NEW JERSEY COUNCIL ON CRIME VICTIMS

INTRODUCTION

The Crime Victim Assistance Network program is designed to open all avenues of communication between those working throughout New Jersey to help crime victims. A coordinated effort across our state is definitely a necessary element to bring about the programs and legislation needed to make life a little easier for the crime victim.

The Crime Victim Assistance Network (C-VAN) directory is part of the New Jersey Council on Crime Victims' effort to help open those lines of communication.

As you notice, the directory is printed in looseleaf style, making updates simple.

The first edition of this directory is being printed by the New Jersey Council on Crime Victims. The New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice has agreed to fund the printing of subsequent editions and updates in cooperation with the Council.

The New Jersey Council on Crime Victims appreciates the cooperation it has received in putting this directory together from program directors from all parts of the state.

The C-VAN directory represents one of the first attempts in our nation to coordinate a statewide network of victim-related services.

The directory has been compiled through the efforts of the executive board of the New Jersey Council on Crime Victims: Robert Grayson, chairman; Wayne Pilato, first assistant chairman; Denise Kleis, second assistant chairwoman; Thomas Kaczmarek and George McCarthy.

The Council welcomes and encourages the addition of new programs to help crime victims, and urges the directors of these new programs to submit the necessary information to have these programs included in the directory. Inquiries and information can be sent to:
