Dear Colleague:

I’m pleased to present the Office of Justice Programs’ (OJP) Fiscal Year 2010 Program Plan. In the Program Plan you’ll find funding opportunities and new initiatives from OJP, as well as guidance on how to take advantage of those opportunities. The plan reflects my commitment to providing the latest and most complete information about the resources available to help reduce crime, improve the justice system, and serve victims.

The Program Plan is divided into 10 thematically organized sections. Each represents both an issue that cuts across OJP bureaus and offices and a challenge identified by the criminal and juvenile justice fields. I hope that the programs and activities included will spur innovative practices, produce groundbreaking research, and yield reliable data that can help advance evidence-based, smart-on-crime approaches.

I encourage you – as a justice system stakeholder and an OJP partner – to explore the opportunities included in this plan and apply for funding in the areas that interest you. Consider this an invitation to be part of the work of the Department of Justice to prevent and reduce crime in America’s communities.

Thank you for visiting us, and I look forward to working with you.

Sincerely,

Laurie O. Robinson
Assistant Attorney General

Introduction

For 25 years, the U.S. Department of Justice’s Office of Justice Programs (OJP) has provided federal leadership in developing the nation’s capacity to prevent and control crime by improving the criminal and juvenile justice systems, increasing knowledge about crime and related issues, and assisting crime victims. This OJP Fiscal Year (FY) 2010 Program Plan describes the grants OJP intends to support, pending the Congressional appropriation of funds. As of November 30, 2009, OJP is operating under a continuing resolution and all funding referenced in this plan will be finalized once the FY 2010 appropriations have been approved.

The Congressional appropriation that supports OJP’s programs and operations reflects the priorities of the President, the Attorney General, and Congress. OJP’s Assistant Attorney General (AAG), Laurie O. Robinson, ensures that OJP policies and programs reflect these priorities. OJP’s component bureaus and offices that administer the programs are described at www.ojp.gov/about/about.htm. An organizational chart can be found in Appendix A.

OJP’s objective is to be the premier resource for the justice community by—

- Providing and coordinating information, research and development, statistics, training, and support to help the justice community meet its public safety goals.
- Embracing local decision making through national policy leadership.

In FY 2009, OJP made 8,229 grant awards to state and local law enforcement and community organizations, totaling more than $5 billion. Of these awards, 3,883 were American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (Recovery Act) grants totaling more than $2.7 billion. In accordance with the Obama Administration’s efforts to increase federal government transparency, OJP posted a list of all 8,000-plus awards at www.ojp.gov/funding/09grantawards.htm.
Instructions

The Program Plan outlines pending grant funding opportunities (solicitations) that, upon Congressional approval, will be awarded based on Fiscal Year (FY) 2010 appropriations. OJP is issuing this Program Plan to give constituent groups a single comprehensive guide to current funding opportunities and the latest agency initiatives. The Program Plan includes both competitive and noncompetitive grants, opportunities for training and technical assistance, and other resources available to the justice community. Noncompetitive grants are awards that have been successfully completed within the last three years and for which continuation funding is expected in 2010. Contact information is provided with each program description.

The Program Plan is searchable and organized by topic. Users can scroll through the discretionary programs, training and technical assistance, and research and statistics subsections found within each topical chapter. An RSS feed provides an opportunity to receive e-mail notification each time the Plan is updated. The Plan will be updated frequently to reflect new program developments and funding amounts that cannot be determined until the FY 2010 Congressional appropriation is passed.

Discretionary grants are generally awarded to eligible recipients at the discretion of the awarding agency. Formula grants are awarded based on a statutory formula. A significant portion of OJP grants are awarded to states under formula and block grant programs. A list of OJP formula grants is available in Appendix E. For information about state formula grants, contact the State Administering Agency (SAA). A list of SAA’s is available at www.ojp.usdoj.gov/saa/.

An overview of the grant process, as well as the grant management and application review process, is available at www.ojp.gov/funding/grant_process.htm. All applicants that meet grant solicitation requirements are considered equally in accordance with the process detailed at this site. The materials available at this site will help grant recipients follow rules, submit required reports, and understand the grant oversight conducted by OJP to prevent fraud, waste, and abuse of tax payer dollars.

Grant solicitations are posted throughout the year and, in most cases, solicitations remain open for a minimum of 45 calendar days. Solicitations can be found at www.grants.gov and www.ojp.gov/funding/funding.htm. Grants.gov is the source for information about competitive grants available from all federal agencies. This Web site provides grant descriptions, forms, instructions, helpful hints, and support to apply and succeed in the grant process.

Applicants are encouraged to begin the grant application process early and to become familiar with www.grants.gov and OJP’s Grants Management System (GMS). Directions on the grants.gov registration process can be found at www.grants.gov/applicants/get_registered.jsp. Information on GMS is available at www.ojp.gov/training/gmstraining.htm. Assistance with the grant application process is available through the GMS Online Training Tool (www.ojp.usdoj.gov/gmsoocbt/), which provides step-by-step instructions for how to use the various modules within GMS; by e-mailing the GMS Help Desk; or by calling 202-514-2024 (option 3) for technical assistance.

A glossary of acronyms and definitions is located in Appendix B. Frequently Asked Questions are found in Appendix C. Appendix D contains an index with an alphabetical listing of the programs found in the Plan.
Section 1

Preventing Crime and Empowering Communities To Address Crime

Overview

OJP's community-based initiatives to prevent and reduce crime support the Obama Administration’s focus on locally driven change. Consistent with this approach, OJP supports community involvement in the choice, design, and implementation of programs, as well as the flexible use of federal funding, to ensure the creative integration of local, state, and federal resources to maximize the return on tax payer dollars while promoting the sustainability of local public safety programs.

CCDO and other OJP components fund crime prevention and community empowerment through several initiatives such as the Weed and Seed Strategy and Project Safe Neighborhoods that address issues such as gangs, guns, and drugs using coordinated efforts and resources. OJP, often in partnership with the local U.S. Attorneys’ Offices, facilitates this coordination.

OJP’s goal is to ensure that communities and their partners have the necessary tools to be successful, including the following:

- Information about how federal funding works in their communities.
- Access to a full range of technical assistance and training.
- Knowledge from other communities about programs that work.
- Data, research, and evaluations for use in strategic planning.
- Strong public and private institutional partnerships.
- Online resources and access to technology.

Program Description

Weed and Seed is a multi-year, comprehensive, community empowerment and capacity building public safety strategy that prevents, controls, and reduces violent crime, drug abuse, and gang activity in designated high crime neighborhoods throughout the country. Federal funding is available for up to 5 years. Eligible applicants include local governments, nonprofit organizations, faith-based organizations, and tribal entities.

Each local strategy involves law enforcement agencies and prosecutors (including the U.S. Attorney and local DEA representatives) cooperating to "weed out" violent crime; and public agencies and community-based private organizations collaborating to "seed in" prevention, intervention, treatment strategies, and neighborhood restoration programs. A community oriented policing component bridges the weeding and seeding elements. Weed and Seed’s four fundamental principles are collaboration, coordination, community participation, and leveraging of resources.

Breaking the Cycles of Mental Illness, Substance Abuse, and Crime

Overview

Research shows that there are higher rates of substance abuse and mental illness among inmates and offenders than among the general population. The best data suggest that the relationship between drugs and crime is complex, mediated by the type of substance and its psychoactive effects, as well as personality factors, situational factors, and socio-cultural factors.

OJP, through a number of its bureaus, supports numerous programs and services to assist communities in planning, implementing, and enhancing criminal justice, substance abuse, and mental health partnerships, including specialized police responses, crisis response centers, problem solving courts, treatment within correctional facilities, and reentry services. Key components of these efforts include screening, assessment, testing, accountability, and follow-up.

In addition to investigating and deterring drug production, trafficking, and drug-related violence, OJP is interested in reducing criminal behavior through cost-efficient interventions designed to reduce alcohol and drug use among offenders. Program activities assist target population identification and support relapse and recidivism prevention. OJP also supports prescription drug monitoring programs that help detect and prevent the diversion and abuse of pharmaceutical controlled substances, particularly at the retail level, where no other automated information collection system exists. In addition, OJP surveys provide information about the prevalence of offenders with mental health disorders.

Preventing and Intervening in Juvenile Offending and Victimization

Overview

OJP provides targeted funding to enhance programs and collaborations that address juvenile offending and victimization through research and demonstration projects, training and technical assistance, and other information dissemination efforts.

Within OJP, the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) has primary responsibility for preventing and controlling juvenile delinquency, improving the juvenile justice system, and protecting children. Other OJP components also provide programming and research support for outreach to juveniles and their families.

OJP supports an array of activities that help states, tribal jurisdictions, communities, and local governments meet the many juvenile justice challenges they face, including the following:

- Holding juvenile offenders accountable for their unlawful actions.
- Preparing juvenile offenders for returning to their communities following release from secure correctional facilities.
- Addressing juvenile gang activity and violence.
- Addressing the disproportionate number of minority youth who come into contact with the juvenile justice system.
- Combating juvenile alcohol and drug abuse.
- Helping children victimized by crime and abuse.

OJP programming strives to divert young people from the juvenile justice system, improve community safety, protect children from sexual predators, strengthen the juvenile justice system, and respond to childhood abuse, neglect, and victimization. The ultimate goal is to support young people in their efforts to become productive, contributing members of their communities.

FY 2010 Funding TBD
OJP Sponsor OJJDP
Web Link N/A
Program Contact Child Protection Division, (202) 616-3637
Program Description
This program supports the development and implementation of a model national training and technical assistance program for juvenile defense attorneys. Forty years ago, in the landmark In Re Gault decision, the U.S. Supreme Court found that children in the juvenile justice system have the right to an attorney. Today, many young people in the court system, particularly low income and minority children, lack representation by well trained and well resourced lawyers and many juvenile defendants receive no counsel at all. The goal of this initiative is to develop competent juvenile defense attorneys who can work in the best interests of youth facing charges in juvenile delinquency court and to improve the judicial system’s response in juvenile delinquency courts.

Program Description
This program will document and measure the effectiveness of delinquency prevention, intervention, and/or treatment programs to prevent and reduce girls’ risk behavior and offending. Over the past two decades, the number of girls entering the juvenile justice system has dramatically increased. This trend raised a number of questions for OJJDP, including whether this reflected an increase in girls' delinquency or changes in society's responses to girls' behavior. OJJDP’s Girls Study Group recently completed a review of evaluations of girls’ delinquency programs and found that most programs have not been evaluated, thereby limiting knowledge regarding the most appropriate and effective programs for girls.

Managing Offenders To Reduce Recidivism and Promote Successful Reentry

Overview

Each year, more than 750,000 offenders are released from federal, state, local, and tribal prisons, and between 10 and 12 million offenders and defendants are released from jails. At the end of 2007, about 1 in every 45 adults in the United States was either on probation or parole.

These individuals face multiple barriers upon their return to society, including mental illness, substance abuse, health problems, poor employment histories, family issues, lack of job skills, and lack of housing, as well as other significant personal problems. Research shows that about two-thirds of offenders are rearrested within 3 years of release, and half return to prison during that same period.

OJP, through a number of its bureaus, is working to reduce recidivism and its attendant fiscal and social costs and increase the safety of our communities. This is a high priority of the Obama administration and Attorney General Holder. One of the largest efforts is the Second Chance Act of 2007.

Through the provisions of this statute, OJP is able to increase its support of reentry demonstration projects that use validated assessment tools to determine the risks and needs of offenders. BJA is overseeing projects designed to provide offenders in prisons or jails with necessary services, including educational, literacy, vocational, and job placement services to facilitate reentry into the community; substance abuse treatment and services that represent a full continuum of treatment services during incarceration and in community-based settings upon release; and coordinated supervision and comprehensive services for offenders upon release from prison or jail, including housing and mental and physical health care to include veteran specific services.

OJP addresses the challenges that returning sex offenders bring to their communities through the Adam Walsh Act Implementation Grant Program. This program assists states, the District of Columbia, territories, and tribal jurisdictions with developing and/or enhancing programs designed to implement the requirements of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act (SORNA) of the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006.

Program Description: This program will analyze four NCRP cohorts (admissions, releases, stock, and parole discharges) covering the period from 2000 through 2007. Quantities to be estimated will be specified. The program will result in datasets with appropriate weights and the delivery of a methodology that BJS can apply to additional NCRP data as they are collected. To produce these race/Hispanic origin weights, the program will involve analysis of NCRP data, National Prisoner Statistics data, and data from BJS prison inmate surveys and PREA surveys in order to adjust the NCRP data. Weights will be developed that can be applied to individual records to produce national estimates for identified quantities, such as types of admissions, types of releases, and so forth.

Effective Interventions To Address Violence, Victimization, and Victims’ Rights

Overview

OJP is committed to funding national scope demonstration projects, training and technical assistance, and other capacity building programs to enhance the professional expertise of victim service providers, fill gaps in existing services, and address emerging issues such as responding to victims with disabilities, victims of financial fraud, and victims of domestic and international terrorism and mass casualty violence.

In 2010, in addition to the Victim of Crime Act (VOCA) victim assistance and compensation programs, OJP will support a variety of programs designed to reach populations that are historically underserved due to race, age, socio-economic status, disability, or sexual orientation and will ensure that more victims, regardless of language, location, or circumstance, receive the care they urgently need and deserve.

OVC is supporting action partnerships to assist national victim service organizations in building their capacity to serve crime victims, with a special emphasis on child victims and witnesses. Additionally, NIJ is administering a complementary funding opportunity seeking multidisciplinary research and evaluation proposals related to childhood exposure to family violence and the impact of domestic violence on custody decisions.

Another major concern is the prevalence of identity theft and the lack of services to assist victims of this crime. OVC administers discretionary funding to provide direct assistance to victims of identity theft and financial fraud, which is targeted to expanding existing services and strengthening law enforcement’s response to the increasing number of victims. OJP continues to address the needs of victims of domestic and international terrorism and mass violence. Programs supporting law enforcement and service providers combat the international victimization caused by human trafficking. Through BJS and NIJ, OJP relies on several research and statistical programs to inform policies and planning for specific victim service related programs.

Each of these grants will support literature reviews and needs assessments in a range of areas and will culminate in a series of forums. The analysis will address issues related to the philosophy and approach of the field, such as the questions of who is a victim, how victims should be served, what resources and gaps exist, and how to build capacity in the field. The analysis also will address substantive issues such as the continuing challenges of domestic violence and child abuse, the victimization of runaway and homeless youth, offenders who are victimized, the increase in financial crimes and identity theft, victims in Indian Country, and a continued lack of victims’ rights enforcement.

Another award will be made to one organization to analyze the findings under these grants and integrate them into a consensus document that provides comprehensive recommendations to OVC for the future of the victim services field. The consensus document also will outline a detailed blueprint for a national demonstration project focused on implementation of the recommendations.

One competitive award, with up to two supplemental awards with demonstrated success each year, will be made to a national victim serving organization to develop a network of identity theft victim assistance programs capable of addressing the victims’ unmet needs. The award will be phased over 3 years—the first year will involve planning and outreach to current coalitions and victim programs about the impact of crime and the critical needs of this underserved population; the second year will involve competitive sub awards that will enable existing programs and coalitions to expand their reach of services to victims of identity theft and share promising practices and case management models nationwide; and the third year will fund evaluation and replication efforts to ensure victim assistance programs have a better chance of remaining a vital resource for victims of identity theft.

Program Description  SAVIN helps states obtain effective technology to manage critical information about offenders in near real time. Successful applicants will either develop a new statewide automated victim information and notification capacity or enhance an existing SAVIN program. By providing access to timely and accurate information about individuals in custody or under criminal justice supervision, SAVIN helps protect crime victims from further victimization and ensures that victims’ legal rights are being honored. SAVIN programs also improve criminal justice decisions by ensuring that victims are given the information they need to fully participate in the criminal justice process through automated change in status notifications.

Through SAVIN, victims can access critical information through a Web site and toll free number with support from a live operator 24 hours a day; register to be notified via telephone, e-mail, telecommunication device for the deaf (TDD), or a written letter each time the status of their offender or case changes; and access information about their offender’s arrest, initial incarceration, pretrial release, judicial process, final disposition, post-conviction incarceration, and community supervision.

This program will support the sharing of Statewide Automated Victim Information and Notification (SAVIN) information nationwide through the development of information exchange standards and collaboration with national partners around best practice solutions with the goal of creating a national standard that states can use to share relevant offender information with victims and entities throughout the criminal justice system. The focus of this program is to develop a SAVIN IEPD based on the National Information Exchange Model to automate and improve the sharing of offender data across systems. One award will be made in an amount not to exceed $450,000 for a project period of up to 12 months. Program Contacts Barbara Robertson, (202) 353-3775, Barbara.Robertson2@usdoj.gov
Kathleen Gless, (202) 307-6049, Kathleen.Gless@usdoj.gov

Program Description
Through grants and interagency agreements, this broad initiative will address services for American victims of crime overseas. Beyond cases of terrorism and mass violence, many general crimes affect Americans who are victimized overseas. Roughly half of the state compensation programs accept applications for reimbursement of out of pocket expenses (such as medical care) when a crime occurs overseas; however, half of these programs will not reimburse for some of the specialized needs, including funding for emergency travel, translation services, document replacement, and travel to provide testimony or for participation in court proceedings. Victims include travelers on cruise ships, those studying abroad, victims of forced marriage, and older victims. Victims also may need funding to support travel to participate in the criminal justice process overseas, as well as costs associated with cases involving international parental child abduction.

Through this initiative, funding will be provided to address unmet needs through both a competitive solicitation and increases to existing IAAs with OJP's federal partners that are responsible for addressing the needs and rights of American citizens who become victims of crime while abroad. This initiative is not intended to address victims of domestic violence overseas; however, the program will coordinate closely with the grantee selected for the Services for American Victims of Domestic Violence Overseas program.

- Child Abuse in Indian Country—This video will educate tribal law enforcement, judges, and prosecutors on the elements of applicable statutes and proofs required to charge a child abuse case federally. In addition, this training video will address safe planning, restitution, and victim impact statements.
- Issues of Homicide Survivors—This video will raise awareness and provide practical strategies for victim service professionals and other allied professionals (including law enforcement) working with homicide survivors in specific situations that have not previously been explored in other educational materials developed for the field. Short segments will be dedicated to topics such as the impact of cold cases, murder/suicide, sibling survivors, intimate partner homicide, child witnesses, and other topics as determined by a consortium of experts.
- Law Enforcement’s Response to Victims—This video will highlight an OVC-funded initiative of the International Association of Chiefs of Police to create systemic, cultural change in the field of law enforcement with respect to how law enforcement officers respond to victims of crime.

Enhancing Law Enforcement Initiatives

Overview

Community partnerships have contributed to the decline in violent crime in many cities throughout the country; however, there are still sections in some cities, as well as in some small towns and rural areas, which continue to be plagued by high instances of violent crime. OJP will continue to work closely with state and local law enforcement organizations, researchers, and other professionals to develop and implement strategies to address the needs of these cities.

In addition, OJP recognizes that the nation’s economic issues require close examination of state, local, and federal spending. Public leaders are reallocating resources to optimize the return on public investment. Because of budgetary constraints, law enforcement leaders need to examine and adopt evidence-based and data-driven strategies for crime reduction efforts.

The grant programs outlined in this chapter are intended to help state and local law enforcement and other partners respond to constrained budgets and still ensure public safety.

Program Description
PSN is a strategy designed to reduce gun and gang crime in the United States, focusing on aggressive and coordinated enforcement of existing gun laws in federal and state courts, and effective strategies to reduce and prevent gang crime. The PSN strategy focuses on the implementation of five elements that are integral to a comprehensive, coordinated gun and gang crime reduction and prevention program. These elements are partnerships, strategic planning, training, community outreach, and accountability. Over the past several years, BJA has supported these five PSN elements through both direct grant funds to local communities and the delivery of nationwide training and technical assistance (TTA). The PSN TTA Program is designed to deliver TTA services to state and local law enforcement, criminal justice partners, and communities in areas of the nation that are experiencing gun and gang violence.

Program Name Drug Market Intervention Initiative

Point of Contact Danica Szarvis-Kidd, (202) 305-7416, Danica.Szarvis-Kidd@usdoj.gov
Program Description
In 2007, through Project Safe Neighborhoods (PSN), BJA created a training and technical assistance project for local teams interested in implementing an open-air drug market intervention (DMI) initiative that is commonly referred to as the High Point model. DMI addresses the challenge of effectively responding to illegal drug markets and their associated crime, violence, and disorder that has proved challenging for communities and law enforcement for decades. DMI is a strategic problem-solving initiative to permanently eliminate open-air drug markets. The strategy targets individual geographic drug markets and prosecutes the most violent offenders as examples. The strategy then targets low level offenders and stages an intervention with families and community leaders. Law enforcement mobilizes community residents, leaders, and family members of low level drug dealers to voice their intolerance for this criminal behavior and to create opportunities and support for the offenders. Offenders are given the opportunity to correct criminal behavior (or face lengthy prison sentences) and are provided assistance in locating employment, housing, transportation, health care, and access to other social services. This initiative consists of 3 trainings for up to 10 target sites interested in replicating the strategy. Each selected site’s team consists of a law enforcement officer, local prosecutor, community leader, and social service provider who attend all three trainings. Each team receives a site visit from a BJA technical assistance provider along with ongoing support to help local teams adapt the model to their unique local context.

RISSafe is an officer safety event system that provides controlled and secure monitoring of law enforcement operations and the immediate notification of affected parties when conflicts arise. These operations include events such as raids, controlled buys, and surveillances and other events where officers could possibly encounter other law enforcement personnel working undercover.

RISSafe projects work in conjunction with mapping software to verify and plot data provided by officers to the RISSafe Watch Center. To maximize the utility of this application, officers may contact their RISSafe Watch Center by telephone, fax, or e-mail to initiate the event registration process. This process facilitates interagency notification when officers from multiple agencies may unknowingly be working on the same case.
RISSafe was initially deployed at the Western States Information Network and is currently expanding to the other five RISS Centers throughout the United States. Once in place, officer safety will be enhanced through a national officer safety deconfliction system.

Program Description
NIJ is seeking proposals to conduct research on eyewitness identification practices and to improve law enforcement policies and operations at the state and local levels. Eyewitness evidence plays a critical role in the criminal investigation process. However, its use in identifying criminals or exonerating the innocent is far from perfect. Eyewitness procedures may result in errors, such as the identification of the wrong person or the failure to identify the perpetrator. As state and local law enforcement agencies adopt policies and procedures governing eyewitness identification methods, important questions have emerged regarding their effectiveness in reducing error rates.

Program Description
NIJ will fund the research, development, and demonstration of operations research models and methods that enable law enforcement and corrections agencies to increase the effectiveness, efficiency, and safety of their operations and to improve the judicial process. Proposed models and methods must identify and account for legal, cultural, and social factors that may affect the adoption and use of new technologies, practices, and procedures by criminal justice agencies. For example, a contractual agreement between organized labor and management may limit scheduling options for shift changes.

Program Description
NIJ is seeking proposals to conduct research on policing and to improve law enforcement policies and operations at the state and local levels. Effective law enforcement and crime prevention are of critical importance to ensuring the safety of communities throughout the country. Given the limited resources of most police departments and other local agencies and groups, it is especially important to determine the effectiveness of police department policies and public safety interventions.

Program Description
NIJ’s portfolio of gang research seeks to understand the interconnectedness of gang membership, firearms violence, drug sales, and criminal behavior, and how best to control and prevent gang-related crime. Communities that have reduced gang-related crime have done so by following certain principles and applying them to their unique problems, needs, and circumstances. NIJ has sponsored evaluations of several anti-violence and anti-gang programs, ranging from Chicago CeaseFire to Project Safe Neighborhoods. These programs were modeled after, and informed by, the strengths and weaknesses of previous efforts such as Boston CeaseFire and its offshoots (Project Exile and the Strategic Approaches to Community Safety Initiative). NIJ will issue a solicitation for further research about gangs.

Supporting Innovation in Adjudication

Overview

Increasing fairness and public trust in the justice system is an OJP priority. Special efforts must be made throughout the court system nationwide to address its challenging and diverse problems. Through investments in innovative initiatives such as problem-solving courts, effective case flow management, community prosecution, indigent defense, and reentry efforts, OJP has helped jurisdictions realize measurable gains in public trust while also increasing capacity and reducing crime.

OJP's integrated approach to justice reform engages the community and promotes multidisciplinary collaboration and training on issues that fuel recidivism and advance public safety. This approach, especially with regard to policy decisions and resource allocation, ensures that communities are able to effectively utilize a limited pool of available resources to address the inherent social and economic issues related to incarceration. While local court personnel will decide how to meet the community’s specific needs, OJP is committed to providing the resources, tools, and support to help them test their ideas.

Adjudication programs and initiatives address each phase of the criminal justice cycle, from pretrial risk assessments and pre-adjudication diversion initiatives to community oriented justice to effectively addressing reentry. These efforts are aimed at shifting the policy making paradigm towards community-strengthening investments instead of increased incarceration. Through close partnerships with stakeholders and national organizations, OJP provides jurisdictions with support via training and technical assistance, enabling them to address inefficiencies in their programs during various stages of the adjudication process. OJP also relies on field practitioners to provide valuable insight for developing targeted, sustainable solutions nationwide.

In addition to the initiatives listed in this chapter, OJP is addressing training and technical assistance needs for indigent defense, providing training and technical assistance for criminal courts to improve their management and operations, and providing training on the “CSI effect” and other issues surrounding juror bias. As we look forward, OJP will target emerging issues that courts need to address, including the increasing numbers of senior citizens in the court process, mortgage fraud, and racial disparities in the criminal justice system.

OJP Sponsor BJA

Program Description
After consulting with those in the field who work to exonerate potentially wrongfully convicted defendants, BJA created a new grant program based on the needs of the field as well as Congressional intent. The result is a grant program that seeks to provide high quality representation for defendants with post-conviction claims of innocence. Post-conviction innocence claims are likely to include complex challenges to the reliability and accuracy of evidence presented at trial. Problematic evidence falls into three categories—eyewitness identification evidence, confession evidence, and forensic evidence. In some cases, post-conviction DNA testing alone can prove innocence, but the majority of cases require other, more costly forms of proof, including DNA testing and expert testimony. The goals of this initiative are to provide quality representation to the wrongfully convicted; alleviate burdens placed on the criminal justice system through costly and prolonged post-conviction litigation; and identify, when possible, the actual perpetrator of the crime. In addition to providing grant funds to public defender offices and nonprofit organizations that handle post-conviction claims of innocence, this initiative also provides funding for the National Association of Criminal Defense lawyers to provide support and assistance to grantees.

Program Description
The Rural and Urban Court Managers Networks (RCMN and UCMN) strengthen the ability of rural and urban court managers to work effectively with practitioners in their own jurisdictions, with key justice system policy makers and with each other, to improve criminal justice operations in their jurisdictions. There are two unique networks that allow the chief administrators and presiding judges to candidly examine problems that are unique to the administration of criminal justice and develop practical solutions. Both networks focus on improving criminal case processing from beginning to end. Issues that the group has addressed in the past include criminal case processing; community issues; technology issues; problem solving courts; courthouse facility and security issues; court research; family law issues; customer service issues; strategic planning; leadership; continuity of operations; pretrial services; and probation and parole.

Point of Contact Kim Norris, (202) 307-2076, Kim.Norris@usdoj.gov
Program Description
This initiative promotes conversation about failure, thereby creating an atmosphere that fosters innovation and encourages criminal justice officials to test meaningful new ideas. BJA, in partnership with the Center for Court Innovation, has embarked on a multifaceted inquiry designed to analyze failure in criminal justice reform. This initiative examines efforts to improve the criminal justice system that did not achieve the intended results to promote innovation going forward. In addition, this initiative strives to shift the way criminal justice agencies perceive failure, from a stigmatizing and wholly negative force, to a necessary companion and contributor to success.

Program Contact Joe Husted, (202) 353-4411, Joseph.Husted@usdoj.gov
Program Description
This initiative provides funds to eligible jurisdictions in the four southwest border states (i.e., Arizona, California, New Mexico, and Texas) using a uniform payment-per-case basis for qualifying federally initiated and declined-referred criminal cases that were disposed of after October 1, 2004. Successful applicants may use their federal funds for any lawful purpose.
federally initiated and referred criminal case is eligible if it was prosecuted by a state or county prosecutor and disposed of during one of the eligibility periods. Jurisdictions providing pretrial detention for eligible case defendants are also eligible for funds. Each defendant represents a separate case. Federally referred cases that are declined and not prosecuted by state or county prosecutors are ineligible. Applicants participating in the State Criminal Alien Assistance Program are permitted to apply.

Program Description
This initiative provides funds to eligible jurisdictions in the 14 northern border states (i.e., Alaska, Idaho, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Washington, and Wisconsin) using a uniform payment-per-case basis for qualifying federally initiated and declined-referred criminal cases that were disposed of after October 1, 2005. Although reimbursements from NBPI federal payments may be used by applicant jurisdictions for any purpose not otherwise prohibited by federal law, using funds to support and enhance additional prosecutorial and detention services is encouraged. A federally initiated and referred criminal case is eligible if it was prosecuted by a state or county prosecutor and disposed of during one of the eligibility periods. Jurisdictions providing pretrial detention for eligible case defendants are also eligible for funds. Each defendant represents a separate case. Federally referred cases that are declined and not prosecuted by state or county prosecutors are ineligible. Program Description
This initiative is designed to provide high quality training and technical assistance on death penalty issues to judges, defense attorneys, and prosecutors. Program goals are to increase the number of court officials trained in capital case procedures and strategies and to ensure that defense attorneys and prosecutors have the most up-to-date and comprehensive information available on death penalty litigation. In FY 2010, BJA will continue to improve the quality of capital case litigation training by requiring states to utilize curricula that have been developed.

Point of Contact Preeti Menon, (202) 353-3511, Preeti.Menon@usdoj.gov
Program Description
This initiative aims to broaden the scope of problem-solving justice by testing this approach with new defendant populations and applying key problem-solving principles (e.g., links to social services, rigorous judicial monitoring, and aggressive community outreach) outside of the specialized court context. Research has demonstrated that, if implemented properly, the problem-solving approach can reduce crime, improve coordination among justice agencies, enhance services to victims, and increase public trust in justice. Problem-solving justice adapts to local conditions. The problem-solving courts initiative emphasizes collaboration, engagement with local stakeholders, and individualization of sanctions—strategies that shun “cookie-cutter” approaches and encourage justice practitioners to embrace local priorities, resources, and circumstances. The national training and technical assistance partner facilitates peer to peer mentoring of community courts and a national conference for community court leaders.

Point of Contact Kim Norris, (202) 307-2076, Kim.Norris@usdoj.gov
Program Description
Community prosecution provides prosecutors with additional tools to pursue justice. By strengthening links to the community, promoting partnerships, and encouraging the development of problem-solving strategies, community prosecution helps prosecutors achieve their most important goals: ensuring that the guilty are held accountable, the innocent are protected from unwarranted harm, and the rights of victims are respected. Community prosecution involves a long-term, proactive partnership among county and city prosecutors, judges, defense attorneys, law enforcement officials, the community, and public and private organizations, whereby the authority of the prosecutor's office is used to solve problems, improve public safety, and enhance the quality of life of community members.

APA will develop and deliver a training curriculum at two national trainings for community prosecutors; deliver technical assistance to the field, including assisting programs in developing performance measures; conduct approximately four to five onsite technical assistance visits to provide hands-on assistance to new community prosecution programs; convene a steering group; develop quarterly newsletters; and develop and maintain a BJA-supported community prosecution Web site.

Program Description
This program will reach pretrial practitioners, judges, prosecutors, defenders, corrections officials, and county governments with training and technical assistance services tailored to their needs. Criminal justice systems can become invested in safer, more transparent, and less racially biased alternatives to pretrial detention by utilizing evidence-based practices such as risk assessment instruments and cross-disciplinary training, and by creating consistent and clear outcome measures within the confines of local law. The goal of this project is to raise state and local pretrial justice policies and practices to be aligned with national standards. Under this initiative, PJI will provide training and technical assistance on bail issues and pretrial release; conduct followup on research findings and lessons learned regarding effective pretrial risk assessment processes; catalog risk assessment tools being used throughout the United States in partnership with National Association of Pretrial Services agencies; and continue to maintain the pretrial services online resources center.

Countering Terrorism and Domestic Emergencies

Overview

Within the span of one week in September 2009, three separate plots to attack four U.S. cities (Dallas, Texas; Denver, Colorado; New York City; and Springfield, Missouri) were uncovered and neutralized through effective partnerships and activities designed to fight terrorism. These incidents offer dramatic evidence that threats from international and domestic terrorists have not diminished in the 8 years since the attacks of September 11, 2001.

To help combat these threats, OJP works closely with its stakeholders and partners to provide counterterrorism initiatives demonstrating measurable success, showing a strong return on investment, and enabling justice officials to maximize limited resources. More than 800,000 state, local, and tribal law enforcement professionals represent the nation’s first line of defense; without OJP’s support, these professionals would not be able to help identify and prevent terrorist attacks in the United States. OJP also relies on field practitioners to provide valuable insight for developing targeted, sustainable solutions nationwide. Executive support and stakeholder collaboration is augmented by the contributions of subject-matter experts for each of the proposed initiatives.

In addition to the grants outlined in this chapter, OJP provides support for research and fellowships to enhance the ongoing examination and understanding of both the social and technological needs of the counterterrorism community.

Program Description

NCIRC allows individuals working in the intelligence world who deal with secure but unclassified (SBU) documents to locate policy templates, training, and contacts from other intelligence units nationwide. The NCIRC Web site has also become the focal point for access to the Nationwide Suspicious Activity Reporting (SAR) Initiative (NSI), which includes documents, presentations, and the SAR search tool being used by the 12 fusion centers and the federal partners. This site is the first resource accessible by three separate SBU portals (HSIN Intel, LEO, and RISS) by way of their resident sign-on capabilities, thus eliminating the need for an additional username and password.

This site is also the current access point for the 28 CFR Part 23 online training, and discussions are underway for it to be the access point for a collaboration effort between SBU portals and fusion centers for sharing information and services.

Program Description
After 2001, BJA substantially augmented its terrorism prevention training and technical assistance program. Since then, BJA has provided training to 93,000 federal, state, local, and tribal law enforcement officers in 954 training events around the country; disseminated thousands of counterterrorism publications; and facilitated dozens of focus groups and other government meetings. During this time, BJA also developed and maintained a counterterrorism Web site, implemented and maintained an online training program, and conducted train-the-trainer sessions throughout the country. In FY 2009, more than 5,500 federal, state, local, and tribal officers have received anti-terrorism training taught by subject-matter experts. Graduates from the train-the-trainer sessions have subsequently provided counterterrorism instruction to more than 143,000 individuals. In addition, BJA briefings, training sessions, publications, and participation are regularly requested by U.S. Attorneys’ Offices, the FBI National Academy, tribal communities, national policy organizations, and state, local, and tribal law enforcement agencies.

Web Link www.ojp.usdoj.gov/bja
Program Contact Tom O'Reilly, (202) 353 8590, Thomas.O'Reilly2@usdoj.gov

Program Description
The SAR process focuses on gathering information regarding behaviors and incidents associated with crime and establishing a process whereby information can be shared to detect and prevent criminal activity, including crime associated with domestic and international terrorism. The SAR process allows agencies to systematically gather, document, process, analyze, and share behaviors and events that are indicators of criminal activity. As a component of the SAR initiative, funding to support the Building of Trust program will also assist with community outreach activities.

All agencies, regardless of size or jurisdiction, have a role in the nationwide NSI. Once an agency develops an internal SAR process, it will be integrated into the nationwide initiative. The sharing of SAR information among local, state, and federal agencies is essential to prevent and deter another terrorist attack on American soil.

This is a comprehensive project that addresses privacy protections and civil liberties through the adoption of privacy policies; training at all levels to include executive, analyst, and line officers; and technology solutions to allow agencies to share information using their current reporting methods. In FY 2010, the initial project will be expanded from the original 12 fusion center locations to additional fusion locations, including federal agencies.

Program Description
BJA, in collaboration with local, state, and federal partners, developed a program to provide resources for fusion centers, including training in intelligence analysis, technical support, IT infrastructure for implementing information sharing systems, and policy guidance regarding the sharing of personal information. The program continually emphasizes the fusion center baseline capabilities in the technology, privacy policy, and intelligence gathering and processing areas. BJA also works with the FBI and DHS (the program manager for the Information Sharing Environment of the Office of the Director of National Intelligence) to facilitate the national fusion center conference to foster coordination between fusion center leadership and technical personnel. The yearly conference supports fusion centers as they build their capabilities, grow into their roles, and fulfill their responsibilities. Regional meetings that bring together fusion center leadership and deliver regionalized training and technical assistance also are a component of this program.

Program Description
The Criminal Intelligence Systems: Protecting Privacy and Civil Rights training presents effective information sharing tools, examines the principles of 28 CFR Part 23, and addresses the importance of privacy and civil liberties in the context of information sharing. Its purpose is to enhance information sharing by clarifying the various rules and regulations to ensure that agencies are more confident as they collect and share information, particularly criminal intelligence information. Onsite technical assistance is also available to law enforcement agencies upon request. Technical assistance can be provided in the following formats:

- Compliance with 28 CFR Part 23
- Sound Information Privacy Policies
- Specialized Problem Resolution

Technical assistance services to help facilitate compliance with 28 CFR Part 23 can be provided through onsite visits that encompass system and policy reviews, offsite policy reviews, and access to subject-matter experts via e-mail and telephone.

Advancing Technology to Prevent and Solve Crime

Overview

Criminal justice practitioners require new and improved technologies to more effectively protect the public; ensure officer safety; confirm the guilty and protect the innocent; improve the efficiency of justice; and make informed decisions. Performance standards and compliance testing are critical pieces of the technology portfolio that assess the safety and effectiveness of the equipment public safety agencies buy and use. The research, development, testing, and evaluation program executed by NIJ for technology projects involves the development of needed technology, as well as standards and compliance testing.

OJP offers grants for basic research and development to create new technology and refine existing technology. Grants have produced advances in many areas, including sensors and surveillance, specifically better walk-through and handheld metal detectors; interoperability of public safety communications technologies, including compatible radio systems and other telecommunications resources; biometrics digital forensics resulting in more sophisticated ways to capture evidence on electronic products (e.g., laptops and cell phones); and general forensics pertaining to pattern and impression evidence, fingerprints, and toxicology.

NIJ has the largest, most robust criminal justice technology research program in the United States in several areas, including geospatial and crime mapping technology for criminal justice applications; digital forensics; DNA forensics; and other forensic technologies. Examples of program activities include the following:

- Forensic research that led to the development of “mini-STRs” that can generate a DNA profile from aged, degraded, or damaged samples, such as skeletal remains. These have greatly expanded the power of DNA technology to identify the guilty, exonerate the innocent, and identify the missing.
- Research and development funding that led to the body armor commonly used by law enforcement agencies today, which has been credited with saving more 3,000 lives over the past 20 years.
- Research into the physiological effects of conducted energy devices (e.g., the TASER®). NIJ research demonstrated that deaths associated with these devices are very rare and that they are safe and effective when used on healthy adults.
- A new initiative to combine data and crime mapping in such a way that law enforcement can “get in front of” the criminal instead of being reactive.

Over the next 2 years, OJP, NIJ, and its partners aim to develop enhanced data analytic tools for forecasting criminal trends and activities; improved hazardous protective equipment for criminal justice practitioners; better methods of protecting public venues from crime; and greater knowledge about the fundamental science underlying forensic science disciplines; and to expand efforts to provide public safety practitioners with the means to deal with cell phones used for illicit purposes.

Grantee: Competitive, see eligibility requirements.
FY 2010 Funding: TBD
OJP Sponsor: NIJ
Program Contact: Charles Heurich, (202) 616-9264, Charles.Heurich@usdoj.gov
Program Description:
NIJ will provide funding for states and units of local government to identify, review, and investigate violent crime cold cases that have the potential to be solved using DNA analysis, and to locate and analyze biological evidence associated with these cases. Experience has shown that cold case programs can solve a substantial number of violent crime cold cases, including homicides and sexual assaults. Advances in DNA technologies have substantially increased the successful DNA analysis of aged, degraded, limited, or otherwise compromised biological evidence. As a result, crime scene samples once thought to be unsuitable for testing may now yield DNA profiles. Additionally, samples that previously generated inconclusive DNA results may now be successfully analyzed using newer methods.

Improvements in science and technology have increased capabilities to use DNA in terms of the amount of evidence needed to obtain DNA, the speed of DNA processing, and the range of crimes DNA can help solve. NIJ will fund research that examines the impact of these forensic advances on the criminal justice system. This solicitation will also examine the impact of changes in policies to adapt to the more widespread use of DNA.

NIJ will fund research and development to enhance instrumental methods of analysis employed within forensic science disciplines to improve the quantitative and qualitative analyses of evidence and to enhance the ability of the forensic science community to identify, analyze, and interpret evidence.

