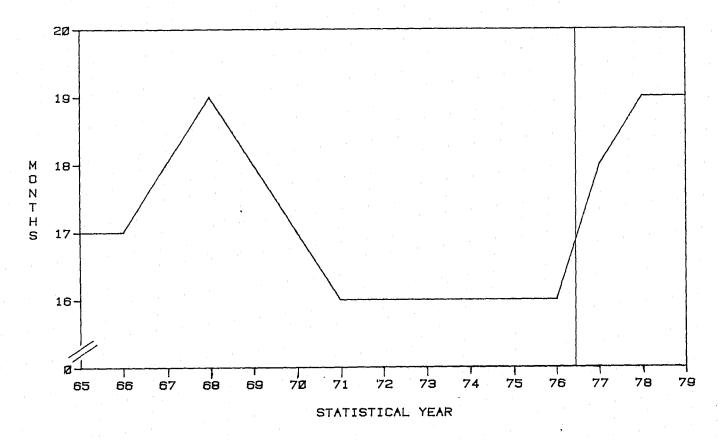

Two of the measures of court quality which apparently are not affected by and do not affect Speedy Trial compliance are the Juror Usage Index and the percentage of civil cases which are appealed. Two other factors unrelated to compliance (but not measures of court quality) are the number of civil cases per judgeship and criminal cases per judgeship. Increasing the number of judges, thereby decreasing the per judge caseload, does not necessarily improve Speedy Trial compliance. This is true because, for most courts with a given rate of compliance, there are other courts with fewer filings per judge that have the same rate of compliance. The study indicated no consistently better compliance for courts with a relatively low caseload per judgeship.

A number of factors have been studied for the period from 1970 to 1979 which showed no evidence of being affected by the Speedy Trial Act. In addition to the median time from filing to disposition of all civil cases, four other variables apparently were not influenced by the Act. The most notable is the number of civil cases pending; it has not increased in a monner which can be attributed to the Speedy Trial Act. Nor have the percentages of cases which were less than one year old a year ago and are still unresolved. Similarly, the percentages of cases still pending which were between one and two years old the previous year do not appear to have been affected by the Act. The distribution of case types among the various civil cases which were terminated has not changed substantially over the past decade. For example, civil contract actions have accounted for about 19 percent of all civil cases terminated throughout the 1970's. The fact that no one type of civil case was closed disproportionately in comparison to any other type of civil case indicates that district judges are not terminating the easy cases and postponing work on the difficult ones. Finally, there is no evidence to indicate that judges are terminating more civil cases early in order to handle the pressure caused by the time constraints of the Act. If this were to happen, we would expect more civil cases which are terminated in their early stages to be appealed. Random samples of 250 appealed civil cases from each of the years 1971-1979 show that this did not occur.

The Statistical Premises Behind This Study

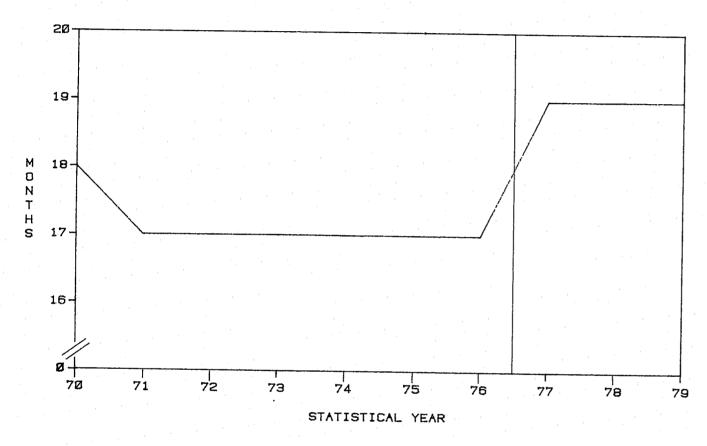

There are three main points regarding this study which must be understood in order to evaluate it:

- 1. It is necessary to determine what kind of change would be expected that could be caused by the Speedy Trial Act. The Act's time limits were phased in gradually over statistical years (from July 1 to June 30) 1977, 1978, and 1979. The requirements became more stringent each year and in the future will remain at the 1979 level. Because they were gradual, a gradual change might be expected in statistics which were affected by the Act away from trends prior to 1975 and 1976. Graph I illustrates this with the median time from filing to disposition of civil cases which went to trial. The trend (or slope) of the curve changes about 1976 or 1977. This can be contrasted with Graph II, which shows a change that would not be indicative of effects caused by the Speedy Trial Act. Graph II, the median times from filing to disposition of tort actions, shows a jump in the level of the curve at 1977 with no change in 1978 or 1979. This could indicate that a major change took place in 1977, not a series of small changes in 1977, 1978, and 1979.
- 2. It is impossible to verify that one event has caused another just by looking at statistics. For example, the chance always exists that, instead of A causing B, an event C caused them both; or that A caused C which caused B; or that a change in A caused a change in B which, in turn, affects A again, etc. It is for this reason that caveats will appear throughout this study: e.g., "the increase in the percentage of civil cases pending three or more years is apparently due to the Speedy Trial Act," and so on.

The outlook for saying that the Speedy Trial Act affects various parts of the civil process is not that bleak, however; it is possible with statistical theory to disprove that one event has caused another. Therefore, what can be done is to disprove that the change in the slope of the line is due to other factors besides the Act. By disproving a cause-and-effect relationship between the change in slope and as many other factors as possible, we can increase our level of certainty that the Act caused the change. What was usually done when a change in the slope of the line occurred around the time the Speedy Trial Act was implemented was to show that no single category of case was responsible for the change. Sometimes particular types of civil cases which might make a difference were removed from that data, like prisoner petitions or I.C.C. cases filed in the District of Massachusetts.

3. There is always the possibility that a change in slope may be due to chance. When viewed over time, many of these statistics follow a general pattern (like a straight line, for example), but there are small random fluctuations above or below this pattern. Graph I, for the years 1967 - 1975, gives an example of a straight line slope with some random fluctuations. It is possible that what appears to be a change in slope may be the result of those random fluctuations forming what appears to be a pattern of their own. There are statistical tests which can tell the probability of this happening. If the probability is very small, then the assumption that the difference is not due to chance is made.

Effects of the Speedy Trial Act Over Time

The various studies conducted on the effects of the Speedy Trial Act over time fell into four general categories. The length of time required for dealing with various types of civil cases — civil cases pending, civil terminations, and civil cases which were appealed — will be explored in turn.

Graph III shows the change which has taken place in civil processing times since the Speedy Trial Act came into effect. The lower line is the median time from filing to disposition of all civil cases. (The median is the "middle" time when all of the times are arranged from shortest to longest; i.e., half of the cases take less time to close than the median time and half take longer.) The upper line shows the time by which 90 percent of the civil cases were closed. The Speedy Trial Act has obviously not affected the median time for all civil cases because the line generally continues in the same direction after 1976 as it did before that year.

The increase shown in the time by which 90 percent of all civil cases are resolved is not due to chance, nor is it due to an increase in duration of any one category of case. It is, therefore, plausible that the Speedy Trial Act caused the increase. The probability of having an increase that steady with no real underlying cause is less than one-tenth of one percent. The types of cases which showed this change are contract actions, real property, tort actions, labor laws, and social security.

Not surprisingly, the statistics on civil cases which go to trial are very similar to those for the longest civil cases mentioned above. The median time from filing to disposition of civil cases which went to trial (Graph I) stopped being constant and started to go up after 1976. The probability of this occurring by chance is less than one-tenth of one percent. The categories of these cases which experienced this type of change were contract actions, real property, labor laws, social security, and tax suits.

One statistic which behaves very much like the median time from filing to disposition of civil cases which went to trial is the median time from issue to trial. After remaining relatively constant for several years, it also started to increase after 1976. This is mentioned because it is interesting to note that the change is stronger for non-jury trials than for jury trials. Generally, more time must be devoted by the judge to non-jury cases than to jury cases. If the Speedy Trial Act is affecting the civil process by using more judge time, then non-jury cases would probably be affected more. Graph IV shows the difference in median times for cases going to jury and non-jury trials.

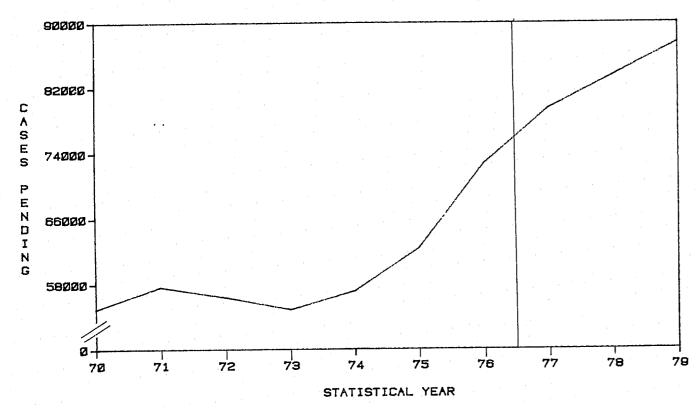

The second major variable which was examined over time was the civil pending case-load. There is no evidence that the Speedy Trial Act has caused any change in the number of civil cases pending. Because filings in civil rights, commerce, real property (includes land condemnation), other personal injury (includes product liability), and contract actions (includes student loan cases) increased so much more than the average increase from 1970 to 1979, they were removed from the numbers of pending cases for the study. Graph V shows that the remaining numbers of pending cases did not increase as sharply after 1976 as before, but this was because filings did not increase as sharply.

The percentage of civil cases pending three or more years, on the other hand, apparently has been strongly affected by the Speedy Trial Act. Graph VI shows that the percentage of cases pending at least three years had been decreasing since 1967. This trend reversed itself in 1976, indicating the type of change which might be expected if the Speedy Trial Act affected the process. The increase was not due to a decrease in the number of active district judges on the bench; that number stayed almost constant from 1973 to 1978 and increased slightly in 1979. Removing civil rights, commerce, prisoner petitions, and social security cases, in turn, revealed that none of those categories alone was responsible for the increase in those older pending cases. Finally, the probability that the increase was due to a series of random fluctuations rather than a real underlying cause is less than one-tenth of one percent.

The percentages of pending civil cases which "survive" from one year to the next without being terminated may have been affected by the Speedy Trial Act, but the evidence is not sufficiently clear-cut. (In light of the Act's apparent effect upon three year old civil cases, it is plausible that the percentage of cases still pending after a year is affected.) The percentages had been decreasing from the late 1960's until 1975, when they jumped to a higher level. (See Graphs VII A and B. Massachusetts is excluded so that the large number of pending ICC cases does not confuse the issue.) Apparently, some change occurred around 1975 or 1976 to cause the large jump seen from one year to the next. It was probably not the Speedy Trial Act (which came into effect at the beginning of statistical year 1977) because a drastic change would not be expected to be brought about by something which was phased in gradually. If the Speedy Trial Act did affect these percentages of "survival" cases, then its effects are masked by whatever caused the jump in 1976.

The third major category of cases which was studied over time was civil cases terminated. The evidence indicates that the Speedy Trial Act apparently has caused the percentage of civil cases disposed of by trial to decline even faster than prior to 1976. Graph VIII shows that this percentage had been declining but leveling off from 1969 to 1975. From 1976 to 1980 it started a downturn which cannot reasonably be attributed to chance. The probability that the downturn is due to a random fluctuation and not to something actually affecting the civil process is one-half of one percent. The same pattern emerged even after removing three types of civil cases (land condemnation, recovery of overpayments and enforcement of judgments and social security) which have increased substantially over the last few years and account for a large portion of all civil cases terminated. The percentage of cases terminated after trial for these categories is minute and their inclusion could have affected the trend. However, it did not.

Another set of statistics examined over time was the percentage of cases terminated in various categories. Suppose, for example, antitrust cases were consistently about one percent of the total of civil terminations before 1976 and steadily declined after that. If the number of antitrust suits coming into the system was not also declining, then this might indicate that judges are dealing with the burden of the Speedy Trial Act by terminating more of the easier cases and letting the difficult ones wait. Examining the data shows no evidence that this is happening. For some categories of cases (tax suit, antitrust, deportation, forfeiture and penalty) there is the type of change which might be attributed to the Act, but these changes in the percentages of terminations in these categories are clearly caused by similar changes in the numbers of cases entering the system.

