Baltimore's 25 percent reduction, the nonemergency system had little impact on reducing emergency call handling times. In Baltimore, the system showed that a large number of emergency calls were not actually emergency calls, had low usage, low hold, low diversion, of, and suspender persons were not placed in the system. The report notes that the nonemergency system did not affect emergency call handling times and suggests that the nonemergency system be removed from calls to the 911 system. 210 pp. Grant 2000–IJ–DQ–X007; funded in collaboration with the Office of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) and the National Institute of Justice (NIJ).