Innovations in Justice Information Sharing

Overview

OJP, primarily through BJA, supports national policy, practices, and technology solutions to improve the information sharing capacity within the criminal justice community while emphasizing the importance of privacy and civil liberty protections and improving safety in our communities.

Each initiative described in this chapter requires a multidisciplinary response, executive sponsorship, stakeholder ownership, and collaborative program implementation to address operational, technical, and policy needs. BJA worked with justice practitioners at the 2009 National Forum on Criminal Justice and Public Safety to identify the topics found in this chapter. The initiatives presented do not require a large investment of resources and will support DOJ’s information sharing mission, improve the information sharing processes to strengthen decision making, and enable research and evaluation to identify promising practices with a strong return on investment.

In 2010, problem definition, coalition building, program design, training, and technical assistance will be critical to ensuring program processes are successful and replicable. In addition, field practitioner’s insights will continue to be invaluable for developing targeted, sustainable solutions nationwide.

NMVTIS helps prevent the introduction or reintroduction of stolen motor vehicles into interstate commerce; protects states and individual and commercial consumers from fraud; reduces the use of stolen vehicles for illicit purposes, including fundraising for criminal enterprises; and helps protect consumers from unsafe vehicles. NMVTIS is an electronic system that enables users to access and verify key automobile titling information and vehicle history (e.g., junk, salvage, flood). Users include state titling agencies, law enforcement officials, consumers, auto recyclers, salvage and junk yards, and insurance carriers.

Applicants must fully comply with the provisions of the Anti-Car Theft Act and its regulations, including providing daily, if not real time, updates of title transactions to NMVTIS; making inquiries against NMVTIS prior to issuing a new title; and paying any applicable user fees charged by the system operator.

Program Name: State Identity Management Support
Grantee: Competitive
FY 2010 Funding: TBD
OJP Sponsor: BJA
Web Link: www.ojp.gov/bja
Program Contact: Chris Traver, (202) 307-2963, Christopher.Traver@usdoj.gov
Program Description: This program will support activities at the state level that simplify information access and management through the use of federated identity capabilities. Preference will be given to applicants that leverage best practices of the Global Federated Identity and Privilege Management (GFIPM) program. Through this program, state and local agencies will be better prepared to engage local, state, federal, or tribal partners without undue burden or generating registrations within multiple systems for each potential system user. Performance measures will include the business and cost benefits derived from the project, as well as sustainability planning for project continuation after federal funds expire.

Program Name: Improving Correctional Agency Information Sharing
Grantees: Association of State Court Administrators (ASCA) and the American Probation and Parole Association (APPA) (Continuation)
OJP Sponsor: BJA
Web Link: www.ojp.gov/bja
Program Contact: David Lewis, (202) 616-7829, David.P.Lewis@usdoj.gov
Program Description: Hundreds of thousands of offenders are released each year into the community after serving their sentences in state and federal prisons and local and tribal jails. According to BJS, more than 50 percent of those released from incarceration will be in some form of legal trouble within 3 years. Recognizing the need to protect public safety and reduce the recidivism rate, all available pertinent data about an offender’s history must be shared by the correctional facilities and court databases where such information was generated. This program will identify and expand pilot sites to share information between corrections and community law enforcement, as well as social services. The National Information Exchange Model will be used to develop reference standards for transmittal of that information. A small number of pilot sites will then be selected to demonstrate the efficacy of these solutions.

Program Name: Privacy and Civil Liberties Protection
Grantees: Institute for Intergovernmental Research (IIR) and the National Center for State Courts (NCSC) (Continuation)
OJP Sponsor: BJA
Web Link: www.it.ojp.gov
Program Contact: Tom O'Reilly, (202) 353-8590, Thomas.O'Reilly2@usdoj.gov
Program Description: The National Criminal Intelligence Sharing Plan and the National Strategy for Information
Sharing emphasize the due diligence that state, local, tribal, and federal partners must undertake in protecting privacy, civil rights, and civil liberties in all information sharing efforts. Information Sharing Environment (ISE) Privacy guidelines were developed to provide the framework for enabling information sharing within the ISE while protecting privacy and other legal rights. BJA and its information sharing partners, including the Global Justice Information Sharing Initiative (Global), have developed a valuable cadre of privacy, civil rights, and civil liberties resources, available at www.it.ojp.gov. IIR provides training and technical assistance for local law enforcement, covering criminal intelligence systems operating policies and the requirement for promoting privacy and civil liberties protections, improved security, and accountability in managing criminal intelligence data. In addition, NCSC is funded by BJA to provide online privacy training that will focus on using computer technology to support the technical implementation and enforcement of privacy rules and policies.

Program Name Global Justice Information Sharing Initiative (Global)
Grantee Institute for Intergovernmental Research (Continuation)
OJP Sponsor BJA
Web Link www.it.ojp.gov/global
Program Contact Tom O'Reilly, (202) 353-8590, Thomas.O'Reilly2@usdoj.gov
Program Description
Global is the mechanism by which state, local, and tribal justice and public safety partners collaborate and make recommendations to the Attorney General on all matters pertaining to information sharing. Global has been the driving force behind such programs as the National Information Exchange Model, National Criminal Intelligence Sharing Plan, Fusion Center Guidelines, Justice Reference Architecture, and Privacy Policy Framework, among others. This program will support Global activities, to include all working groups and activities, as well as related publications and training and technical assistance. Through this support, BJA will ensure the continuing partnership between criminal justice agencies at all levels of government to improve public safety and the administration of justice.

Program Name National Information Exchange Model (NIEM)
Grantee Georgia Tech Research Institute (GTRI) (Continuation)
OJP Sponsor BJA
Web Link www.niem.gov
Program Contact Chris Traver, (202) 307-2963, Christopher.Traver@usdoj.gov
Program Description
NIEM represents a vital partnership between DOJ and DHS, as well as the state, local, and tribal government agencies related to justice and homeland security. NIEM provides common tools and a data model to derive common standards by which to share information across jurisdictional boundaries more effectively. GTRI will provide technical development and assistance to users to allow NIEM to continue to expand and mature. In FY 2010, these activities will include expanding to additional domains, such as health and supporting younger domains, such as family services and nuclear/hazard detection. In addition, these efforts will support domain self-service through the development of open tools and interface requirements, permitting individual NIEM partners to create their own customized tools and workflows. This flexibility means that NIEM will provide a higher level of service to its customers while improving efficiency and reducing overall program costs.

Program Name Global Federated Identity and Privilege Management (GFIPM)
Grantee Georgia Tech Research Institute
FY 2010 Funding TBD
OJP Sponsor BJA
Web Link www.it.ojp.gov/gfipm
Program Contact Chris Traver, (202) 307-2963, Christopher.Traver@usdoj.gov
Program Description
Federated identity allows a single user to access multiple information systems with a single credential or login account. The participating systems agree to grant access to the user based on policies that are defined up front, as well as the specific attributes the user carries (e.g., training certification, intelligence analysis experience). This program is the Global Justice Information Sharing Initiative’s (Global’s) approach to bringing the federated identity concept to justice agencies and jurisdictions. Using GFIPM, agencies can greatly expand the resources available to their users while providing adequate security and privacy controls and reducing overall costs.

In FY 2010, this program will focus on delivery of Global-endorsed policy templates and guidelines to support GFIPM implementation in the field. It will also continue support of the GFIPM delivery team, a collaborative effort of Regional Information Sharing Systems, Homeland Security Information Network, Pennsylvania Justice Network, and Criminal Information Sharing Alliance Network. The delivery team is the initial user group for GFIPM, providing operational feedback and demonstrated results of the GFIPM program. This operational federation will continue to expand the services available to each member’s user community, as well as to increase the number of participants.

Program Name National Motor Vehicle Title Information System (NMVTIS)
Grantee American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators
FY 2010 Funding TBD
OJP Sponsor BJA
Web Link www.nmvtis.gov
Program Contact Alissa Huntoon, (202) 305-1661, Alissa.Huntoon@usdoj.gov
Program Description
NMVTIS helps prevent the introduction or reintroduction of stolen motor vehicles into interstate commerce; protects states and individual and commercial consumers from fraud; reduces the use of stolen vehicles for illicit purposes, including fundraising for criminal enterprises; and helps protect consumers from unsafe vehicles. NMVTIS is an electronic system that enables users to access and verify key automobile titling information and brand history (e.g., junk, salvage, flood) Users include state titling agencies, law enforcement officials, consumers, auto recyclers, salvage and junk yards, and insurance carriers. NMVTIS is a powerful tool that—

- Allows state titling agencies to instantly and reliably verify a vehicle’s title before issuing a new title and facilitates the electronic exchange of information between states to improve titling efficiency and reduce fraud.
- Assists law enforcement with its investigations of crimes involving vehicles, including vehicle theft rings, violent crimes, drug crimes, financial crimes, and smuggling.
- Provides consumers with access to information about the vehicle’s current title, including brands and odometer data, and whether the vehicle has been determined to be a junk or salvage vehicle (including those determined to be a total loss), so that the consumer may make a better informed decision before purchasing a vehicle.

Program Name State Information Sharing Coordination
Grantee National Association of State Chief Information Officers (NASCIO) (Continuation)
OJP Sponsor BJA
Web Link www.nascio.org/committees/ea
Program Contact Chris Traver, (202) 307-2963, Christopher.Traver@usdoj.gov
Program Description
This program is designed to encourage coordination among state leaders with regard to national standards and best practices in enterprise architecture and governance. By fostering more active relationships, DOJ, the Global Justice Information Sharing Initiative, and state Chief Information Officers (CIOs) and their staff can adopt and coordinate information sharing across all levels of government. State CIOs are responsible for many areas of government, and emphasis on justice specific challenges and planning efforts is increasingly critical to the effectiveness of national programs supported by BJA and stakeholders in the field.
Program Name: State Legislative Outreach Support
Grantee: National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) (Continuation)
OJP Sponsor: BJA
Web Link: www.ojp.gov/bja

Program Description:
This program is designed to improve the collaboration with and outreach to state legislative bodies that are responsible for setting state policy and budgets that may support state or local implementation of justice information sharing projects. By continuing the productive partnership between BJA and NCSL, the program will afford an important opportunity to educate and solicit ideas from legislators across the country who have varying perspectives on how best to administer criminal justice programs and technologies and the unique challenges faced in each jurisdiction.

Program Name: Justice Information Exchange Model (JIEM)
Grantee: SEARCH Group, Inc. (Continuation)
OJP Sponsor: BJA
Web Link: www.search.org/programs/info/jiem
Program Contact: Chris Traver, (202) 307-2963, Christopher.Traver@usdoj.gov
Program Description:
JIEM is a widely accepted tool that enables agencies to translate business practices and requirements into precise models that can be used to derive technology solutions. JIEM attempts to bridge the gaps between business process modeling and development of information exchange specifications using the National Information Exchange Model. In FY 2010, JIEM will be enhanced further to incorporate new features for privacy and security specifications, as well as increased emphasis on enabling service-oriented architecture, specifically implementation of Global Justice Reference Architecture (JRA). Through these enhancements, JIEM will further integrate the different steps involved in the information exchange modeling process used by the National Information Exchange Model and the technical implementation of JRA interfaces, reducing the burden and cost to justice agencies while expanding information sharing capabilities.

Definitions:

American Recovery and Reinvestment Act: On February 17, 2009, President Barack Obama signed into law the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Recovery Act). The Recovery Act allocates $4 billion to the U.S. Department of Justice for grant funding to enhance state, local, and tribal law enforcement and other criminal and juvenile justice activities that will help to prevent crime and improve the criminal justice system in the United States. While the Recovery Act provides much needed resources for state and local communities, it also supports the creation of jobs. For more information, including a full list of Recovery Act grants, please see www.ojp.usdoj.gov/financialguide/part3/part3chap20.htm.

Appropriation(s): The act of appropriating, setting apart, or assigning funding for a particular use; specifically, an act of a legislature authorizing money to be paid from the treasury for a special use.

Cold case: A crime or accident that has not been solved and is not the subject of current criminal investigation or civil litigation, but for which new information could emerge from new witness testimony, re-examined archives, or retained material evidence.

Competitive grant: A financial award for which a federal agency has the discretionary power to select the recipient from among all eligible recipients; decide to make or not make an award based on the programmatic, technical, or scientific content of an application; and determine the amount of funding to be awarded. (Also known as discretionary grants)

Consortium: An association of two or more individuals, companies, organizations, or governments (or any combination of these entities) with the objective of participating in a common activity or pooling their resources to achieve a common goal.

Co-occurring disorder: A co-occurring disorder, also called a dual diagnosis, occurs when an individual has both mental health and substance abuse treatment needs.

Criminal aliens: Both legal and illegal immigrants who have on at least one occasion become the object of the criminal justice system.

Discretionary grant: A grant awarded directly by OJP to eligible recipients. While discretionary grants are most often awarded on a competitive basis, some grants may be awarded on a noncompetitive basis, often based on congressional direction.

Earmark grant: A grant appropriated by Congress prior to a peer review. The term "earmark" is a reference to the Congressional Record where the awards are written into legislation specifically with the grant applicant's name, activity, and dollar amounts.

Epidemiological: An epidemiological study is a population study designed to examine associations between personal characteristics.

Evidence-based: Evidence-based practice refers to the use of research and scientific studies as a base for determining the best practices in a field.
Forensic science (forensics): The application of a broad spectrum of sciences to answer questions of interest to a legal system. This may be in relation to a crime or a civil action.

Formula or block grant: A grant awarded directly by OJP to an eligible recipient as authorized by statute. For formula and/or block grant programs, statutes or appropriations acts specify how the funds will be allocated among the eligible recipients, as well as the method by which an applicant must demonstrate its eligibility for that funding. Examples of this type of grant at OJP are the OJJDP Juvenile Accountability Block Grants Program and the OVC VOCA Victim Compensation Formula Grants. The award amount is calculated by a formula, and may vary among programs. Award calculations may consider such factors as population, census data, juvenile offender population, and Part 1 violent crimes reported to the FBI. Formula grant programs can be either for a specific purpose (e.g., assisting juvenile offenders,) or related to public safety in general. The dollar amount available to applicants under each program is included in the solicitation. The specific recipient for state formula programs should be designated by each state. For state formula programs, OJP maintains a list of the designated agencies authorized by each state to administer the programs.

Fusion center: A terrorism prevention and response center started as a joint project between DHS and OJP between 2003 and 2007. The fusion centers gather information not only from government sources but also from their partners in the private sector. They are designed to promote information sharing at the federal level between agencies such as the CIA, FBI, DOJ, U.S. Military, and state and local level governments.

Geospatial: A term to describe the combination of spatial software and analytical methods with terrestrial or geographic datasets.

Interagency Agreement (IAA): An agreement between two or more state agencies.

Listserv: A type of electronic mailing list, allowing for distribution of e-mail to many subscribers.

Multidisciplinary: The involvement of two or more disciplines or professions in the provision of integrated and coordinated services, including evaluation and assessment activities.

National Information Exchange Model (NIEM): An XML-based information exchange framework from the United States. NIEM represents a collaborative partnership of agencies and organizations across all levels of government (federal, state, tribal, and local) and with private industry.

Noncompetitive grant: A grant that resembles a contract more than a grant. Noncompetitive grants are automatically awarded to institutions that qualify for legally defined formulas. Organizations agree to conduct activities in order to achieve a specific purpose based on an established program. The organization completes forms and assurances to secure funds.

One-stop location: Providing a comprehensive selection of goods or services at a single location.

Recidivism: Relapse into criminal behavior, often after receiving sanctions or undergoing intervention for a previous crime.

Roundtable: A meeting of peers for discussion and exchange of views.

Sexting: (A portmanteau of sex and texting) is the act of sending sexually explicit messages or photos electronically, primarily between cell phones.
Socio-economic: The culmination of social as well as economic factors.

State Administering Agency: Many OJP formula grants are awarded directly to state governments, which then set priorities and allocate funds within that state. For more information on how a state intends to distribute formula grant funds, contact the administering state agency.

Victims of Crime Act: This federal law, passed by Congress in 1984 and amended in 1988, called for the establishment of the Office for Victims of Crime and created the Crime Victims Fund, which provides funds to states for victim assistance and compensation programs that offer support and services to those affected by violent crimes.

Webinar: Short for Web-based seminar, a presentation, lecture, workshop or seminar that is transmitted over the Web. A key feature of a webinar is its interactive element—the ability to give, receive, and discuss information. A webinar is fundamentally different from a webcast, in which the data transmission is one way and does not allow interaction between the presenter and the audience.