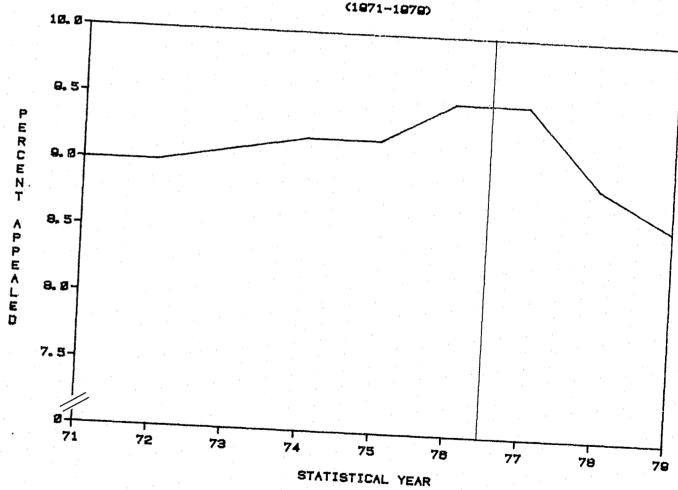

The last major type of statistic which was examined over time related to terminated civil cases which were appealed. Graph IX shows that the percentage of civil cases appealed had been increasing from 1971 through 1976, but that it started to decline when the Speedy Trial Act came into effect. This change in the slope of the line before and after 1976 is a significant change. The probability that it is just a random fluctuation is less than one-tenth of one percent. It is also not due to a change in any one type of case.

If the Speedy Trial Act is slowing up those civil cases which historically take the longest time to resolve, then a drop in the rate of civil appeals can be easily explained. Based on a random sample of 250 civil cases appealed to the circuit courts in 1979, about one quarter of those civil cases which are appealed have gone to trial. If that large proportion of all appealed civil cases was held up by the Speedy Trial Act, then it is possible that the parties would be less willing to appeal if their experience with the court (at the district level) is that it will take a long time for the case to be heard. Certainly, one of the considerations in deciding whether to appeal is the length of time which the potential appellant believes it will take for the case to be heard. In addition to this speculation, there is hard statistical evidence which indicates that the longer a civil case lasts, the less likely it is that it will be appealed. The probability is about two-tenths of one percent that there is no correlation between the median time of civil cases disposed of by trial and the percentage of civil cases appealed.

Another appeals statistic which yields interesting results is the procedural stage at which an appealed civil case was terminated in the district court. One method which judges might use for dealing with the work stemming from the Speedy Trial Act would be to terminate civil cases as early as possible. If this were done, then one would expect appeals from civil cases terminated in the earlier stages to rise at a faster rate than before. An examination of the data from 250 cases selected at random from each of the years 1971 to 1979 clearly shows that this is not the case. There is no evidence whatsoever that judges, as a group, are terminating civil cases early in order to deal with the demands of the Speedy Trial Act. Although cases terminated at different stages have been steadily increasing (e.g., before issue joined) or decreasing (e.g., after motion decided but before issue joined) throughout the past decade, no effect from the Act is evident.

District by District Study

In the previous section of this impact study, national data was examined over the decade of the 1970's to find out what parts of the civil process have been affected by the Speedy Trial Act and in what way. Another useful way of studying the data is to examine it district by district. In this section the majority of the work was done on the relationships (or lack of them) between Speedy Trial Act compliance and various measures of court quality. (See the technical note on compliance.) The object was to determine if the courts with good Speedy Trial Act compliance achieve it at the expense of other areas of court administration or if courts with good compliance have it because they are generally efficient — or neither.

Two different methods were used to solve this problem and they pointed to the same conclusion: more often than not, those courts with high Speedy Trial Act compliance also did well in other areas of court quality. There are many exceptions to this because the relationship between the measures of court quality and compliance is a weak one, but it is safe to say that generally the courts are not sacrificing quality in other areas in order to comply with the Speedy Trial Act. The first method used to examine this problem was to review the relationships between compliance and each of several measures of court quality for all district courts. The second method compared the measures of quality of the eight districts with the best compliance with those eight districts with the worst and the national average.

The first method found weak relationships between Speedy Trial Act compliance and four measures of court quality. More often than not, those courts with good compliance had a better: (1) percentage of civil cases pending three or more years; (2) time by which 90 percent of all civil cases are terminated; (3) median time from filing to disposition of civil cases which went to trial; and (4) median time from filing to disposition of criminal defendants. The method also revealed that the degree of compliance does not affect (nor is it affected by): (1) juror utilization (as measured by the Juror Usage Index (J.U.I.), the average number of jurors on hand for each jury trial day); or (2) the percentage of civil cases appealed.