Weed and Seed: Weed and Seed, a community-based strategy sponsored by DOJ, is an innovative, comprehensive multiagency approach to law enforcement, crime prevention, and community revitalization. Weed and Seed is foremost a strategy—rather than a grant program—that aims to prevent, control, and reduce violent crime, drug abuse, and gang activity in designated high crime neighborhoods throughout the country.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: How long does it take to register in Grants.gov or set up my account in the OJP Grants Management System (GMS)?

A: Grants.gov: The registration process can take 1–3 weeks depending on your organization. Many factors contribute to this timeframe. See Get Registered on Grants.gov for details and instructions.

GMS: About 3–5 days, but you should begin the application process as soon as possible, particularly if you are a first time user. For assistance with the electronic application process, call the GMS toll free hotline at 1-888-549-9901. The hotline is available from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. eastern time, Monday through Friday.

Q: How do I access and get started with my online application?

A: Grants.gov: Go to Search Grant Opportunities on Grants.gov.

GMS: Go to Funding Opportunities at OJP. This site links users directly to GMS and the GMS Application Procedures Handbook, which gives step-by-step instructions. Click on the solicitation that interests you. Then select "Logon directly to the Grants Management System (GMS)," to apply for grant funding. If you have not previously used GMS, click on "New User? Register Here," and follow the onscreen instructions to register. After you register, select the name of the solicitation you are responding to.

Q: What do I need to have ready before I apply online?

A: Grants.gov and GMS: You will need a Dun and Bradstreet (D&B) Data Universal Numbering System (DUNS) number to register. Your application will not be considered complete until you provide a valid DUNS number.

EXCEPTION: Individuals who would personally receive a grant or cooperative agreement from the federal government, apart from any business or nonprofit organization that they may operate, are not required to obtain a DUNS number. If this exception applies, enter any nine digits into the space provided.

You can receive a DUNS number at no cost by calling the dedicated toll free DUNS number request line at 1-866-705-5711. If you have questions, contact OJP's Office of the Chief Financial Officer's Customer Service Center at 1-800-458-0786.

Grants.gov has additional registration requirements. See Get Registered on Grants.gov for details.

Q: What types of files can I upload into GMS?

A: You must use one of these three formats to upload documents into Grants.gov: Portable Document Format (.pdf), Microsoft Word (.doc), or ascii (.txt).
Q: When will I know if my application is selected for funding?

A: The application review process (including peer review, decision making, and other considerations) may take 6 months or longer. Notices of award and non-award are sent about 6 months after the closing date of a solicitation. Information regarding the status of awards is not available until notifications have been sent. Awards are posted regularly.

Web Link: http://ojjdp.ncjrs.gov/eudl
Program Contact: Demonstration Programs Division, (202) 307-5914

Program Description:
OJJDP will continue to fund this program through its four components: block grants to the 50 states, the 5 territories, and the District of Columbia; discretionary grants; technical assistance; and research and evaluation. Under the block grant component, each state, the District of Columbia, and the territories receive approximately $360,000 annually to support law enforcement activities, media campaigns, and coalition building. The discretionary grant component supports several initiatives to help communities develop a comprehensive approach to address underage drinking. EUDL training and technical assistance supports communities and states in their efforts to enforce underage drinking laws. Program funds also support evaluations of several EUDL community initiatives.

Program Name: Disproportionate Minority Contact
Grantee: Designated state agencies
FY 2010 Funding: TBD
OJP Sponsor: OJJDP
Web Link: http://ojjdp.ncjrs.gov/dmc
Program Contact: State Relations and Assistance Division, (202) 307-5924

Program Description:
Section 223(a)(22) of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 2002 requires states to address juvenile delinquency prevention efforts and system improvement efforts to reduce, without establishing or requiring numerical standards or quotas, the disproportionate number of juvenile members of minority groups who come into contact with the juvenile justice system. States primarily fund delinquency prevention and systems improvement activities through their Title II Formula and Title V Delinquency Prevention Grant funds. OJJDP provides training and technical assistance to states to support their development of direct services (e.g., diversion, alternatives to secure confinement, advocacy, cultural competency training); legislative reforms; administrative, policy, and procedural changes; structured decision making (e.g., detention screening, risk assessment, needs assessment instruments); and other activities.

Program Name: National Training Conference for State VOCA Assistance Administrators
Grantee: National Association of VOCA Assistance Administrators
FY 2010 Funding: TBD
OJP Sponsor: OVC

Program Description:
This program provides training to state and territorial VOCA assistance administrators in oversight and management of VOCA victim assistance formula grants. The project will plan and administer training activities to bring VOCA assistance administrators and staff together in a training conference to explore ways to improve the delivery of a full range of services to victims of crime; remain up to date on the latest issues and trends in victims services; provide an opportunity for VOCA administrators to exchange information, views, and experiences; and provide training on effective program operations.
Program Name: Project Safe Neighborhoods (PSN) Formula Program
Grantee: U.S. Attorney’s Districts (93)
FY 2010 Funding: TBD
OJP Sponsor: BJA
Program Contact: James Chavis, (202) 307-0688, James.Chavis@usdoj.gov

Program Description
PSN is a strategy to reduce gun and gang crime in the United States by focusing on aggressive and coordinated enforcement of existing gun laws in federal and state courts, and effective strategies to reduce and prevent gang crime. PSN focuses on the implementation of five elements integral to a comprehensive, coordinated gun and gang crime reduction and prevention program. These elements are partnerships, strategic planning, training, community outreach, and accountability. Over the past several years, BJA has supported these five PSN elements through direct grant funds to local communities and the delivery of nationwide training and technical assistance. PSN grants will support the delivery and implementation of the PSN strategy to the communities and task forces within those districts as they continue to expand their gang and gun reduction efforts. Each of the 93 federal judicial districts is eligible to apply for a formula-based allocation based on crime and population. DOJ will determine each district’s final grant award, which may take into account the district’s need for funding and past performance.

Program Name: Residential Substance Abuse Treatment for State Prisoners (RSAT) Formula Grant Program
FY 2010 Funding: TBD
OJP Sponsor: BJA
Web Link: http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/BJA/grant/rsat.html
Program Contact: Ruby Qazilbash, (202) 305-6982, Ruby.Qazilbash@usdoj.gov

Program Description
RSAT helps states and local governments to develop and implement substance abuse treatment programs in state and local correctional and detention facilities and to create and maintain community-based aftercare services for offenders. The goal of RSAT is to break the cycle of drugs and violence by reducing the demand for, use, and trafficking of illegal drugs. RSAT enhances the capability of states and units of local government to provide residential substance abuse treatment for incarcerated inmates; prepares offenders for their reintegration into the communities from which they came by incorporating reentry planning activities into treatment programs; and assists offenders and their communities in the reentry process through the delivery of community-based treatment and other broad-based aftercare services.
RSAT funds may be used to implement three types of programs: residential, jail-based, and aftercare. Applications involving partnerships with community-based substance abuse treatment programs are given priority consideration. RSAT programs provide individual and group treatment activities for offenders and must last between 6 and 12 months; be provided in residential treatment facilities set apart from the general correctional population; focus on the substance abuse problems of the inmate; develop the inmate's cognitive, behavioral, social, vocational, and other skills to solve the substance abuse and related problems; and require urinalysis or other proven reliable forms of drug and alcohol testing of individuals assigned to RSAT programs in correctional facilities.

Program Name: Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) Formula Program
Grantee TBD
FY 2010 Funding TBD
OJP Sponsor BJA
Web Link: www.ojp.usdoj.gov/BJA/grant/jag.html
Program Contact Darius LoCicero, (202) 514-2553, Darius.LoCicero@usdoj.gov
Program Description
The JAG program is the leading source of federal justice funding to state and local jurisdictions. JAG provides states, tribes, and local governments with critical funding necessary to support a range of program areas including law enforcement; prosecution and court; prevention and education; corrections and community corrections; drug treatment and enforcement; planning, evaluation, and technology improvement; and crime victim and witness initiatives. JAG funds may be used to address crime through the provision of services directly to individuals and communities; and by improving the effectiveness and efficiency of criminal justice systems, processes, and procedures. JAG awards are 4 years in length and are distributed up front instead of on a reimbursement basis, allowing recipients to earn interest on their awards and generate additional funding for successful initiatives and future projects. On average, more than 40 percent of annual JAG funding is allocated to law enforcement personnel, initiatives, and equipment including, but not limited to, multijurisdictional drug and gang task forces, police cruisers, and less than lethal devices. Remaining JAG funding is used to support a variety of programs and initiatives in the areas of courts, corrections, treatment, and justice information sharing.