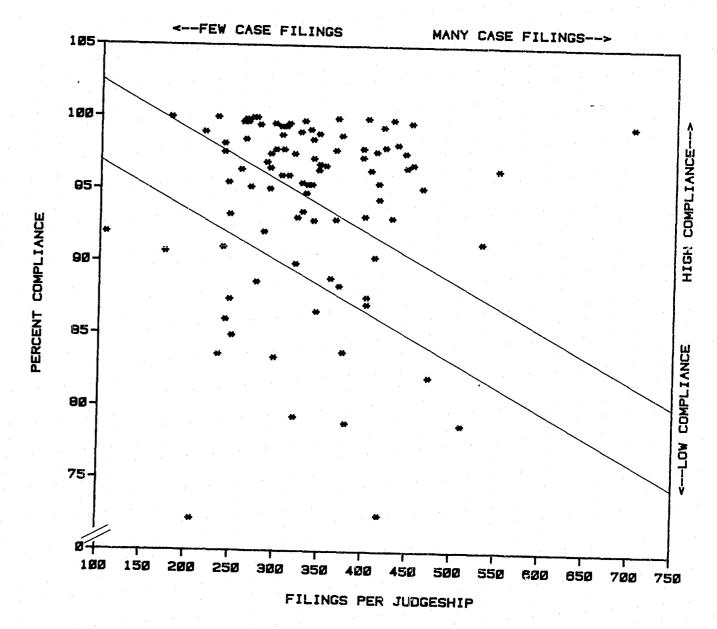

The second method found that the eight districts with the lowest compliance were significantly worse than the national average and the best compliance courts in all four measures of quality mentioned in the beginning of the previous paragraph. The best courts were better than the national average in those four measures and in the Juror Usage Index, but this difference was not significant. Even so, this evidence is sufficient to state that the eight best compliance districts do not have good compliance at the expense of other areas of court quality.

One interesting outcome of the district-by-district research was that the number of civil and criminal filings per judgeship generally does not have an effect upon Speedy Trial Act compliance. (See Graph X.) The diagonal lines on the graph show where the points would cluster if a greater number of case filings lead to worse compliance. The band goes from upper left to lower right because "upper" means better compliance and "left" means fewer cases. "Lower" on the graph indicates worse compliance and the right side is for more cases per judgeship. The points do not cluster themselves inside these lines, indicating that in general few filings does not mean high compliance.

The implication of this result is that in most cases, additional judges in a court would not improve the compliance of that court. This, of course, is not true if the court already does not have enough judges to handle the caseload.

The Abt Study

On April 15, 1980, Abt Associates, Inc., of Cambridge, Massachusetts submitted to the U.S. Department of Justice a "Speedy Trial Act Impact Study." This study, done under contract for the Office of Improvement in the Administration of Justice, contains a chapter on the effect of the Speedy Trial Act on the civil backlog. In spite of the fact that the methodologies used were different, Abt Associates and the Administrative Office arrived at many of the same conclusions.

Summarized, the ABT study's major conclusions were: (1) compliance with the Act has not increased the size of the pending caseload; (2) "the majority of civil cases faced no greater delays following the implementation of the Act;" (3) "for the minority of cases pending the longest times, there was a sustained increase in processing time..." which may be due to constraints from the Act; and (4) "there is only a slight tendency for accelerated criminal processing to be associated with longer civil processing."

Summary

Briefly, the conclusions reached by the Administrative Office study are:

- 1. While the majority of civil cases have not been slowed up by the Speedy Trial Act, those which have in the past taken the longest to terminate now take even longer. Of particular note is the fact that cases which go to trial have been markedly affected.
- 2. Although some processes take more time than before, it is clear that on the whole the courts have not sacrificed quality (as defined by the six variables mentioned above) to the Speedy Trial Act. It is equally clear that compliance with the Act is very good overall; in other words, the courts also have not ignored the Speedy Trial Act in order to maintain the quality of their work.
- 3. The courts which are better (or worse) than average in compliance with the Act are generally those which are also better (or worse) than average in the six areas discussed above.

Technical Note

"Speedy Trial Act compliance," as used in this report, refers to a weighted average of the district's rate of compliance with the transitional Interval Three, the time from arraignment to trial. The rates (expressed as percentages) were weighted with the inverses of the time limits for statistical years 1977, 1978, and 1979. This ensured that the more recent years (with more stringent requirements) were given proportionally more importance.
